CRIMINAL SESSION OF SUPERIOR COURT

Intent to Murder Charge — Turkish Stabbing Affray — Clancy's Stable Case Heard Today

The criminal session of the superior court, Judge Keating presiding, was resumed at the local court house this morning.

Intent to Murder

Gatamo Jneono was arraigned on a complaint charging him with assault with intent to murder to which he pleaded guilty. District Attorney Higgins informed the court that defendant was playing cards, when he produced a revolver and fired, but fortunately did not hit any one. He recommended that the sentence be light on the ground that the prisoner has been in jail for the past four months, and accordingly the court imposed a fine of $50.

Turkish Stabbing Affray

Prior to the closing of the session yesterday afternoon, the cases of Mahamed Gamal, Allie Mohamed, Allie Mehmond and Allie Accarry, charged with assault with intent to murder, were disposed of. Mahomed Gemal was dismissed on the ground that the police found that the complaint had no foundation. The other three who pleaded guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon, were fined $50 each.

Chauffeur Duff's Case

Robert W. Duff, the chauffeur who was found guilty of willingly obstructing a funeral procession, was fined $20, but a stay of execution of sentence was granted by the court at the request of Duff's attorneys, who wish to carry the case to the supreme court.

John B. Clancy's Case

John B. Clancy was charged by the local board of health with unlawfully occupying a building for a stable on Sept. 15, 1912.

Mr. Clancy entered a plea of not

THAW'S FIGHT FOR FREEDOM

Judge Chase Says Escape of Insane Person From Asylum is Not an Extraditable Offense

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Reasons why Harry K. Thaw should not be extradited to the state of New York from the state of New Hampshire were presented to Governor Samuel D. Felker in the senate chamber of the state house today by William M. Chase of Concord, former judge of the state supreme court and by William A. Stone of Pittsburgh, former governor of the state of Pennsylvania. Their arguments occupied the time from 11.15 to 12.45, when Governor Felker announced an adjournment of the hearing until 2 o'clock this afternoon. William T. Jerome of New York will argue then for the issuance of the extradition papers. The proceedings this morning were entirely formal and without exciting incidents. Messrs. Chase and Stone declared the petition for extradition insufficient in form and unsupported by the necessary evidence and that the state of New York having by its courts declared Thaw insane could not now request from New Hampshire his extradition for a crime which by its nature only a sane man could commit.

THAW'S REAL FIGHT FOR FREEDOM WAS BEGUN TODAY

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Harry K. Thaw's real fight for freedom began today. With the opening of the extradition hearing before Governor Felker, counsel on both sides realized that the hour of legal sparring for a temporary advantage had passed and that the outcome rested on the interpretation of points of law regarding which few if any precedents had been found.

FOR AN INCREASE OF FREIGHT RATES

B. & M. Wants 10 P. C. Increase —Hearing in Boston — Lowell Men Attend to Oppose Scheme

Several Lowell men went to Boston this morning to attend the hearing before Commissioner Prouty of the interstate commerce commission on the petition of the Boston and Maine railroad to increase the general freight rates 10 per cent. Among those who went were President George M. Harrigan and Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade, Frank Cheney of the Cheney Box and Lumber Co., J. C. Wadleigh of the Merrimack Mfg. Co.; A. W. Thompson of the Saco-Lowell Machine Co., F. W. Horne of the Horne Coal Co., and Agent Walker of the Lawrence Mfg. Co. They represented the shippers of this city in protesting against the granting of the increase. Mr. Murphy brought to the hearing letters containing the protests of several other large Lowell concerns. He expressed the opinion that the interest shown was not sufficiently great nor the protests of the shippers strong enough to very deeply impress the commissioners. A great many will enter their protests, however, when the increased rates become evident on their freight bill.

The hearing was held at 10 o'clock in the federal court room in the post-office building. From other cities there were many representatives, but from Lowell not as many as might be desired to represent a city of such large manufacturing resources.

One of the most prominent organizations was the New England Coal Dealers' association which was represented by counsel. In this regard, there are many important facts with reference to the effect which, if granted, the proposed increase will have upon the coal shipments to Lowell. The average freight train of coal, from Mystic wharf in Boston to this city, a distance of approximately 26 miles, brings the B. & M. a large revenue. For example, take a train of 20 cars. There are about 40 tons to each car, and the rate is at present 85 cents per ton. Thus the total receipts to the company equal $680. If the increase is granted the total will be much larger. The effect of an increase upon the dealers and upon the consumers is evident; it would doubtless cause a rise in the price of coal.

One Lowell concern realized the importance of taking action in the matter and in a letter to the board of trade, said that its freight bills amount

Man Who Ran Engine Fined in Police Court Today — Shiftless Husband Lectured by Court

Fred R. Davis, of Waltham, was arraigned before Judge Enright in police court this morning for violating the state law by running a steam engine without a license. Through his attorney he stated that he was operating an engine at the plant of the Lowell Gas company under the direction of his employers, Davis & Farnham, also of Waltham, when he was stopped by Mr. Harry E. Morton, state inspector of boilers. At the time that the state inspector put in an appearance he had been engaged in these duties but 42 hours. The defendant was a man of 60 years, who had never been in court before and was operating the engine at the request of his employers. He was given the minimum fine of $10, the amount to be paid within 30 days.

"Any man who can not earn $5 a week toward the support of his family should be in the house of correction," said Judge Enright to James P. McDonald, who was arrested on a capias for non-support. The defendant stated that his funds were tied up in his business at the present time and that is the reason he has failed to make his weekly payments to Probation Officer Slattery.

Mrs. McDonald was called to the stand and testified that she was the mother of six children and during the past six years has received very little toward their support except what was earned by one of her daughters. Mr. McDonald promised to pay $10 to his wife by Saturday night and the case was continued until Monday.

Philomiene Gagnon was arrested by Sergt. Petrie for drunkenness and pleaded guilty to that charge in police court this morning. She did not appear in the best of health and she promised to go home to her mother if released. The case was continued for two months.

Patrick McCarthy made his fourth appearance during the past year, charged with drunkenness. According to his story he has been living with his mother in Wilton, N. H., for some time and has been sending money to his wife in this city to support his children. He stated that the New Hampshire town was "dry" and promised that if allowed to return there he would go to work and continue supporting his family in this city. He was given a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

William Gillis, who yesterday appealed when a sentence of four months in jail was imposed upon him, withdrew his appeal this morning and was sent to the Lowell jail for the above term.

James P. Corcoran, a second offender, told the court that if released he would go to work and he was fined $6 and given three weeks to pay it in.

CITY COUNCIL ELECTS A PLANNING BOARD

CITY PLANS COMMISSION

Charles E. Anderson.....For Five Years
John H. Murphy.....For Four Years
Joseph A. Legare.....For Three Years
George P. Green.....For Two Years
John C. Wilson.....For One Year

The municipal council at a meeting held today elected a city plans commission consisting of five members, as follows: Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the Trades and Labor council, five year member; John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade, for four years; former Postmaster Joseph A. Legare, three years; George P. Green, two years, and John C. Wilson, one year. The election of a city plans commission or city planning board, is mandatory and is provided for in chapter 494 of the acts and resolves for 1913. The board will be a very important one as the scope of its observations and duties is unusually wide. The board's mission is to assist in the development of the city and to pay particular attention to the housing question, one of the most important problems of the day, especially in manufacturing cities.

Other business transacted by the council included the adoption of a loan order for $12,000 for expenses connected with contagious diseases, of which smallpox is the big item.

Jurors were drawn to serve in the superior court in this city and to report on the first Monday in October. The matter of a site for a contagious hospital was touched upon, but nothing definite was arrived at. The action of the city solicitor in bringing the question of the abolition of the grade crossings in Middlesex street, Western avenue and Fletcher street before the court was sanctioned by the council and numerous minor matters were acted upon.

The first business before the council was the drawing of six traverse jurors to serve in this city, superior court, first Monday in October. The following jurors were drawn by Com. Cummings:

Jeoffrey Cossette, 40 Sparks street, printer.

John H. McCaffrey, 155 Pleasant street, carpet weaver.

William E. K. Thissell, 47 Methuen street, clerk.

John Dwyer, 12 Oak street, painter.

Willis J. Peltier, 503 Moody street, jeweler.

Stephen J. Boyle, 23 Philips street, barber.

Bad Sidewalk Work

Some time ago Henry J. O'Dowd addressed a communication to the council protesting against the way in which sidewalk work was being done in Gorham street at the court house. He declared that the specifications were not being lived up to. The work was done by the Cresolith Co.

Mr. O'Dowd was on hand today to back up the charges contained in his letter, the council having voted to give him a hearing today. "If the contractor was living up to the specifications," said Mr. O'Dowd, "he must have had one set of specifications and I another."

"There was but one set of specifications, Mr. O'Dowd," said Com. Donnelly.

"Mr. O'Dowd then read from the specifications given him before bids on the job were opened. He claimed the contractor did not go the required depth, 18 inches, and used gravel instead of crushed stone.

"If you doubt my word, examine the work," said Mr. O'Dowd, who is treasurer of the Neolithic Sanitary Flooring Co.

"Mr. Connor told me," said Mr. O'Dowd, "that I was sore because I didn't get the job and I told him that was absolutely false. Mr. Connor is a member of the Cresolith Co."

William Patenaude, said Mr. O'Dowd, had called his attention to the sidewalk. "I know what crushed stone is," he said, "and I didn't see any crushed stone."

Rosario Lussier said he had looked the job over on a certain day and there was no crushed stone. "I went up a second day," he said, "and found them using gravel instead of crushed stone. When they saw me coming they stopped the mixers and started on other work. I stayed around for some time and they resumed the gravel mixing work. There wasn't any crushed stone in sight. The job was not done according to specifications."

The Cresolith Co. was not represented at the hearing and no defence of its position was offered. After the petitioners were heard, Com. Donnelly moved, and it was so voted, that the matter be referred to the city solicitor, the city engineer and commissioner of streets and highways.

$12,000 for Contagious Diseases

Mayor O'Donnell presented an order asking for $12,000 to defray the expenses connected with contagious diseases during the year; $9000 for smallpox and $3000 for other contagious diseases.

Commissioner Brown wanted to know if the matter couldn't go over for a month or so, and the mayor said that this was more or less of an emergency case.

The mayor explained that a number of bills were due at the present time and these bills, he said, should be paid.

Agent Bates of the board of health was present at the meeting and showed where the expense of contagious diseases, exclusive of smallpox, had increased 100 per cent. for the first eight months of this year as compared with the first eight months of last year. The expense for the first eight

INJUNCTION IS GRANTED

To Prevent City of Lowell From Selling the Hildreth Cemetery for Unpaid Taxes

Judge Jenney in the equity court at Boston today, granted an injunction prohibiting the city of Lowell from selling the Hildreth cemetery for unpaid taxes. The injunction was issued on the ground of a wrong assessment. The land was assessed to the Hillside cemetery instead of to the town of Dracut. The petition was brought on behalf of the town of Dracut. Warren P. Fox represented the petitioners and City Solicitor Hennessy the city of Lowell.

LOWELL FIREMEN

Will Attend Big Convention at New Bedford This Week

A number of local firemen are planning to attend the 34th convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's association to be held in Odd Fellows hall, New Bedford, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. All of the firemen in this city belong to the association and as many as can be off duty will probably be present at the convention.

The program will consist of speaking and entertainments and it is held to increase the efficiency of the firemen throughout the state. The convention will open tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and from that time until Friday afternoon sessions will be held.

Fire Commissioner Barrett of this city will speak Thursday on "Necessity of Special Construction of Chassis for Motor Fire Apparatus." Capt. James McKissock will also read several reports at the convention and on Thursday he will give an address on "Bills Introduced in the Legislature of 1913 Affecting Firemen." Among the other subjects will be: "In case of great conflagration such as happened to the city of Chelsea, should not the chiefs and deputies of all the cities and towns have it agreed to and understood with the captains of the various companies that when the fire has got beyond control, each captain shall act as a guide and direct help arriving to locate where the best work can be done," "Fire protection in large department stores," and many others.

Chief Dahill and members of the New Bedford fire department are planning a series of entertainments for the delegates, ladies and guests, the program of which is yet incomplete, but on the afternoon of the third day, they are to give all the delegates, their wives and sweethearts a sail down the bay on the steamer "Gay Head." The boat will leave New Bedford at 2 o'clock and arrive at Woods Hole at 3.30 o'clock, where an hour will be spent. The return trip will be made about 4.30.

12 SAVED AS BOAT SANK

A Five Masted Schooner Ran Ashore—Captain Jackson Put Out in Boat and Rescued All

EDGARTOWN, Sept. 23.—The five-masted schooner Marcus L. Urann, with a cargo of coal from Sewall's Point, Va., for Boston, ran ashore on Skiff's Island shoal in Muskegat channel yesterday. For several hours Captain Benjamin Thomas and his crew of eight men, together with the wives of the captain and of the steward, remained aboard the vessel while she pounded under the impulses of a southerly gale, which sent great waves over the Urann's decks. The ship struck during a dense fog, and her plight was not discovered from shore until the mist lifted a little yesterday afternoon.

Word was then sent to Captain Levi Jackson, honored with a Carnegie medal as a result of his life-saving exploits, and he put out to the schooner in his auxiliary fishing schooner Priscilla II. This boat was partly purchased by funds given Captain Jackson by the Carnegie hero fund commission. Its errand of succor was successful yesterday, under unfavorable conditions.

Transferred to Schooner

A heavy southerly gale was blowing, with a murky pall still hanging over the channel. Six miles off the southeast end of the island, lay the schooner, stranded on the shoal while great seas broke over her decks, and threatened the lives of those aboard. Capt. Jackson and his men were forced to approach the schooner cautiously and with all the skipper's seamanship he did not dare bring the fisherman up to the schooner's side. Captain Jackson himself took a dory to the Urann where he found that Captain Thomas had stowed the belongings of all on board in the schooner's power boat. But the captain thought it best to trust to Captain Levi and by twos and threes all were transferred to the fishing schooner, Captain Thomas being the last to leave.

He said that the accident came after a voyage through continuous haze and fog. In Sunday night's mist Captain Thomas said he made a fixed light about 11 o'clock which he thought was Shinnecock, "I shaped by course accordingly," he continued. "About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the fog thickened, and for hours we were lost. About 5 o'clock the schooner ran aground and we didn't know where we were until the fog lifted yesterday afternoon. I think the light I made out last night must have been Block Island."

Tried to Run Aground

The wreck of the Urann marks a strange coincidence of the sea. The schooner is the third vessel owned by the same company, the Constwise Transportation company of Boston, to run aground on the same shoal and under the same conditions. The schooner Arthur G. Seitz was wrecked there under similar conditions 10 years ago and three years ago the big six-master was wrecked with 21 persons on board, who were rescued from the rigging by Captain Levi Jackson, and his delighty crew in a heroic manner, which resulted in recognition by the Carnegie hero fund association.

Skiff's Island has never given up a ship but the owners of the Urann are to try to save her.

MANCHESTER JUDGE HANDS OUT JAIL TERMS TO MEN WHO NEGLECTED LITTLE ONES

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 23.—Judge John Kivel in the superior court yesterday outlined the jail terms offenders in the future may expect who are brought before him for wilful neglect and failure to support their minor children, when he pronounced sentence on William Linnehan and Alphonse P. Brunelle of this city. Both had pleaded nolo to indictments charging them with failure to provide for their respective families. Each was sentenced to four months in jail and ordered to pay the costs of prosecution.

THAW CASE

silent, arrived just before daylight, deputized by the state of New York to obtain the surrender of Thaw as a fugitive from justice. Whether he would press the charge of criminal conspiracy to escape from the insane asylum at Matteawan in view of the fact that the Dutchess county grand jury had failed to report an indictment against Thaw on these lines was not revealed before the hearing began.

Counsel for the fugitive maintained their confident attitude that Governor Felker would not grant the extradition of a chance visitor, whose only offense was that he had escaped from a jurisdiction in which he had been held responsible. Disinterested counsel held that the case would go from the governor to the federal courts for final determination.

Thaw Arrived

The chamber of the state senate, however, in which the hearing was to be held was early filled to its capacity with newspapermen, members of the bar and others who had been able to obtain tickets of admission from the senators. Thaw was not brought into the chamber until 11.05, when he appeared followed by a dozen of his counsel. They were seated on the left of the chamber, near Mrs. Thaw and her mald and son, Josiah. W. T. Jerome and his associates, Franklin Kennedy of New York and Bernard Jacobs of Lancaster were on the right with an official stenographer in the center.

Thaw passed within a foot of Jerome as he made his way to his seat, but no sign of recognition was given by either. Some of Thaw's counsel, however, shook hands with Jerome.

The appearance in the chamber of Governor Felker and his party was delayed by the fact that Mrs. Felker, the governor's wife, was on a train which did not reach Concord until after 11 o'clock.

At 11.15 the governor came in, with Mrs. Felker, and attended by Attorney General James P. Tuttle and by the members of the executive council, accompanied by their wives. Other state officials occupied a small gallery overlooking the senate chamber.

The governor said that in opening the case he was inclined to hear whatever the lawyers had to say and this with strict regard to whatever might be strictly admissible.

Counsel Waived Reading

Thaw's counsel waived the reading of the petition for extradition. Mr. Jerome addressed the governor, saying that the documents in the case speak for themselves and that there was nothing for the governor to do but to hear them. If any attack is to be made upon them it should come from the other side.

Judge William Chase of this city, of counsel for Thaw, rose and addressed the governor, saying that he would open the case for Mr. Thaw to be followed by ex-Governor Stone of Pennsylvania and by George P. Morris of Lancaster. Judge Chase, reading his arguments, said that "Harry K. Thaw, a resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., is before you charged with conspiring to escape from the asylum at Matteawan, N. Y. No indictment has been found against him, although a grand jury of that county has been in session since Sept. 8. Acting Governor Glynn of New York has asked for the extradition of Thaw under the provisions of the United States constitution covering such matters. If that request is to be granted the governor of New Hampshire must be satisfied that this requisition is issued in good faith and not with any ulterior motive. The extradition process does not cover cases of insanity, but only those of treason, felony and crime.

"You cannot surrender Thaw to New York, governor, simply because he is a fugitive from Matteawan."

On this point Judge Chase quoted extensively from authorities.

Judge Chase dwelt with special emphasis upon the fact that Thaw could not be extradited simply as an insane person.

He further stated that in the case of a requested extradition for crime the petition must be supported by evidence of crime "unless sufficient evidence is introduced here to prove to your excellency that Thaw actually has committed the crime of conspiracy charged against him then you should not issue this extradition process."

Innocent of Crime

Judge Chase stated that criminal intent is the essence of crime. Against criminal intent, insanity is a complete defence. Thaw took the life of a man but is regarded as innocent of the crime because his act was decided by a jury to have been that of an insane mind. He was thereafter confined in the asylum at Matteawan until the alleged act of conspiracy took place.

Judge Chase read from the report of the superintendent of Matteawan hospital a history of the Thaw case as connected with that institution to show that Thaw has been still insane since his incarceration there. The character of Thaw's insanity as a paranoiac was discussed by Judge Chase to show that it is generally considered incurable.

"The state of New York has no right to question the findings of its own court that Thaw is an insane person. But it has charged this insane person with the criminal act of conspiracy, especially requiring the exercise of sanity.

Why Thaw Was In Asylum

"Thaw was in Matteawan not as punishment for a crime, but as a protection to the public against the acts of an insane person. His status there is of especial importance in connection with the present phase of this case." On this point, also, Judge Chase cited authorities.

"There is no decision of the courts making the escape of an insane person from an asylum an extraditable offence. If Thaw, unaided, has escaped from Matteawan it is not a crime. And as an insane person he was not capable of entering into a conspiracy to escape. Nor is there any testimony offered to show any participation on Thaw's part in any plans for his escape."

Judge Chase closed by presenting former Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania.

Thaw Stared at Jerome

During Judge Chase's address Thaw stared most of the time at Jerome, who was directly across the senate chamber with an open space of a dozen feet between them. Jerome did not return the glances. When Judge Chase spoke in closing of Thaw's desire to return home with his mother Thaw was much affected and wiped tears from his eyes with his handkerchief.

Gov. Stone dwelt upon the insufficiency of the affidavits accompanying the request for extradition to support the charge of conspiracy there made and which is not accompanied by any indictment. "The requisition papers, therefore, do not comply with the requirements of the state and of all states in this matter. On this point Governor Stone quoted a New York decision that there is no law to punish a lunatic for escaping from an asylum. Such a law would be ludicrous. Now, since there is no such law, there can be no conspiracy to break such a law.

"It is not only the right but it is the plain duty of the governor of New Hampshire to determine whether there has been a crime committed subject to the process of extradition or whether a charge has been trumped up against the accused. On this point Governor Stone cited authorities.

He held that the burden of proof was upon those asking for the extradition to show why it should be granted. The papers in the case, said Gov. Stone, show an entire absence of opportunity for conspiracy on Thaw's part.

"The affidavits here filed show how Thaw went away from Matteawan, but getting away is not the crime with which he is charged; it is conspiring to get away. The state of New York must show that in a lucid interval of his insanity Thaw conspired as a responsible party to escape from Matteawan. They advance here no such proof."

Gov. Stone read lengthy extracts from the stenographic report of the proceedings of the United States court at Littleton a week ago.

No Indictment Against Thaw

Gov. Stone pointed out that without an indictment against Thaw in New York he could not be tried, yet they ask for his extradition upon a charge upon which he cannot be tried if extradited.

"For some reason they are fond of Thaw at Matteawan," said Gov. Stone, "perhaps because he has given it so much notoriety. At any rate its gates are wide open for his return there and such return is the true object of these proceedings."

Gov. Stone submitted to Gov. Felker a typewritten brief in connection with his argument and other documents. At 12.50 Gov. Felker announced that the hearing was adjourned until 2 o'clock.

JEROME ARRIVED AT CONCORD EARLY THIS MORNING

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—With the arrival of former District Attorney Jerome of New York in this city at 5.15 this morning all was in readiness for the hearing before Governor Samuel D. Felker of New Hampshire on the petition of the state of New York for the extradition of Harry Kendall Thaw, alleged to have conspired to escape from the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan, N. Y.

Mr. Jerome was accompanied by Franklin Kennedy assistant attorney general of the state of New York and they occupied berths in a through sleeping car from New York city. After registering at the sage hotel of which Thaw has been a guest for the past week, Messrs. Jerome and Kennedy went direct to their rooms and there remained until breakfast hour. Neither had any statement to make as to their position in today's hearing.

This morning representatives and members of the bar thronged at the office of the secretary for admission to the hearing, which will be held beginning at 11 o'clock, in the chamber of the state senate. The desks of the 24 senators have been supplemented with tables for the use of the press and the available seating accommodations have been increased as much as possible.

While the governor's executive council does not act with him in the matter of granting extradition papers it is in session here this week on other matters and its members will attend the hearing accompanied by their wives.

Thaw was up early and had a final conference with his attorneys before arriving at the senate chamber. He appeared to be further encouraged by the presence of his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, and his brother Joseph who came here last night to give him as Mrs. Thaw said, "the support of his mother's presence in his fight to keep away from the madhouse."

A great crowd gathered outside the capital an hour before proceedings began.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KEEP CLEAN WITH CARBONOL

SOMETIMES soap-and-water cleanliness is enough. Sometimes aseptic cleanliness is absolutely necessary, and in such cases you should mix Carbonol in the water used in cleaning. A dash of Carbonol in a pail of water gives the whole mixture powerful disinfecting qualities.

Garbage cans and all repositories of refuse should be cleaned with it to kill the germs, to keep away flies and to suppress odors.

Carbonol is equally useful in general cleaning. Put it in the water when you mop the floors or wash the woodwork. Use it especially in cleaning the sickroom where there has been contagious disease. Sprinkle it in the cellar before sweeping and the musty smell will disappear.

A sample bottle with booklet will be sent free on request.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS ON

Weather Conditions Ideal—Light Vote Cast But Great Activity Among the Candidates

The state primaries are on in Lowell today and if the vote should prove light the weather clerk will not be to blame, providing the weather holds good until the polls close this evening.

The polls opened at 12 noon and will close at 9 p. m. In former years the polls opened at 11 a. m. and closed at 8 p. m. The law requires that the polls must be kept open for eight hours and it is optional with city governments or boards of selectmen as to the hour of opening. The municipal council, a month or so ago voted on the question of hours and made it from 12 m. to 9 p. m. The council allowed that these hours were best suited to local conditions.

There was considerable activity about the various precincts when the polls opened at the noon hour and automobiles and carriages were very much in evidence during the early hours of the afternoon. The automobiles and carriages were more especially for the old men and the day was so fine that a goodly number of them turned out to enjoy the ride as well as to vote.

Thirteen job wagons, with "Happy Day" Casey's caravan as an auxiliary, drew up in front of the Moody street entrance to the city hall at 11 o'clock this forenoon and took the ballot boxes to the various precincts. A little later, City Clerk Flynn made the rounds of the precincts, in the buildings department automobile, just to see that everything was in "apple pie" order, and he made a quick trip, too, as he was due back at the hall at 11.45 for a meeting of the municipal council.

Cornelius F. Sullivan, care taker of the ballot boxes, has been engaged in the office of the secretary of state and got leave of absence last Saturday, in order to prepare the boxes for the state primaries in this city. Mr. Sullivan worked all day Sunday and part of last night. This morning he announced that the boxes were ready for action and that's all there was to it.

All work in connection with elections this fall will have to be pulled off in double quick time because there is very little election money left, the money having been spent during the summer months.

The following police officers were named by Supt. Welch to serve at the various polling booths:

TO INCREASE RATES

to approximately $15,000 annual. In addition to this they are obliged to compete with the lower tariff, and it is their belief that such an increase would greatly injure local prosperity. Another firm stated that it has a business of about 50,600 tons annually in New England alone, over the B. & M. lines. These facts were brought out during the hearing.

Among the officials present with Commissioner Prouty were representatives of the public service commissions of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Lawyer Edgar J. Rich, counsel for the Boston & Maine, opened the proceedings with a long statement of the reasons for the demand for higher rates. Part of his speech is appended.

After his opening, he called four witnesses, Vice President Hobbs, who has charge of the finances; General Manager Pollock, Mr. Bartlett, superintendent of motor power and Chief Abel Cortell.

Mr. Hobbs dealt at length with the financial conditions of the road, stating that the company needed 10,000 new freight cars as it has been doing business with hired freight cars. The company also needed greater facilities in the line of terminals and trackage.

Mr. Rich said there was a great falling off in the revenues of the road. He said that this road was confronted by a serious situation. For July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $54,560 as contrasted with $407,302 for July, 1912. For September the decrease in operating revenue had been up till the 14th at the rate of $9500 a day. This was due, Mr. Rich said, to an increase in the rate of wages, cost of material, hiring cars and in interest charges.

The annual report of the Boston & Maine road for the year ending June 31 shows a deficit of $1,324,000. The total net revenue was $10,509,996.

Lawyer Rich's Statement

The following is a synopsis of the opening statement made by Edgar J. Rich, general solicitor for the Boston & Maine railroad:

The investigation of the New England railroads which began in the spring of 1912 was occasioned principally by complaints of bad service on the Boston & Maine railroad. During the course of the hearing it developed that the causes of bad service were extreme cold weather, the Hoosac Tunnel disaster and retrenchment. It was shown that retrenchment was imperative if the railroad was to be kept solvent. During the investigation the railroad officials, smarting under public criticism, began to pay more attention to service, with the result that in the spring of 1913, although service had improved, the financial condition of the railroad was becoming most serious. This condition developed towards the close of the hearing in April. This hearing today is held, partly at least, for the purpose of determining with greater certainty whether the claim of the Boston & Maine railroad that its revenue is entirely inadequate can be justified.

Board's Financial Condition

For the year ending June 30, 1913, the Boston & Maine railroad, after paying operating expenses and fixed charges, had a net corporate income of $19,696,82. This is the total amount available for dividends to the stockholders, with nothing for additions and betterments. It is useless to conceal the serious situation which confronts the Boston & Maine railroad. For the month of July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $54,560.94, as contrasted with $407,302.93 for the same month of 1912. The net results for August are not yet available, but from a preliminary study little satisfaction is gleaned from the figures. For September the decrease in gross operating revenue to the 14th of the month has been at the rate of $9500 per day.

Increased Revenue

That the Boston & Maine railroad cannot go on without greatly increasing its net revenue is too clear for argument. It is needless to say that these representatives of expert tribunals recognize fully the necessity for reasonable net earnings which may be available in part for permanent improvements, and in part to pay a reasonable return to the owners of the property. The public, too, as a matter of fairness, recognizes fully the right of the stockholders to a reasonable return. If the public is to be properly served in the way of current service and in improvements and enlargements of service, as required by increasing business and increasing public demands, there must be a vastly greater margin for improving the present service and enlarging the plant to accommodate the ever increasing traffic and public demands.

The only question about which there may be a difference of opinion is whether the increased net revenue should come through reduction of expenses, by more economical and more efficient methods, or whether it should come from higher rates. If the same result can be accomplished by improvement in methods and reform within the railroad organization, this ought to be done. A railroad has no right to come before the public authorities and ask for increased rates unless it can show that it cannot gain this result by the exercise of absolute honesty, reasonable economy and efficiency. The interstate commerce commission and the state commissions are justified, therefore, in compelling us to make an exhibit of our operating methods, and to see to what extent an increase in net revenue may come from the adoption of more efficient methods.

Causes of the Decrease

The public service commission of New Hampshire and the interstate commerce commission have each made searching inquiry into the causes of the financial condition of the Boston and Maine railroad. We believe that the following are the principal causes of this condition:—

1. Great increase in rate of wages. The increase for a single year ending June 30, 1911, was approximately $2,000,000, for the same number of men—an increase equivalent to 5 per cent. on the capital stock. Since that time there has been a progressive increase in wages, so that at the present time it is safe to say that the Boston and Maine railroad is paying at least $3,500,000 more for the same amount of labor than it paid in 1910; or, in other words, an amount equivalent to a 7 per cent. dividend.

2. The increase in the cost of hiring freight cars, the per diem rate changing on January 1, 1913, from 30 and 35c. to 45c. This would be equivalent to an increased burden of nearly a million dollars a year.

3. The moderate increase in business has resulted in extreme congestion at many points, which probably has resulted in an increase in the cost of handling traffic.

4. Large increase in interest charge.

As the decrease in net earnings was more or less coincident with New Haven management the impression has prevailed that in some way the New Haven control was responsible for this condition. The rigid investigation of the New Hampshire commission and of the federal commission establishes the fact beyond controversy that the New Haven has dealt absolutely fairly with the Boston and Maine railroad.

Exercise of Economy

The Boston and Maine railroad has had the benefit of the services of its old and trusted officials, and has also had the benefit of able men, trained on other railroads. But every new man coming to the Boston and Maine railroad comes up against the same situation; namely, that there can be little saving through the exercise of economy or through more efficient methods until vast sums are expended for permanent improvements.

By reason of the drastic investigations made by commissions during the past two or three years a few instances of inefficient administration have been discovered. For instance, the New Hampshire public service commission criticized severely and justly the methods employed at certain points in loading coal on engines. As a result of its criticism many of our coaling plants have been revamped and others are in process of improvement, with the result that we expect soon to have most of our coaling plants doing work at greatly reduced cost. But the opportunities for saving of this kind are exceedingly few.

Coal a Big Problem

The coal problem is one of the big problems of New England railroads because we are so far from the mines. If we were able to secure our supply at the same cost that the Pennsylvania railroad secures its supply, we would save the equivalent of a five per cent dividend.

Certainly after the drastic investigations of the last two years no criticism can justly be made of our purchases of coal. The contracts have been found by commissions to be very favorable to us.

What is said of the purchase of coal is equally applicable to the purchase of all supplies. There is no evidence of lack of honesty or efficiency.

There is one internal condition, however, which would doubtless improve the situation. The last two years the Boston & Maine railroad has been so castigated, criticized and ridiculed that it is not surprising that the officers and men alike have been losing courage. Re-establish esprit de corps and you will reduce unit cost; give the officers an opportunity to loosen up a little in economy, remove the pressure under which every one is working and you will do much to rehabilitate the spirit of the organization.

How Can Road be Financed?

The money imperatively needed in order to put the Boston & Maine railroad in a fair condition for safety and efficiency in operation cannot be raised at the present time upon any basis which would not place a heavy burden upon the railroad in the future. The laws of the states in which it is incorporated forbid the selling of stock at less than par. Its present market value is about 60. Financing by short term notes can be accomplished only at such high rates of interest as would place the railroad in a more unfortunate position than it is today. Bonds cannot be sold upon the basis which the directors would be justified in authorizing. No matter how the financing is to be accomplished it cannot be done except by placing the Boston & Maine railroad in a position where its stock will sell at par. This can be done only by a material increase in rates. When earning power is re-established and the stock sells at par or higher the financial problem is solved and the Boston & Maine railroad will become an efficient public servant. The remedy is in your hands.

ACCESSORY TO SUICIDE

MEDIUM ARRESTED—MAN HELD FOR MURDER OF WIFE AND CHILD

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 23.—A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of J. G. Farrell, on a charge of being an accessory to the suicide of Mrs. T. A. Turner and her daughter at Glenwood last Wednesday.

According to a written confession that the police say was made by Mrs. Turner's husband, she and her daughter met death in an agreement that all three should commit suicide.

It is alleged Farrell induced Turner to deed his property to him and then influenced him to carry out the suicide pact. Turner is recovering from the self-administered poison. Turner said Farrell held seances with the Turner family and "brought back" Turner's dead son, who urged his father "to enter the land beyond."

County Prosecutor Collins announced that he would arrest Turner on charges of murdering his wife and daughter.

TUBERCULOSIS EMBLEM

To be Standardized—Double Red Cross Will be Used by All Anti-Tuberculosis Organizations

A special committee of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, of which Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs of Baltimore is chairman, announces the exact proportions of the double red cross, the international tuberculosis emblem, which have been adopted in the United States. Every organization or institution dealing with tuberculosis will be urged to use the emblem in its correct proportions.

Although the double red cross was adopted for use in the United States in 1906 as the symbol of the crusade against tuberculosis, no effort was made to standardize the shape or proportions, with the result that hundreds of differently formed emblems are now being used in this country. After a year of study of the history and artistic merits of all of the designs available, the National association has finally chosen one in which all of the arms are pointed, the two cross-arms being of the same length. The width of the cross is taken as the unit in determining the proportions. The length of the lower leg is 7 units; the arms are 3 units on either side; the point above the arms 2½ units; and the distance between the arms, 1½ units. These measurements hold good for any size.

The double red cross was first adopted as the symbol of the International Anti-Tuberculosis association in Berlin, in October, 1902. The proposer of the symbol was Dr. G. Sersiron of Paris, who is now associate secretary of L'Association Centrale Francaise Contre la Tuberculose. Today the emblem is being used by anti-tuberculosis workers in every part of the world, even in Iceland, India, South Africa, Labrador, Japan, China and the Philippines. The double red cross is similar in shape to a cross used frequently in the Greek Catholic churches, and also to the Lorraine cross of France.

In the United States over 1200 anti-tuberculosis associations and committees, nearly 550 sanatoria and hospitals with 400 dispensaries and about 200 open air schools, besides a number of other organizations, are using the double red cross as their emblem. Wherever it is seen, it means war against tuberculosis.

PRIMARIES ON

The State Campaign for Nominations Closed Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—The campaign for nominations in the state primaries closed last night. Candidates for state office come before the voters today for party endorsement, with two principal contests as the only enlivening feature of the dullest of the three campaigns under the primaries system.

Each of the two candidates in these two contests—that for governor on the republican ticket, in which Col. Everett C. Benton and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner are the contenders, and for lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket, sought by E. P. Barry and Richard H. Long, last night expressed confidence in the outcome.

"I think the chances are in my favor, but I am by no means overconfident," said Congressman Gardner.

"I shall carry every county in the state except Essex and possibly Franklin. My nomination is certain," was the more confident prediction of Mr. Benton.

Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh is an unopposed candidate for head of the democratic ticket and Charles S. Bird will lead the progressives for a second year.

There are no contests in the progressive ranks, and interest in the primaries so far as party is concerned apparently centers in the size of the vote.

The secretary of state sent out more than a million ballots yesterday but it is expected that less than a quarter of that number will be used.

A dozen senatorial fights, and 50 or 60 struggles for nominations for the legislature may bring out votes in some districts.

The balloting in Boston and some of the other cities and a few small towns will begin at 6 a. m., but in a majority of cases the primaries will be held in the evening.

After the three parties, democratic, progressive and republican have selected their candidates there will still be two weeks in which independent candidates may obtain places on the ticket.

It was reported yesterday that Gov. Foss, elected as a democrat and who failed to receive a sufficient endorsement to run on the republican primary ticket for governor, would enter the field as an independent candidate for a fourth term. Gov. Foss has been asked several times regarding his political future but has refused to commit himself.

EARLY VOTE LIGHT

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A primary election for the selection of candidates of the November state election was held in Massachusetts today with good weather and few contests. The early vote except in districts where there was a struggle among candidates for the legislature was light.

Interest centered on the contest for the head of the republican ticket between Col. Everett C. Benton of Belmont and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton. There was also a contest in the democratic party for lieutenant governor between Edward P. Barry of Boston and Richard H. Long of Framingham. There was no opposition to Charles S. Bird of Walpole or to Lieut. Gov. Walsh of Fitchburg for the leading places on the progressive and democratic tickets.

Up to 9 a. m. the progressive vote in Boston and other large cities where early voting was held was very light.

BREAKS COAL RECORD

LAST YEAR'S PRODUCTION IN KENTUCKY SHOWS INCREASE OF NEARLY 2,500,000 TONS

The production of coal in Kentucky established a new record in 1912 with a total production of 16,190,521 short tons, according to Edward W. Parker, coal statistician of the United States geological survey. This large output represented an increase of 2,140,518 tons over the figures for 1911, and of nearly 2,000,000 tons over the former maximum output of 1910. There was an even greater increase in value in 1912, namely, $2,815,749 over the figures for 1911. The increased production in Kentucky was due chiefly to the new developments in the eastern part of the state, although the western counties participated largely in the gain.

The number of men employed in the mines in 1912 was 24,304, and the average production per man, 678 tons. Kentucky ranks second among the states in the percentage of coal produced by machines, Ohio holding first place. In 1912, 66 per cent. of the coal produced was machine mined. Labor troubles in the state were insignificant during the year, but according to the United States bureau of mines there were 51 fatalities in and about the mines, 41 underground, 2 in shafts, and 8 on the surface.

State Has Great Coal Reserve

Kentucky is the only one of the coal-producing states which has within its borders areas belonging to any two of the distinctly separate great coal fields. The eastern counties of the state are underlain by the coal beds of the great Appalachian mountain system, extending entirely across the state in a northeast-southwest direction, while the southern limits of the central or eastern interior coal field are found in the more northern counties of the western part of the state. The total area underlain by coal in the eastern counties of Kentucky is estimated at 12,270 square miles, and the coal-bearing areas in the western part of the state are estimated to contain 4,661 square miles. Up to the close of 1911 the larger part of the production of the state had been from the western district, but as a result of extensive developments in Harlan, Johnson, Letcher and Pike counties, the larger part of the coal production in 1912 was from the eastern part of the state. The eastern Kentucky coals are mostly high-grade "gas" or "coking" coals, with some cannel coal.

The assets are estimated at $35,455, principally of stock in trade valued at $33,164. The liabilities amount to $165,676, of which $107,240 is unsecured. A brewing firm with a claim for $21,000 is the largest creditor.

AXLE ON ENGINE BROKE

LOCOMOTIVE, TENDER AND BAGGAGE CAR DITCHED—TWELVE PASSENGERS INJURED

EVERETT, Wash., Sept. 23.—More than a dozen passengers on Great Northern Overland train were injured yesterday, one fatally and two others seriously, near Mukilteo, south of Everett, through the breaking of an axle of the tender and the ditching of the locomotive, tender and baggage car.

Before a flagman could be sent back to post a warning signal, a west bound train came along at full speed on the other track. Some of the wreckage of the locomotive and baggage car lay on the rails and the train crashed into it, but escaped serious damage.

All the injured passengers were brought to a hospital here. Rev. G. W. Grannis of Long Beach, Cal., is expected to die.

WELL KNOWN MAN

ANDREW A. GRAY PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING—HE HAD BEEN ILL FOUR YEARS

Andrew A. Gray, one of the best known young men of this city, died this morning at his home, 19 Tolman avenue, after a lingering illness, aged 38 years. Deceased was very prominent in Lowell and counted a host of friends, who will be grieved to learn of his demise.

Andrew A. Gray was born in Lowell 38 years ago and received his education in the schools of his native city.

THE LATE ANDREW A. GRAY

For a number of years he held the position of traveling salesman for the Acme Glass Co. of New York. Four years ago he was stricken with an illness, which was sure to lead him to the grave. However, he always bore his infirmity with resignation, and it was not until about six months ago that he was confined to his home. The end came at 5 o'clock this morning.

Deceased was a member of the Lowell Aerie of Eagles, the Elks, Div. 1, A. O. H. and the Travelers' association. He is survived by his father, Terrence, three brothers, Patrick of Philadelphia, Terrence of New York and James J., manager of the Lowell baseball team; five sisters, Miss Katherine T., Mrs. Mary Andrews, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunfey, Mrs. Edward Tyson and Mrs. John Dineen of Lawrence, also several nieces and nephews.

UNDERGROUND WATERS

"Underground Waters For Farm Use," a popular report of the United States Geological Survey, has again been reprinted to meet the wide demand from all farming and suburban sections of the country. A copy can now be obtained free, on application to the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

This water supply paper (No. 255) explains in simple language the habits of flow of underground waters through different kinds of rocks and soils, and calls attention to the dangerous character of many wells whose waters are supposed to be pure and wholesome. Water from limestone rock especially, it is stated, is apt to contain germs of typhoid or other disease, due to the fact that surface waters may find their way directly into underground channels which have been cut out through the dissolution of the lime.

Methods of protection from subsurface drainage in farming districts are discussed in the report, well-drilling methods and cost, types of curbs and well casings with which wells should be fitted, etc. The report embraces only about 50 pages, but is well illustrated with photographs and diagrams.

Any Woman Can Have Smooth, Hairless Skin

(Beauty Topics)

Here is a simple treatment, which if used, will quickly banish hair or fuzz from chin, cheek or lip: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairy surface, apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and the hairs are gone. Then wash the skin to rid it of the remaining paste. This is quite harmless and does not injure the most sensitive skin. Definite results are had quickest if the delatone is bought in an original package.

FIFTY KILLED

Rebels Dynamite Train in Mexico — Survivors Were Robbed

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 23.—Fifty persons were killed when rebels dynamited a passenger train on the Mexican National railway, 60 miles south of Saltillo, Mexico, Friday afternoon according to official reports to Mexican federal headquarters in Novo Laredo yesterday. The train was then looted and the surviving passengers robbed, it is said.

Forty federal soldiers and 10 second class passengers comprised the official death list. The number of injured was not given.

W. W. Mervain, of San Francisco, the only American on the train, is said to have escaped injury but was robbed.

Two dynamite mines were set off by electricity, it was said. The first class coach was only derailed, but the baggage, express and two second class coaches were blown to pieces.

COAL OUTPUT INCREASES

PRODUCTION IN TENN. FOR 1912 SHOWS HEALTHY CONDITION—VALUED AT OVER $7,000,000.

Activity in coal mining in Tennessee was well maintained in 1912, according to figures of E. W. Parker, of the United States Geological Survey. In fact, the production shows an increase of some forty thousand tons in that year over 1911. The output for 1912 was 6,473, 228 short tons, valued at $7,379,903.

The coal measures of the Appalachian region across the eastern part of Tennessee in a comparatively narrow belt, 50 to 70 miles wide, in a northeast-southwest direction. The total area underlain by coal is about 4,400 square miles and the greater part of the area contains one or more beds of workable thickness and quality. All of the coals of Tennessee are bituminous, generally high grade, and some of them make a good quality of coke. Smithing coal is produced in the southern part of the field.

The coal mines of Tennessee gave employment of 10,309 men for an average of 234 days in 1912, the average production by each man employed being 628 tons for the year and 3.68 tons for each working day.

About two-thirds of the total coal production of Tennessee is properly mined, according to Mr. Parker, and one-third is shot off the solid without having been undercut or sheared. In 1912 the quantity of coal mined by hand was 2,708,650 short tons, or 41.8 per cent. of the total, and 1,205,895 tons, or 18.6 per cent., were mined by the use of machines. The quantity of coal shot off the solid was 2,127,917 tons, or 32.9 per cent. of the total. Most of the coal used in the manufacture of coke in Tennessee is washed before being charged into the ovens. In 1912 the quantity of coal made into coke at the mines was 447,413 short tons, which included 330,994 tons of washed coal.

The time lost by labor troubles in Tennessee during 1912 amounted to less than 1 per cent. of the total time made, and in consequence was not of sufficient importance to influence the production. The fatalities in the coal mines of Tennessee in 1912, according to the United States bureau of mines, totaled 18, of which 17 occurred underground, and of these, 14 were caused by falls of roof and coal. There were no deaths due to explosions of dust or gas. The fatality record of 1912 was a notable improvement over 1911, when 115 men lost their lives, 84 of them by explosions.

LOCAL SOCIETY WILL HOLD BANQUET IN HONOR OF 123D ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF FR. MATHEW

The members of the Mathew Temperance Institute of this city will celebrate the 123d anniversary of the birth of the Apostle of Temperance, Rev. Theobald Matthew, on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 9, with an elaborate banquet in their rooms, 97 Central street. The banquet will start promptly at 8 o'clock. Announcements of this fact have been sent out to the members and invited guests, and all have been urged to contribute to the success by being present. Superintendent of Schools Hugh J. Molloy will preside and the principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I., of North Billerica. There will also be other prominent men among those who will deliver addresses. The entertainment committee has arranged a delightful program for the event, containing several excellent musical and literary numbers.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

The following committee was appointed to take charge of the entertainment: On speakers, D. F. Reilly and Patrick J. Mahoney; on refreshments, Michael Rynne, chairman, John McGarry and John Murray; on notification and press, Edw. J. Flannery, Thomas Dorsey and Hugh McGowan.

Protection Lodge, 43, A. B. S.

Taking of Religious Census in Lowell Will Require Four Months

The chief subject of discussion at a meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches held last night at the Ministry-at-Large was the religious census. The work of taking the census will begin this week. There will be 20 census takers and it is estimated that it will take them four months to finish the job. The estimated expense is $5000 which is borne by the Bible society. The policy is to get, in each case, throughout the canvass, an expression of religious preference, if possible. In cases where families or individuals are not connected with any church. Where it is found impossible to secure such expression, the report is made "no preference."

The following committee was appointed to receive and distribute the reports of the canvassers: Rev. J. M. Kyle, chairman; Rev. W. H. McLean, Mr. Harvey E. Greene, Rev. Appleton Grannis and Rev. A. R. Dills.

Prior to the opening of the census question there were various reports of committees, one of the most interesting being the report on the work of the federation playground for the season, given by Rev. C. T. Billings, who read the report turned in by the supervisor, Miss Genevieve E. Lawrence.

The average daily attendance at the playground for the season was 27 and the cost of running the playground, irrespective of the salary paid the teacher, was very small.

FEW AIRMEN IN CIVIL LIFE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In the event of war it is doubtful whether a score of men could be found in civil life in this country who could be utilized by the army in aeroplane work, is the opinion of Brig. Gen. George S. Scriven, chief signal officer, in charge of the army aviation corps.

In calling attention to what he considers a critical situation, Gen. Scriven declared yesterday that the number of civilians who have heretofore undertaken to fly heavier-than-air machines for pleasure, sport or money-making is fast diminishing. "The army must look to itself and to the men of the organized militia," he said, "to supply a reasonable number of officers for military aviation, in case of necessity."

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty-Seekers

C. M. P.: The neck should receive similar attention to that given the complexion, so color and texture of skin will be the same. A yellow neck and a white face give a discordant effect. I advise using for both neck and complexion, the treatment recommended to "Monica."

F. M.: First, stop scowling, if you would get rid of the lines between the eyes. The best application for such lines, and all wrinkles, is a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint. Bathe the face in this daily until entirely relieved.

Monica: You hardly need such a list of cosmetics as you mention. Ordinary mercolized wax will help you more than any or all of them. It will gradually absorb the withered, discolored complexion and you will soon have a new, youthful and healthy-looking skin. You needn't get more than an ounce of the wax, which will cost you little at any druggist's. Apply nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—Woman's Realm.

BOXING, GOLF AND ATHLETICS

FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Arrangements Being Made in All Countries for the 1916 Meet—American Prospects Good

NEW YORK, Sept. 22—Although three years will elapse before the sixth revival of the Olympic games to be held at Berlin during the summer of 1916, the meet has already assumed proportions far surpassing any previous struggle for world's amateur track and field championships. The games, their preliminaries and preparation are topics of national and international comment and discussion throughout the old and new world. In the midst of these preparations the United States athletic authorities continue to lead the way. American prospects for the 1916 Olympic games are brighter than at any time since the revival of this athletic classic, owing to the work of the new "International Athletic Federation" just organized at Berlin by delegates from sixteen leading athletic countries of the world.

As a controlling international authority for amateur track and field sports its suggestions to the Olympic games committee will carry great weight. The proposed I. A. F. standard program of track and field events is made up almost entirely of events on the programs of American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American athletes are accustomed. The victory of the American views at the congress German sport critics ascribe to the fact that the events proposed by the United States are practiced everywhere and are devoid of freakishness; the superiority of the results produced under the American rules and in no small measure to the ability of the American delegates and the prestige of American athletes.

It was the concensus of opinion among the delegates that the American representatives of the Amateur Athletic union were by far the best versed in the theory and technique of athletics. When they advocated changes in the rules they advanced excellent reasons in support of their contention and won many victories and supporters to their ideas. Some of the rules advocated at the suggestion of the United States delegates were: Toeboard circles for the shotput; penalties for false starts, and a rule to prevent drawing for several entrants all representing one country in preliminary heats of races. On a few points American ideas were rejected, as, for instance in adopting a 16-pound shot made of iron instead of the smaller American lead shot, and in providing for a dug-out take-off for the broad jump, against the United States argument that the take-off joist sunk flush with the ground was far safer.

Fund of $500,000

While the International Athletic federation was smoothing out wrinkles in the program to be offered as a model for the Berlin games, the Olympic controversy that has held the attention of English athletic followers since the Stockholm meet of a year ago attained fresh prominence. The proposal to raise a fund of $500,000 rather staggered the average subject of George V. Although there were few early subscribers to the fund there were hundreds of inquiries as to what was to be done with enormous sum of money.

The Duke of Westminster in a public letter calls attention to the long list of sporting trophies and championships which England lost during the past fifteen years. He wrote:

"Polo, America; racquets, America; yachting, America; lawn tennis (singles), New Zealand; lawn tennis (Davis cup), America; court tennis, America (Jay Gould); boxing, America-France; billiards (English), Australia; swimming, America-Australia; rugby-football, South Africa-New Zealand; lacrosse, Canada; cycling, France-Germany; trotting horse, America; horse jumping, France-Russia; fencing, France; shooting (King's prize), Canada; skating, Sweden; track and field athletics, America.

"This is a tale of national disaster. Is England to do nothing to recover her ancient supremacy as the mother of sport? The king is both a man of business and a sportsman. As Prince of Wales on a memorable occasion, his momentous 'Wake up England' electrified an empire and gave an immense stimulus to commerce and industry. As our sovereign he now bids Britain to 'wake up' in sport and hopes that every effort will be made to ensure that the United Kingdom is represented by its best athletes at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1916. We are in honor bound to go forward and do our level best to restore the lost prestige of a great sporting nation. But victory is efficient organization and training, and both cost money.

"I confidently appeal to my fellow sportsmen to help me in getting the $500,000, for which a national appeal was made by Lord Grey, Lord Harris, Lord Rothschild, Lord Roberts, Lord Strathcona and myself as quickly as possible."

California Tennis Players

A surprise which was no part of the official reception was sprung on the California tennis players who toured the east this summer when they returned to their native state recently. Evidently several ambitious youngsters had been practicing with the racquet all summer and the home comers received a distinct shock in the California state championship tournament. In the doubles Maurice E. McLoughlin, paired with Wickham Havens, was defeated in three straight sets by B. H. Botkin and C. E. Foley. Clarence J. Griffin, winner of the western singles championship, was eliminated by Norman Ambrose, an unranked player, in two sets. Another upset came when Griffin and John R. Strachan, who played McLoughlin and Bundy at Newport for the United States double title, were defeated by W. E. Johnston and E. Pottrell in three straight sets.

Challenge for Polo Cup

The impression is growing in national polo circles that a challenge for the polo cup will be received from the Hurlingham club of England before the time limit expires on Jan. 1. Lord Ashby St. Ledgers is back of the latest project to recover the trophy and has tentatively selected six players and a string of ponies. If the challenge conforms to the cup playing rules it will be accepted, according to a prominent official of the American Polo association. With competitions scheduled for the America's Davis and polo cups, 1914 would appear to be securing a flying start in international sport figures.

"TILLIE" SHAFER, SPEEDY 3D SACKER OF GIANTS, IS PLAYING FAST GAME

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—"Tillie" Shafer, the speedy Giant outfielder, is playing a hard game at the third bag for the McGrawites. Comparison with Baker, the third sacker of the Athletics, shows the Giant not as hard a hitter, but Shafer is just as fast in fielding and as speedy on bases. He is batting near the .300 mark.

SLANDER OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS

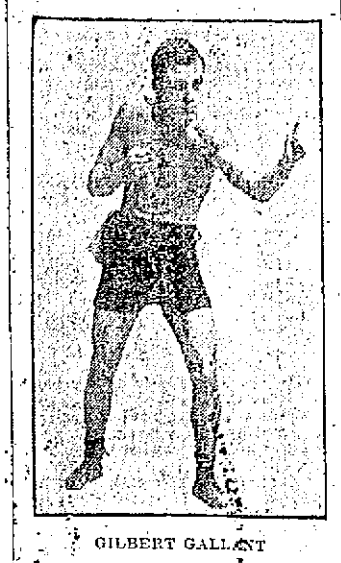

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—If investigation shows that Perley Horne, superintendent of the Kamehameha school at Honolulu, actually said as alleged that American soldiers in the island contribute to the delinquency to the native girls, Mrs. Russell M. MacLennan, president of the Society for the Protection of the Dignity and Honor of the Uniform of the United States wants the war department to withdraw Lieut. George E. Turner, on duty at the school as military instructor.

Mrs. MacLennan has protested to the war department against what she terms the slander of American soldiers by Supt Horne. She bases her protest on information furnished by Sergeant Disler of the second infantry at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, and says that Hawaiian youth should not receive military instruction if disrespect for women is a distinguishing characteristic of the American soldier.

GALLANT, IDEAL BOXER

CHELSEA BOY DOES NOT USE TOBACCO OR LIQUOR AND ALWAYS RUSHES HOME WITH BACON

Gilbert Gallant, who meets Joe Phillips at the L. A. club Friday night, is one of the most popular boxers in New England. "Gil," as he is called by his many friends does not use tobacco or liquor in any way. Unlike the majority of boxers Gallant has but one thought and that is home. After each engagement Gallant brings his earnings home and gives the greater portion of it to his mother. As a tribute to his popularity in Boston two special cars have been chartered by his friends to accompany him to Lowell Friday evening. Gallant intends putting in a strenuous year and has hopes of reaching the top of the lightweight class. He has been resting in the country for a month and is already in excellent condition for Friday evening. Phillips is liable to upset Gallant's fondest hopes of a victory. This boy formerly claimed Providence as his home but of late has been located at Cleveland. He has had remarkable success in his tour of the middle west and the south. As he has seen Gallant perform he feels sure he can secure a decisive win over him. In speaking of the bout Boston sport writers say it should be one of the best lightweight bouts of the season. Gardiner Brooks is daily training for his bout with Young Baldwin. Brooks is one of the cleverest boys of his weight in New England and looks to have a bright future ahead of him.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Rube DeGroff has made himself nearly as popular in Hartford as he is in Lowell. Rube's antics are something new on a ball park down this way.

Manager Clarkin informed the writer that he does not expect to lose a player by draft this year. Curry, however, will be sold, in all probability. The Hartford second sacker is not anxious to continue in the city where he was recently fined $200 for assault and battery. Curry is a hard player for a manager to handle but is a great man at second.

The urchins here follow the Lowell players around the streets with eyes and mouths wide open. The same curiosity, though not so openly displayed, is shown by the adults apparently. Hartford fans did not believe it possible for Lowell to even win two games.

Kelliher, Hartford's first baseman, comes from Washington, D. C., and is a typical hotheaded Southerner. Yesterday a cousin of Kelliher who had come on from New York to see Saturday's game, remarked that he considered Lowell to be the stronger team and his kinsman flew into a rage. Kelliher heaped abuse upon his cousin for several minutes until his head cooled and then his apologies were just as profuse as his harangue had been abusive.

Hoey has been playing baseball for nearly twenty years. His hair is quite gray around the temples and he is not as slight as when he was with the Red Sox. Hoey's drop to the minors was occasioned by throwing his arm out while with Boston. He has played great ball for Hartford this year.

1000 PUPILS SUSPENDED

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 23.—One thousand pupils of three Syracuse High schools were indefinitely suspended late yesterday following a strike yesterday morning as a protest against new hours of study, 9 o'clock in the morning to 2.30 in the afternoon.

The striking pupils, many of whom were girls, escaped through windows and side doors, paraded the business streets and held indignation meetings.

At the technical high school one boy attempted to address a crowd of strikers from the top of a barrel, but was pulled down by the police. The pupils demand a return to the old hours from 8.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m.

AUBREY DIRECTS TEAM

MANAGER GRAY IS CALLED HOME BY THE DEATH OF HIS BROTHER

(Over Sun's Special Wire)

HARTFORD, Sept. 23.—Manager Gray left the Lowell baseball headquarters here last night in response to a telegram from his family notifying him that his brother, Andrew, was near death's door and not expected to live through the night. Word came here this morning that he had passed away. Ever since the sad tidings were conveyed to the club gloom has been the predominant feature of the Lowell camp.

CAPT. AUBREY
In Charge of Lowell Team

Captain Aubrey will manage the team in today's Lowell-Hartford battle. The shortstop's word will be supreme until Manager Gray once more picks up the reins of command.

The players of both teams are confident of winning and a large crowd is expected to turn out to the fourth game. Weather indications point to an ideal baseball day.

LEATA J WINNER

California Mare Showed Class at Grand Circuit Meet in Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Leata J., a California mare, was second choice to Frank Bogash, Jr., in the Hotel Hartman pacing stake race that held the place of prominence on the program for the opening day of Columbus grand circuit racing, but she won in a five heat struggle, in which the sprinting through the stretch was a feature.

Several times this season these two pacers have met and yesterday's victory is the third for Leata J. In the second heat she did the final quarter in 29½ seconds and completed the next mile with a quarter in 28¼ seconds. Winning this heat gave her an advantage over Frank Bogash, Jr. They did not have rush enough to overtake Del Rey in the fourth heat but were fresher in the fifth, which Leata J. took by a sensational burst of speed. She was credited with pacing the last half in 1.00¾.

Directum I. was a pronounced favorite for the King pacing stake and won without trouble. Though the track was slow, he did the third and final heat in 2.04½, to keep clear of Walter Cochato and Branham Baughman.

Omar, purchased six weeks ago by Louisville, Ky., horsemen, made his first grand circuit appearance yesterday and disposed of Newzel, the first choice in the 2.11 trot. Newzel won the first two heats, with Omar close up. In the third heat the result was reversed, and Omar did not have much trouble in taking the next two.

Cleo B. was almost overlooked in a field of 15 2.15 pacers, of which Princess Margaret was thought to be the best. The first two miles were won handily by Cleo B. The third heat went to Zanzibar and then the race went over for resumption today.

62 MILES IN RAIN

Young Man Arrives in Boston After a Trip of Eleven Hundred Miles

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Drenched to the skin and covered with mud collected from Massachusetts roads, Clarence J. Tinker, divinity student at Cambridge, socialist and vegetarian, wearily pedaled along Tremont street last night on an 11-year-old bicycle, at the end of a journey that began in Michigan, 1100 miles away, 15 days ago.

The last 62 miles of his trip were made through pouring rain over soggy country roads.

Tinker, who is only 24 years old, has crossed the state of Michigan on a wheel many times and once made a 1000-mile excursion into Canada. He left his home in Fenton, Mich., Sept. 8 and when he reached Boston last night had become a confirmed vegetarian on the strength of the five pounds he had gained on a non-meat diet during the last two weeks. His trip cost him just $31.

MILLS SHOULD REWARD MERIT

If the managers of the Lowell mills would arouse the ambition and even the enthusiasm of their employes, there is just one way of doing it and that is to recognize and reward merit.

If they find a man doing good work and know that from his past record in regard to his devotion to the company's interests, his skill in doing his work, his ability to manage and control men, he is competent to be placed at the head of a department, they make a very grave blunder when they overlook such a man in filling any vacancy for which he is eligible. To be ignored in such a case chills his ambition and his enthusiasm. It demonstrates to him that good work is not appreciated by his employers or the officials over him and that it is useless for him to tax his energies unnecessarily in the company's interests. The habit of drawing upon the relatives of prominent officials of a company to fill vacancies and take charge of men who have been in the business for a generation, is one of the worst that could be adopted by the management of any mill. It has done incalculable harm to some mills we could mention here in Lowell. It has caused many of the operatives to drift along without any hope of promotion and to avoid any effort to improve. Next to this in its injurious effects is the action of a boss who when appointed to a position must gather around him a lot of men "from his own home," making places for them by discharging men who are by long odds their superiors.

But for the conviction that it is useless to seek advancement in the mills a far greater number of operatives would have taken up special courses at the Textile evening school. We have recently stated that the state should assume the entire expense of supporting the Textile school and we believe so because the school has not filled the original design of rapidly increasing the skilled help in our mills. How, it may be asked, can the school benefit the operatives who do not attend it? That they do not attend in greater numbers, we believe is due to the feeling that the increased skill attained will not bring any reward in the mills, that the man who has acquired more expert knowledge through study at the Textile school will be allowed to plod along in the same old rut and at the same rate of wages. The operatives who are cut off from all hope of promotion and who have nothing whatever to look forward to except the weekly wage are a very dull and spiritless lot. They have no enthusiasm in their work. They are working in a blind alley or cul de sac, as it were, from which they cannot hope to escape. It is a very short-sighted policy for the management of any mill to place a single operative in any such position. Better have them inspired with the hope of advancement, striving for something that will lift them to a higher position or at least increase their earning power.

It is only by rewarding merit that the mills can increase their skilled help without going outside. Had the local mills pursued this policy in past years, they would not have found it necessary to hire such a large number of the unskilled. It would have been better for them to have trained their own operatives than to have increased the number of hands and reduced alike the standard of skill and the rate of wages.

More than three-fourths of the operatives of every mill in Lowell are capable of great improvement along the lines of their various avocations. Their possibilities are allowed to lie dormant and uncultivated as a result of the failure of the mill men to reward merit by higher wages or promotion.

Where the only incentive is the pay envelope, there is a great loss of energy and of interest that would otherwise be exerted for the company. Until mill men show the operatives that merit will count, that the man who takes up special courses at the Textile school may reasonably expect some reward for his labor, there will be little improvement as a result of self-education after working hours. The mill officials should offer special inducement to operatives to take the evening courses at the Textile school and thus bring out some of their latent ability that otherwise can never be made applicable in actual work.

ABOLISH THE CROSSINGS

When any representative of the Boston and Maine company or any other company makes a statement that the people of Lowell do not want the grade crossing at Middlesex street abolished, he is simply stating an untruth, that is a libel upon Lowell and her people. The business men of Lowell are seriously handicapped by delay at the crossings on Middlesex and Fletcher streets.

Very often when the gates are down, as many as two score of teams and half a dozen automobiles are waiting on either side for an opportunity to pass. If the time of men and horses thus lost were computed for an entire day, it would prove a very considerable factor and would show the absurdity of the statement made that there is no public demand for the abolition of that crossing. There is now and always has been a strong public demand for the removal of the crossing at the depot.

This crossing is also a serious interference with the car service. The car lines that pass the depot can never keep to their time schedule on account of being held up at the crossing. The Highland line has always been a great annoyance because of the delays at the two crossings mentioned. The cars which take the Middlesex street crossing only are not quite so bad but sometimes their delays are also very aggravating. The danger of accidents at these crossings is another factor that should be considered because chauffeurs and the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles have always to exercise the greatest care lest they should be caught on the tracks when the gates go down.

The entire people of Lowell will endorse the action of the municipal council in pushing the matter of removing all the dangerous grade crossings in the city. The two mentioned are the worst and should be the next to be abolished. It is time that the business men of Lowell as well as the pedestrians who have to pass these crossings several times a day, should be protected against the danger and delay to which they are thus daily exposed.

GREATER RECIPROCITY COMING

There is some apprehension lest a trade war should be declared against the United States as a result of the termination of the trade agreements entered into with other countries by Ex-President Taft. To avert any rupture of this kind in our trade relations with other nations congress has decided to enact a provision that the existing trade agreements shall remain in force for four months after the new law takes effect. The natural result of the new tariff should be more favorable to the foreign nations; but the new law has a provision for penalty rates against any nation which discriminates against the United States. Certain amendments to the tariff law would authorize the president to impose higher duties on coffee, tea, fish, chinaware, silks, laces, jewelry, sugar, and many other items coming from countries not treating the United States as a favored nation on tariff duties.

The action proposed will avert the danger of any disturbance of our trade relations with other nations until new and in all probability more reciprocal agreements shall have been arranged under the new law.

The prospect is, that there will be larger measures of reciprocity between this and other countries and that these will redound to the general good of the entire nation.

THE SOVEREIGN PEOPLE

Today the voters have an opportunity to show their judgment in the selection of candidates to represent them in office. Upon the result will depend largely whether we shall have good men or bad, honest and capable or the reverse. The people shoulder a great responsibility in the discharge of their duties as citizens but unfortunately far too few of them realize to what an extent the sovereignty lies in their hands when they go to the polls.

In this country the sovereignty rests with the people and when certain agitators charge that trusts and combines rule the country, they imply that the people do not do their duty. The people have the power if they only exercise it but the great trouble is that they undervalue this power and fail to use it aright. The president of the United States, the senate and house of representatives have certain powers under the constitution but such powers are delegated by the people. The constitution itself, which is framed to protect the rights and liberties of the people, can be overturned, annulled or amended by the sovereign people by following the proper legal course.

When the people go to the polls to cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice and to pass upon the various questions submitted to them, they exercise the portion of the sovereignty vested in their hands. Thus they have the power that in other governments is exercised by kings and emperors. With this fact in mind how can a man be mean enough to sell his vote for beer, for money or any consideration whatsoever. The man who does this does not deserve the right of sovereign citizenship. He should be disfranchised for life.

The British unionists are endeavoring to embroil Ireland in trouble that will cause the laborites to withdraw their support from the liberal party. They think they have succeeded and have already spread the report that there will be a general election before home rule can be granted. The wish is father to the thought. The liberals are not likely to be moved by the threats of the Ulster followers of Sir Edward Carson.

Seen and Heard

A Massachusetts minister was making his first visit to Kentucky several years ago. He had to spend the night in a small mountain town where clouds and moonshine still abounded. Engaging in conversation with one of the natives, he said:

"My friend, this is a very bibulous state, I hear."

"Lord!" replied the man, "there hain't 25 bibles in all Kentucky."—Exchange.

A pair of local lady killers," says "The Man About Town" in the Salem News, "met their match the other evening in Town House square, when they made advances on two of the show girls who were playing in a local theatre, and the result was a scream to the few who happened to be "in" on the incident. The young man in question evidently spotted out the girls as they came along and took them for strangers. In this they were right, of course, but if they thought the girls fell prey to their charming manners (in their own minds), they were evidently mistaken. However, they succeeded in engaging the girls in conversation for a minute or so and then onlookers noticed that the party suddenly broke up, the young men beating a hasty retreat in one direction, while the girls went along about their business and with a smile on their countenances. It seems that no sooner had the youths engaged the girls in conversation than one of the latter innocently inquired where they could find a good eating place—and then the party broke up.

Ex-Senator Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, Me., is responsible for this story:

"I was in a small country store in my native state when an old lady, accompanied by a gawky-looking girl of about 15, came in and asked the proprietor to show her some cheap calico. She pulled one piece one way, then another, wetting it meantime and rubbing it with her fingers to ascertain if the colors were fast. She apparently was unable to satisfy herself regarding it.

"Finally she produced a small pair of scissors and snipped off a tiny piece, which she handed to the young girl.

"'Here, Emma,' she said, 'you chew on that an' see if it fades away.'

"Emma put the sample into her mouth and with the most serious expression imaginable went to work."

THE BEGGAR

He was a weary cripple who stopped
me in the street;
He leaned upon his crutches to rest
his weary feet,
And as I bought his pencils I saw his
thankful smile,
And where the crowd surged past us
I pause a little while.

"And are you never weary," I asked,
"of your fate,
And do you never envy the wealthy
and great?"
"Is life still worth the effort, and can
you gladly, too,
Still thank your God for favors which
He bestows on you?"

He smiled and then he answered:
"There stands in yonder square
A blind man who is begging of people
passing there;
He never sees their faces, but there,
day after day,
He bravely stands with outstretched hands to them that pass, that way.

"I see the sky above me; I see the children 'an'
I see the world and wonder at things
which men have done,
And when the day is ended there is a quiet place
Where I can see the gladness in some one's eager face.

"Sometimes I feel the burden and
sometimes I complain,
Then, seeing her who loves me, my hopes return again."
He hobbled on; I watched him with
painful steps depart;
He took my pennies with him and left
a thankful heart.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

THE SLIT SKIRTS

Houston Post: A Houston man just returned from New York says he saw quite a number of slashed skirts on Broadway, but he always turned his head the other way. However, it is not likely that this form of lying will become prevalent in Houston, and we still hope to maintain the old town's prestige as the Citadel of Truth.

GAZING AT THAW

Brockton Times: In court at Littleton, with Thaw seated at the counsel table, one girl, who is described as having blue eyes and pink cheeks, stood on tiptoe for five full minutes and gazed enraptured at the back of Thaw's head. She is no doubt treading a golden cloud of romance so high that she can't get back to dishwater and duty for fully a week.

DIDN'T FILE RETURNS

Manchester Union: One hundred and sixty-seven corporations have been restrained by the supreme court of Massachusetts from doing a business until they comply with the statutes requiring the filing of returns. Corporations, in common with individuals, should always conduct themselves with strict regard for the statutes.

LAW WILL BE REVISED

Lawrence Eagle: J. P. S. Mahoney, who was chairman of the protest meeting at city hall Friday evening, expressed the case in a nut shell when he stated that the new child labor law would never have been passed had it been given sufficient notoriety. "Instead of waiting for the recess committee to investigate conditions in the cities they passed the law first and then sent the committee out to investigate," he said.

The law, however, has been passed and is being enforced. Under the conditions the only course to pursue is that adopted by Lawrence and Lowell in protesting against it and insisting that the law be revised by the next legislature. The candidates for representative in nearly all the textile cities of the state understand the situation pretty clearly and it is safe to say that there will be little delay in taking action after the session opens.

HALF FARE TO STAND

Worcester Post: A certain German street car line operating between cities in Rhenish Prussia charges only about half the regular passenger rates to those who stand. The fare from Elberfeld to Werden, a distance of about 10 miles, is 30 cents for those having seats and 17 cents for those standing. The round rate costs 50 cents if the passenger has a seat, while those who remain standing pay only 25 cents. The trip from Elberfeld to Werden takes one hour and 50 minutes.

FOREST NOTES

Washington stands first in lumber production, with Louisiana second.

It is said that 90,000,000 broom handles are used annually in the United States; one for each man, woman and child.

The lands burned over during the terrible fires on the Idaho national forests in 1910 are now largely covered with a thick growth of young tree seedlings, by natural reseeding.

Manufacturers of artificial limbs are seeking substitutes for English willow used because of its combined lightness and strength. It is claimed that the Port Orford cedar of the Pacific coast will prove equally serviceable.

In the open yellow pine forests of Washington and Oregon a collapsible plow is being used in digging fire lines to stop surface fires. The plow can be dismantled and folded into a compact form, so that it can be packed on horseback, and weighs only 40 pounds. When in use, one man with a horse can do the work of 20 or more men working with shovels.

LOWELL MAN ARRESTED

CHARGED WITH BREAKING AND ENTERING HOUSE AT SALISBURY —HIS PLEADED GUILTY

AMESBURY, Sept. 23.—Adolphus Trombley, claiming Lowell as his home, was held in $500 in the district court yesterday on a complaint charging breaking and entering. Philip Helfrich, a hotel proprietor at Salisbury beach, upon returning Saturday evening to a cottage rented by him since the fire, found a window broken and the gas meter robbed. Trombley was found concealed beneath a bed, it was claimed. He pleaded guilty.

TWO PRISONERS ESCAPED

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 23.—Two prisoners escaped from the detention room at the East Cambridge court house yesterday by wrenching loose the iron grating over one of the windows. The fugitives, Michael Murphy and Alexander D. Morrison, had just been sentenced to short terms at the state farm for minor offences. Three other prisoners refused to take advantage of the chance to escape and reported the matter to the sheriff.

DAMAGE BY RAIN

Manchester Visited by Worst Storm in History—Cellars Flooded

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 23.—With a rainfall yesterday of two inches between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. Manchester experienced one of the fiercest rainstorms in its history. The basements of both business houses and dwelling houses were flooded because of the inability of the sewers to carry off the vast volume of water. Much damage was done in West Manchester by flooded cellars and washouts in the roadbeds.

Nearly all of the hill streets, Amory, Putnam, Schuyler and Sullivan streets, are washed out to a great extent and large piles of sand and even big rocks are lying about on North Main street, at the foot of the respective hills. At Wayne and North Main, the crossing was covered with crushed stones torn from the Wayne street roadbed. The same is true at Sullivan and North Main. On this hill, large cobble stones have been rent from the gutters and rolled down to North Main street, where they lay on the street car tracks until removed by a gang of men in the employ of the city and street carmen.

Cellars from Putnam street to Amery on North Main are flooded on account of the small capacity of the sewers on this street. At one time during the shower, Doucet's drug store, Wayne and North Main, was flooded with 10 inches of water, and bottles, boxes and other material stores in the cellar were knocked from their places.

St. Andrew's church rectory, at North Main and Conant streets, had 2½ feet of water in the cellar. Two new sewers at North Main and Conant, back streets, which were completed Saturday, were severely damaged. The water loosened some of the fresh cement work and the sewers will have to be rebuilt.

The Corporation back street, located across from the Fire King engine house on North Main street, was torn up more than any other street in the vicinity. A hole large enough to engulf a horse was gullied out, and to prevent accidents, the corporation officials ordered that the street be closed to travel. The "Flats" in McGregorville resembled a huge lake when the heavy rain had ceased and not a few houses in the "Flats" were flooded with several feet of water. The water in some of the houses was deep enough to drown a person of moderate height, if the person was standing.

Lake Massabesic showed a gain of two inches and is reported rising, as are the Piscataquog and Merrimac rivers.

TO PREVENT TRADE WAR

PRESIDENT WILSON TO NEGOTIATE NEW TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Apprehension lest the democratic tariff bill lead foreign nations to impose tariff penalties against the United States as soon as the new law goes into effect caused administration and senate leaders yesterday to plan the introduction of a joint resolution in congress making specific provision for the continuation of existing relations with all countries until President Wilson has time to negotiate new trade agreements.

The seriousness of the situation that will confront the administration was impressed upon Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee yesterday by state department officials.

It was pointed out that the trade relations established by President Taft's proclamations under the Payne-Aldrich law of 1909 would terminate as soon as the new law became effective and that the United States then would face the possibility of having higher tariff rates applied against its exports by many countries.

While the tariff law would give the president authority to negotiate trade and reciprocity treaties, it would also require him to apply special penalty rates against any countries discriminating against the United States.

To prevent the possibility of trade war the state department is now drafting a joint resolution which will provide that existing relations shall continue for four months.

VOTING AT BILLERICA

INTEREST SHOWN BY BOTH REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PARTIES

The polls at both precincts 1 and 2 at Billerica opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon and will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight. The voting early this afternoon was not very heavy but a large vote is expected this evening after the closing of the mills. Considerable interest is shown by both the democrat and republican parties. The town democrats will turn out in large numbers for the Billerica candidate for representative as they feel that they have not been used right by the democrats of ward nine of this city who also have a candidate in the field this year. Everett S. Benton, republican candidate for governor visited the town during the past week and has made many friends among the republicans there and it is believed that he will receive a much greater number of votes than his opponent for the republican nomination.

Dr. George T. O'Donnell, who has been one of the prominent medical doctors in North Billerica for several years is soon to remove to Waltham.

PETERS TAKES OFFICE

DIDN'T KILL GIRL

Man Who Confessed to Murder Now Makes a General Denial

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—Repudiating his statements made to the police Sunday and yesterday, Jacob Wolfsohn yesterday afternoon denied that he was guilty of the murder of Anna Catherine Schumacher in the cemetery at Rochester, N. Y., four years ago. When closely questioned by Dist.-Atty. Barrett of Rochester yesterday afternoon, Wolfsohn declared that he had confessed to the murder because he wanted to die and could not bring himself to commit suicide.

"I want to take back my confession. It is not true that I killed the girl and I can prove my innocence," he exclaimed hysterically. "You can hang me or do whatever you want, but I do not want to die with the record of a murderer.

"My life has been an unhappy one," continued Wolfsohn. "I cannot return to Russia because I left there to escape military service. My wife divorced me here. I hoped to end my troubles by being electrocuted."

District Attorney Barrett before leaving last night for Rochester said he would make further investigations before determining whether or not he would ask for requisition for Wolfsohn.

"I am not yet satisfied that he is the murderer," said the district attorney.

Mr. Barrett will endeavor to find Wolfsohn's former wife in New York city to learn whether he had ever made a confession of the crime to her.

Wolfsohn will be given a hearing here Wednesday on the larceny charge for which he was in custody when he made his first confession late Saturday night.

GLYNN GOVERNOR OF N.Y.

Sulzer's Counsel Announces That Impeached Official Will Give Up Office Pending Trial

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—When the high court for the trial by impeachment of Governor Sulzer was called to order today his attorneys were prepared to exhaust the last of their legal ammunition to prevent the story of his alleged misuse of campaign contributions from being told on the witness stand.

Defeated yesterday by a vote of 51 to 1 on the motion for dismissal of the impeachment on the ground of its unconstitutionality, the governor's counsel came out today to offer a motion to strike out the three articles of the impeachment charging him with filing a false statement of campaign contributions and with the use of funds for speculation in Wall street.

The motion was to be presented by Judge Chas. Herrick, who was prepared to argue that the alleged offenses were not impeachable on the ground they were committed before the governor was sworn into office.

Former Senator Edgar Brackett was expected to reply in behalf of the assembly managers. His brief, which has already been made public, holds in substance that the acts of a candidate for political office during a campaign and after he has become an officeholder are so intimately connected with the actual holding of the office as to be inseparable.

Practically the entire day it was believed would be consumed in argument but it was hoped that the decision of the court in the matter would be rendered before adjournment. Whether affirmative or negative, the decision should clear the decks for beginning the actual trial of the case tomorrow unless something unforeseen arises.

In the affirmative there will still be two articles of impeachment to which Mr. Sulzer will have to answer before the bar of the high court, as there has been no hint from counsel that the correctability of the latter charges would be attacked. Conviction on any one article might result in removal.

E. L. Richards, of counsel for the managers, has been selected to make the opening address outlining the evidence to be presented. The taking of testimony will follow immediately.

The court being formally opened by Presiding Judge Cullen said:

"The court having overruled the motion of the respondent to dismiss the articles of impeachment on the ground that the assembly had no right to prefer the charges at an extraordinary session it now becomes incumbent upon the respondent to make answer to the charges."

Sulzer Renounces Claims

Judge Herrick, chief counsel for Governor Sulzer then took the floor and announced that in view of the fact that the court had refused to dismiss the proceedings he would state that the governor would renounce his claim to the right to exercise the functions of governor pending the termination of the trial.

"When these articles of impeachment were first presented," said Judge Herrick, the governor was advised that there was doubt about the legality of the proceedings and for that reason he declined to step down from his office. Since then the recent decision of Supreme Court Justice Hasbrook ruling that he had not the right to pardon a prisoner he has ceased to exercise any of the functions of his office. Governor Sulzer will perform no functions of governor in the future pending the termination of this trial."

A few minutes after the court convened Judge Herrick began the reading of his brief. He took the grounds that the acts alleged in the first, second and sixth counts of the impeachment antedated Mr. Sulzer's assumption of the governorship and he asked that they be dismissed. Judge Vann of Gov. Sulzer's counsel being absent on account of sickness, his brief was read by Senator Hinman.

The brief, which touched upon the absence of constitutional definition of impeachable offenses discussed the power of the legislature to pass an act of limitation applying to both civil and criminal actions based on the lapse of time. Such an act, many of which have been passed, Judge Vann held, would be binding upon all courts, including the court of impeachment. Conceding the power of the legislature to limit the action of the court in convicting and removing from office, the brief declared that such limitation must be according to the rules of reason.

SULZER AGAIN DEFEATED—HIGH COURT OF IMPEACHMENT OVERRULED HIS MOTION

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Gov. William Sulzer must go to trial. This was decided by the high court of impeachment last night, when, by a vote of 51 to 1, its members overruled the motion of the governor's counsel to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that he was unconstitutionally impeached by the assembly, because that body was in extra session when the impeachment was brought.

Senator Gottfried H. Wendle of Buffalo, democrat, an ardent supporter of the governor, cast the solitary nay. Four senators and Judge Gray were absent.

RETURNED TO WORK

MORE BOSTON SHOP OWNERS MET DEMANDS OF CLOAK AND SKIRT MAKERS

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A dozen additional small shops settled with Cloak and Skirt Makers' union yesterday and their hands returned to work. During the day all the shops where strikes had been called were picketed. At only one place was an effort made to open up with non-union help.

Many West End employers asked for police protection yesterday. There was no excitement in that vicinity, however, in the Kneeland-Washington streets district E. B. Hollander, a striker, but not a picket, was hurt. He claims that he was assaulted with a club by a non-striking employe of a shop in that section.

At the meeting of the strikers yesterday afternoon and of the entire membership of the union last night, it was voted that every boss affected by the strike be compelled to sign a new agreement to continue until September of next year, and to give a bond that he will live up to it.

The agreement is composed of 18 articles, in the main identical with those in the agreement made last March.

About 20 of the girl strikers voted last night that they would not return to work at their shops until the end of the week, although their bosses were willing to settle.

TALKS CURRENCY

Samuel Untermyer Continues His Discussion of the Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—With prospects of extended discussion on the administration currency bill the senate banking committee today continued to hear Samuel Untermyer discuss the measure. Senators were of the opinion that a month will pass before the bill will be brought into the senate.

Mr. Untermyer, while endorsing the general principles of the bill, suggested a number of amendments which he thought would strengthen it.

Many of these provided for the curbing by Mr. Untermyer of members of the committee.

DYNAMITE LOST

Found on the Acton Tracks in Nashua Yesterday

A quantity of dynamite was found laying on the Acton tracks in Nashua by one John Jones. The latter turned the explosive over to James Shumway, who in turn, having a knowledge of its powers, turned it over to police headquarters, where it was locked up in cell No. 1, pending an investigation. It is believed that the explosive was carelessly left there by some workmen doing blasting. Later the cell containing the dynamite was removed to the powder house of Gen. Charles W. Stevens at his lease, where it will be held as evidence. Everyone who handled the stuff picked his steps with extreme care, perhaps with a mental vision of himself being blown up to the clouds, the pieces gathered up in baskets on his return to earth and a nice funeral procession later.

INJURIES WERE FATAL

MAN STRUCK BY BELT AT WATERHEAD MILL DIED LAST NIGHT AT LOWELL HOSPITAL

Will Zuzlewski, aged 28 years, who was injured by a flying belt at the Waterhead mill Saturday forenoon died last night at the Lowell hospital where he was removed shortly after the accident.

An autopsy was performed later by Assistant Medical Examiner Fr. T. E. Smith, who found that death was caused as a result of a hemorrhage from laceration of the liver. The body was today removed to the late residence, 12 Bert's court.

OLDEST CONVICT PARDONED

John Tabon Has Been in Ohio Prison 18 Years—Once Refused Conditional Freedom

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—After spending practically all of his life since he attained to manhood within the penitentiary walls, John Tabon, the oldest convict in the Ohio penitentiary, was pardoned yesterday by Gov. Cox. Tabon has been a prisoner for 18 years.

He was convicted of murder in Delaware county in 1870 and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now 66. During the administration of Gov. Andrew L. Harris, a pardon was offered to Tabon upon the conditions that he become an inmate of the state soldiers' home at Sandusky.

He refused the pardon at that time, declaring that he "would as soon be in one prison as another."

The distance in a direct line is between 550 and 600 miles. Garros has a world-wide reputation as an aviator having won some of the European long distance races in Europe, taken part in flying meets in many countries and made several altitude records.

TOOK WRONG BOX

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A man walked up to a red box on a pole at 125th street and Brook avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon with a letter in his hand. He opened the box, found no place for his letter and fooled around with the mechanism for a minute before he shut the box and went away.

Three minutes and thirteen seconds later three patrolmen, two motor cycle companies and two hook and ladder companies pulled up in front of the box looking for a fire.

A man who had seen the Gardener with the letter broke the news to the firemen gently. When they recovered they also went away.

EX-FIRE CHIEF LESHURE DEAD

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 23.—Abner D. Leshure, aged 81, inspector of buildings for many years, chief of the Springfield fire department and one of the best known veteran firemen in the state, died yesterday of pneumonia at 1716 North street.

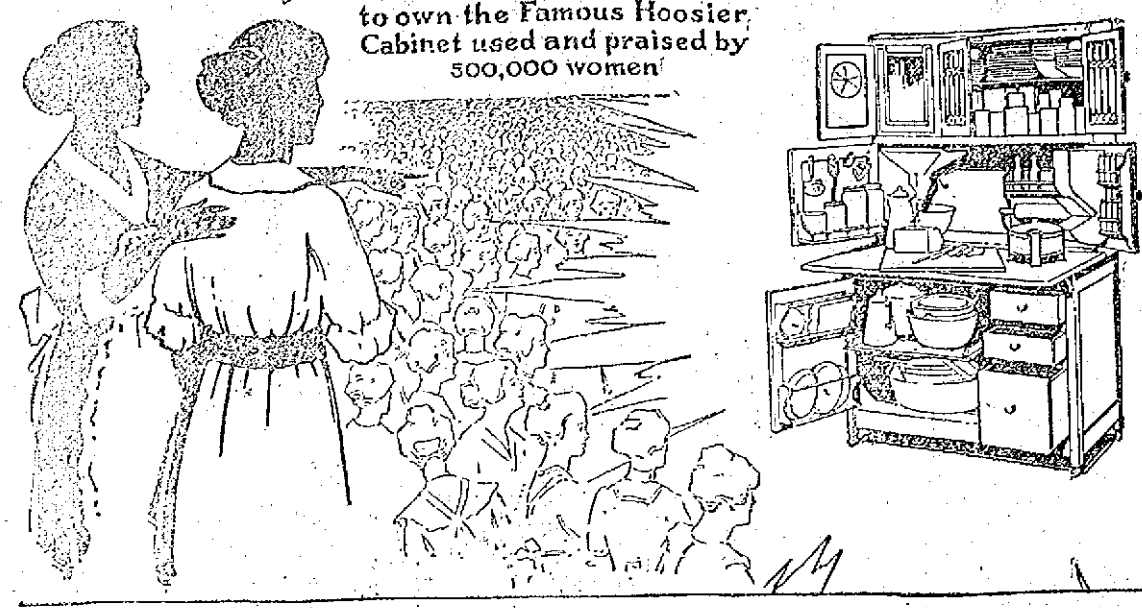

Ex-Chief Leshure was born in Worcester county, a son of John Leshure, a Frenchman. He served with the provincial troops in Canada during the war of 1812. Coming to Springfield, Young Leshure began his service as a fireman in 1843 as a member of Hose company No. 1.

BIG FIRE AT EAST BURRILLVILLE

ST. MARYS, Pa., Sept. 23.—Fire which burned several churches and public buildings and a number of residences and business houses in the business section of this city early today caused a loss estimated at $250,000. The fire started in the rear of a building on the west side of the public square and spread rapidly. Within a few hours the entire block was in ruins. Many persons were driven from their homes by the flames.

4 COWBOYS HERE

Making a Trip to Every State Capital — 20,000 Mile Tour

Four real "cowboys of the far northwest" are in Lowell today, having decided upon this city as one of the stopping places in the most remarkable horseback journey ever undertaken. The cowboys, for such they have been, are [illegible] all four originally hailed from Seattle, Washington. They are known as the Overland Westerners.

The trip which these four men are making is to be no less than 20,000 miles in length, and they will visit the principal cities in every state in the Union. The object of the long journey is that they have with them a horse of Arabian blood which they call Pinto, and which is a very remarkable animal. If this horse survives the long ordeal with the changes in climate, food, water and stable accommodations the Western Stockmen's association will fund the four plainsmen a check for $5,000, and they will have made the trip at a rate of $1 per mile.

The party left Olympia, Washington, on the first day of May, in the year 1912, and on June 1, 1915, if their plans carry, they will arrive in San Francisco, Cal., where the horse, Pinto, will be placed on exhibition during the big exposition. Of course, it will be a big thing for the stockmen if the horse makes the trip without accident. The four cowboys have already lost six horses through injury, lack of endurance, but Pinto has gained 50 pounds weight since starting and seems even more rugged and healthy than ever. It is a beautiful animal, and on the right side of its neck there is a white spot which bears a remarkable resemblance to a galloping buffalo, a sort of natural brand.

The four men have with them a black dog of considerable value which answers to the name of "Nip." "Nip" is very wise canine and an excellent watch dog, and he has made the long journey thus far with apparent enjoyment. He is very friendly unless someone attempts to molest the property of his masters, and then things happen. He will do just as he is told and when commanded by one of the men will remain beside the saddles and pack for hours in an attitude that in itself is a menace to one who would attempt to touch the property.

Naturally, the men have had many strange and interesting experiences on their long horseback ride. They crossed the Cascade Mountains at an altitude of 5,000 feet and through 30 miles of deep snow, high cliffs, over a trail filled with lurking dangers. In fording a river in Montana that is noted for the number and force of its whirlpools, they also took a great risk, the bridges over the stream having been destroyed.

They have ridden for several days in the pouring rain and will start on their journey again tomorrow. They will go as far as Augusta, Me., and will make that their turning point, returning from there southward. They have been through 25 states thus far, mostly in the northern portion of the country, and on the return will keep well to the south and middle parts. They have arranged their route so as to travel in the northern states in summer and in the southern states during the winter. They are a very friendly and attractive set of young men and made a decided hit with those whom they met. They have a wide knowledge of the conditions throughout the country and never lose an opportunity of adding to it.

THEFTS FROM THE MAILS

NIGHT WATCHMAN AT HAVERHILL POSTOFFICE AND R. F. D. MAIL CLERK AT MILLBURY SENTENCED

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Horace George, night watchman at the Haverhill postoffice and Arthur S. Crosby of Millbury, a railroad mail clerk, were sentenced today to 18 months' imprisonment for thefts from the mails. George was sent to the house of correction at Lawrence and Crosby to the Franklin county jail at Greenfield.

MAY BE RUNAWAY GIRL

MARSHAL OF NASHUA POLICE THINKS GIRL HELD FOR THEFT IS CONCORD ELOPER

Marshal Healey of Nashua is at present wondering whether or not the Pearl Lygne who is at present serving a sentence at Grassmere for theft, is really Ethel Curtis, a Concord runaway. The Curtis girl eloped with Ray Locke, a married man, who took her to the south. There he was arrested and convicted of a violation of the white slave law and is now serving a term in the federal prison.

Miss Lygne was at first placed on probation, and later released and sent to Grassmere. She bears a striking resemblance to a photograph of a Concord girl, and the authorities of the capital city will investigate the matter.

If you are a doctor, doesn't it pain you to see your patients, after walking up two or three flights, come into your office completely exhausted? Wouldn't it be better to provide an office in a building where your patients would be carried right up to your office door in an easy-running and absolutely safe elevator? The new Sun building provides such a service. Think it over, doctor!

OUIMET, GOLF HERO, IN HOUR OF TRIUMPH AFTER DEFEATING BRITISH PROFESSIONALS

FRANCIS OUIMET, After His Sensational Golf Victory.

Golfers the country over, stirred to enthusiasm by the remarkable performance of young Francis Ouimet in winning the national open golf championship, hope he will win success if he competes in the British amateur and open championship tournaments next year. The Massachusetts amateur proved himself the golfing sensation of the year when he defeated Ray and Vardon the English professionals, at Brookline, Mass. That he was the hero is shown by this picture. His club members perched him in triumph on their shoulders, and figuratively every American golfer did the same.

MGR. M'QUAID BURIED

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF BOSTON PASTOR—MGR. O'BRIEN OF LOWELL ATTENDED SERVICES

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—While the funeral services for Mgr. William P. McQuaid, for more than a quarter of a century pastor at St. James' church, Harrison avenue, were taking place within the edifice thousands of past and present parishioners stood reverently in the rain outside, the accommodations within the church being altogether inadequate for all who would pay their final tribute.

Cardinal O'Connell presided. Mgr. Denis J. O'Farrell of Roxbury was celebrant of the solemn requiem high mass. Rev. John J. Fitzgerald and Rev. Robert E. Lee, both attached to St. James' church, were deacon and subdeacon respectively, while Mgr. Splaine of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross was master of ceremonies.

Rev. M. J. O'Connor of St. Francis de Sales' church, Roxbury, was thurifer, and Rev. Michael Derby of Dorchester and Rev. Michael J. Murphy, chaplain of the state prison, were acolytes.

The sanctuary was heavily draped in black and the casket rested on a catafalque just outside the sanctuary rail, the body being vested in the robes of a monsignor. Cardinal O'Connell was attended by Mgr. P. J. Supple of Roxbury and Mgr. Peter Ronan of Dorchester as chaplains. Bishop Nilan of Hartford was seated in the sanctuary where a special throne had been erected for him. The monsignori present included Rev. Rev. George A. Patterson of South Boston, Rev. Ambrose F. Roche of Watertown, Rev. John O'Brien of East Cambridge, Rev. Arthur J. Teeling of Lynn, Rev. Edward J. Morlarty of Jamaica Plain and Rev. William O'Brien of Lowell.

Many clergymen, city and state officials and business men also attended the services.

DELAY CURRENCY BILL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—An attempt to hurry along consideration of the currency bill in the senate banking and currency committee ended last night at the end of desultory questioning of Samuel Untermyer, who was counsel for the Pujo money trust committee of the last congress. Senator Shafroth of Colorado tried vainly to secure an agreement to close the hearings before the committee on Saturday, October 4. No other member of the committee supported his suggestion.

EXCUSE ME

DUFF IS GUILTY

Jury Returns Verdict in the Case of Chauffeur Who Held Up Funeral

In the superior criminal court yesterday Fred Emond pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with exceeding the speed limit in his automobile and the case was placed on file on condition that he pay the costs of the court.

Robert W. Duff was found guilty of interfering with a funeral procession, the jury returning a verdict yesterday afternoon.

Thomas W. Foster, who was charged with assault and battery and who had been placed on probation some time ago, was yesterday surrendered to the court by Probation Officer Ramsay. He was sentenced to six months in jail.

Allie Haffan pleaded guilty to a complaint charging him with assault and battery with a knife and a fine of $15 was imposed.

REMOVE DANGEROUS LIMBS

The park department will not remove butts of dead trees and it's no use calling the superintendent and telling him about them. "We have three gangs of men working on trees at the present time," said Supt. Kernan today, "but they are simply removing the dead and dangerous limbs. We have had lots of requests to remove the butts of dead trees but we haven't got the money to do the work. Dead butts are unsightly but not dangerous and we have only enough money to attend to the things that are absolutely dangerous."

MAN SUED FOR $75,000

BOND OF $25,000 WILL BE FURNISHED FOR GEO. H. CALDWELL'S RELEASE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A bond for $25,000 will be furnished by George H. Caldwell, aged 70 years, in the suit brought against him in superior court by Helen M. Mason, aged 19, for $35,000 damages for an alleged breach of promise to marry her.

When the bond is filed, the injunction issued a few weeks ago restraining him withdrawing his securities from a safe deposit vault and funds from a trust company, will be dissolved.

Judge Jenney, in the equity session of superior court yesterday, made the decree relative to a bond for $25,000 on motion of the defendant. The securities that were subject of an injunction consisted of United Shoe Machinery and Boston Insurance company stock.

Hornblower & Weeks, named as a defendant having funds belonging to Caldwell which the plaintiff sought to reach, have filed an answer stating that they held no funds of Caldwell at the time service was made on them. The Shoe Machinery company answers that Caldwell holds none of its stock in his own name and asks the plaintiff to prove that he has any in the name of others.

BARDO MUST RETIRE

Then Brotherhood of Engineers Might Accept New Haven Road's new Rules, It Is Said

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 23.—The latest stage of the negotiations between the adjustment committee of the Brotherhood of Engineers and the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company over changes in the rules governing the promotion of firemen to be engineers and of advancement of engineers to selected runs is said to be a willingness of the engineers to accept the new rules, if Gen. Mgr. C. L. Bardo retires.

The matter of the rules, with the suggestion of the engineers, is now before Vice President Hustis. The new rules, to which the engineers object, were made effective by General Manager Bardo Sept. 14.

The New Haven road issued a statement last night saying that neither Mr. Bardo nor Vice President Whaley, in charge of the operation of the road, was contemplating resigning his position.

CHILDREN HATE OIL, CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" Best For Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—caster oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

BIG TREE FELL

Two Workmen in Boston Had Narrow Escape During Storm

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Two workmen narrowly escaped serious injury and half a dozen others were forced to flee for their lives when a great oak directly in front of the new bird cage in Franklin park fell during the wind storm yesterday afternoon.

Thos. Conley of Roxbury and Jos. Charamonte of Endicott were at work in front of the bird cage during the height of the storm. Suddenly a crackling sound was heard and Conley, glancing up, saw the oak toppling. With a shout he ran to a place of safety, but Charamonte was struggling to get clear of the muddy earth. Conley, seeing his danger, ran back and dragged Charamonte out of the mire in the nick of time. A second or two later the tree fell over the place where they had stood.

The farspreading branches reached to the steps of the cage.

A short time after this accident a giant macaw was delivered to the officials of the zoo by an expressman. When he was asked who gave the bird he replied laconically, "Mayor Fitz." The mayor could not be reached last evening to verify the statement. The macaw is a species of parrot of unusually large size, with a brilliant plumage.

Curator Benson of the zoo is in New York to receive a large shipment of birds from Asia and Africa. It is expected the bird building will be open to the public by Oct. 1.

GET A LICENSE

Commissioner Cummings says there are a number of dealers in this city selling gasolene without a license and he wonders how they succeed in getting any insurance when they haven't any license to do business. He thinks the insurance companies ought to get busy and find out. It would seem, however, that this might be up to Commissioner Cummings and the other members of the municipal council as licenses of this kind are obtainable only by a vote of the municipal council, and Mr. Cummings, whose department includes licenses, should be particularly interested. It might be a good plan for the insurance companies and Mr. Cummings to co-operate in this matter.

200 KILLED IN FIERCE BATTLE

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—In a fierce battle today between Servian troops and Albanians on the Albanian frontier, 200 Albanians were killed according to a despatch to the Neue Frei Presse. The fighting is reported to have occurred at a place between Dibra and Jakova, where many of the battles between the Servians and the Turks were fought in the recent Balkan war.

The encounter was brought about by an attempt of several thousand Albanians to penetrate the territory captured by the Servians from the Turks. They were repulsed.

The Servian troops lost one captain and a considerable number of men. They have since been reinforced.

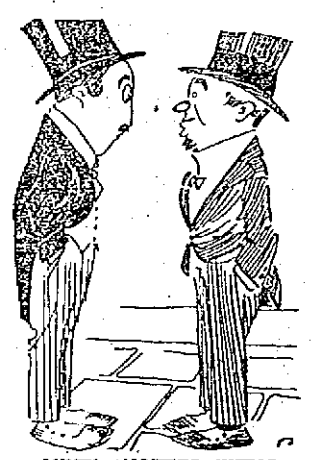

A LITTLE NONSENSE

TOO RED.

"Why didn't you give that man a job?"

QUITE ANOTHER THING.

OLD MAID AS AN ATHLETE.

She would jump at the chance to get married.

And the jump would break all records, if necessary.

A SERIOUS DOUBT.

"I never could be quite sure whether he finds he forgets to pay 'em or whether he finds it pays to forget 'em."

Cheer up, Girlie. That was a mean thing to say, but I wouldn't mind.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

When the all star combination composed of Gertrude Hoffmann, Polaire and Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson comes to the Lowell Opera House patrons of that theatre will catch their first glimpse of three of the greatest stars of the present day, widely differing in type, varying remarkably in temperament and closely allied in accomplishments.

Gertrude Hoffmann, who has introduced many startling novelties is probably the most versatile, daring and artistic stage worker before the public. Miss Hoffmann will appear in a new revue in twelve scenes with a company of forty people. For her present tour she had arranged among other features "The Dance of the Mermaid." This novelty is Miss Hoffmann's own invention and in order to secure appropriate photographs of her startling novelty, Miss Hoffmann and a staff of photographers, several of the office force of the Comstock and Gest enterprises and a member of the Seagate life saving crew went down to the ocean and there with an incoming tide kicking up a series of heavy breakers, she posed for the photographer.

The camera man was lashed to the broken mast of an old wreck that lies off Seagate and Miss Hoffmann, swimming and treading water began a series of daring poses. After posing for thirty snap-shots she was finally coaxed out of the water and into some warm clothing.

"I am taking no chances with Polaire and Lady Constance," said Miss Hoffmann. "They will undoubtedly bring over a few novelties and I don't want to be left at the post."

Miss Hoffmann hit the nail on the head when she stated that the two foreign stars would arrive with novelties. Polaire came over with a large gold ring in her nose. The ring in itself is not so startling, but Polaire, who claims that woman is going back to savagery and she wants to be in line, is doing everything in keeping with the ring. She is educating a white Amazonian Tribal King preparatory to marrying him. Polaire claims that to have a good husband, one must educate him from childhood. She is educating one and says she will marry him, and support him, as a good husband should be supported.

Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, granddaughter of the Duke of Sutherland, daughter of the Earl of Cromartie and wife of a prominent British Baron, will present her wonderful dance conception "The Awakening of Dawn." Lady Constance was the wonder of London when she made her appearance at the Palace theatre and regardless of the opposition of the prudish Queen Mary, succeeded in astonishing her countrymen and winning great laurels as an artiste.

The tour of the three stars is the most important single theatrical venture ever attempted by a manager and necessitates the weekly expenditure of many thousands of dollars.

The salary list of the three stars alone exceeds seven thousand dollars. An orchestra of thirty pieces, three private cars, individual corps of servants for the three temperamental women and individual representatives for each artiste bring the cost up to princely ransom each and every week.

In addition to the three stars, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest have supplied other features, to be announced later, to complete their program.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The Merrimack Square theatre players are this week presenting to their numerous patrons, the famous four-act comedy entitled "Brewster's Millions," and the first performance was given yesterday afternoon before a large gathering. The play was repeated in the evening before a much larger audience, and the warm applause that greeted the different features of the piece was a good demonstration of an appreciative audience.

The plot of the play concerns one Montgomery Brewster, a young man who has fallen heir to a round million of dollars. He has hardly straightened himself out from his first surprise when he is informed that his uncle in the west has died and made him the beneficiary of his $7,000,000 estate. The will has a proviso attached, however, in which it is stipulated that "Monty" must, within a year's time, be practically penniless, and that in doing so he must not spend his own money foolishly or extravagantly. "Spend a million to get seven," was the proposition that confronted him. His friends who are not aware of the facts, make every endeavor to prevent him spending his cash in such a free and lavish manner, and his efforts are somewhat balked. The young man who is trying very hard to get rid of his million does many unusual stunts, among which is the hiring of a yacht to take his friends on a trip around the world. He wins out in the end, but only after an eleventh-hour finish. Of course there is a little love story attached that helps to make "Brewster's Millions" a most agreeable entertainment.

The leading part is sustained by Walter Scott Weeks, while the charming young woman who is Brewster's chief attraction is no other than Miss Grace Young. The others who figure in the play are Thomas Carroll, Jack Hayden, Cecil Lugrin, John Charles, Marie Reels, William Phelps, Martin Miskell, Ivaloo Eddy, Frank DeCamp, Katherine Irving, W. J. Clark, Katherine McKenna, John C. Burns, Thomas Jordan, Harry Adams, J. J. Anderson, Marie Fisher and Harry Brown.

The staging of the piece is well done and the photo-plays are excellent.

KEITH'S THEATRE

People who are pleased with variety in vaudeville performances will highly enjoy the bill at Keith's theatre this week, for every number is of the character that delights theatre goers. The management, providing such excellent entertainment, well deserves to have the house filled at every performance.

One of the biggest attractions are the motion pictures of the world's most famous fugitive, Harry K. Thaw, taken at Sherbrooke. The pictures were taken with a view to showing the prisoner to the public as he really appears, in his characteristic attitudes, and in this, the photographer's work was marked by pronounced success, as those who have already seen the pictures will agree. Thaw is depicted in various occupations, with the cigars and flowers which seem always at hand. Hal Reid, the dramatist, secured the pictures and he is seen with Thaw in many of them. To those interested in the affairs of the man who escaped from the Matteawan asylum, these pictures will prove highly interesting.

The vaudeville acts leave nothing to be desired. The headliner throughout this week is "On the School Playground," which is somewhat different from other musical "Schooldays" acts. The big feature of the sketch is the excellent comedy furnished by E. L. Brendel who is seen in the character of "Herman Scrubbermeyer," caretaker of the playground. Brendel possesses an exceptionally ready wit and every move is a scream. His dancing was a delight to the audience. The musical numbers and dancing throughout the piece are very fine, a pleasing feature being the singing of one Miss Muriel Morgan. It is a lively sketch and one that is bound to afford genuine pleasure to all who witness it.

Hufford and Chain also provide some excellent comedy. Hufford is the comedian, in the makeup of a colored person, while Chain is a tenor singer of no little ability. The act is a novel one and extremely funny.

The southern singer, Clarice Vance, was a decided hit with the audiences at the two performances of yesterday, rendering catchy ragtime selections in a manner that won her prolonged applause and encores.

"Rained In," is a western comedy sketch contributed by Howard Leroy and Aileen Harvey. It is a success. Sylvester, the sleight of hand performer pleases the audience with a line of chatter, while he accomplishes some clever tricks. The singers and dancers, Williams and Wright, and the sharpshooters, McCree and Burns, won their big share of the honors.

The motion pictures, "Pathe's Weekly," is highly interesting this week, showing the most recent noteworthy events, including baseball, aeroplane flights, fashions, the big Newark fire, and others. The bill will be presented afternoon and evening throughout the remainder of the week, and good seats may be had by ordering in advance.

WHITE SLAVE BOARD MET

FEDERAL AGENT ATTENDS CONFERENCE IN BOSTON—TO INVESTIGATE TRAFFIC IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Frederick P. Schmid, who is the special agent of the federal department operating under the Mann act for the extinction of the white slave traffic, and District Atty. Joseph C. Pelletier were in conference yesterday afternoon with the special commission to investigate the white slave traffic in Massachusetts. Nothing was given for publication regarding the matter discussed.

Dr. Walter E. Fernald of Waverley, the chairman, was non-committal when asked if it was the intention to prosecute cases under the white slave act upon evidence laid before the commission. He remarked that the commission is not a prosecuting board. Its first duty is to investigate and next to recommend legislation to the general court. It is well known that the commission has received a large amount of testimony from those it has examined.

Dr. Fernald has said before this that if any positive evidence was submitted sufficient to convict an offender he would be prosecuted to the extent of the law.

The other members of the commission present were Sec. Charles W. Birtwell of Boston and Miss Lucia L. Jaquith of Worcester. Edwin Mulready the other member, is traveling abroad.

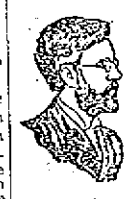

WIFE TURNS ON MAN

WENT TO MEET HIM AT DOCK BUT LEARNING THAT HE WAS WITH ANOTHER ENTERS SUIT

BOSTON, Sept. 23—Jose S. Rodriques of New Bedford was arrested yesterday by United States Deputy Marshal Ruhl charged with attempting to bring into this country an alien not entitled to enter. The alien is Joana Clara Goncalves Gibau, 25 years old, of the Cape Verde Islands.

Rodriques, who has a wife in New Bedford, brought the Gibau woman over with him on his return from a trip to his old home in the Cape Verde Islands, and was detained by the immigration authorities on Long wharf. Mrs. Rodriques came to Boston to assist her husband, but on learning of the Gibau woman she refused to help him and arranged for counsel to start suit against him, saying she did not want him any longer.

Rodriques was immediately placed under arrest. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, and pending a hearing on Sept. 27, he was committed to East Cambridge jail in default of $300 bail.

LOWELL PRIEST IS ILL

REV. FR. AUDIBERT, O. M. I., OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS AT GREEN BAY, WIS.

The many friends of Rev. Charles Audibert, O. M. I., formerly of this city, and who recently was transferred from St. Joseph's parish, this city to Bailey Harbor, Wis., will be grieved to learn that he is confined to the Mercy hospital, Green Bay, Wis., where he was operated upon for appendicitis.

Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., provincial of the Oblate Order for this district, yesterday received a telegram announcing the sad news of Rev. Fr. Audibert's illness. The message also states that owing to the long ride on the train after the clergyman was stricken, his chances for recovery have been diminished considerably.

PURE WATER FOR ICE MAKING

The rapid gain in popular favor which artificial ice has made in this country in recent years is shown by the reports of the United States census.

In the manufacture of ice for household purposes and for cooling beverages it is important that the water used should meet all the requirements of potable water in respect to cleanliness and freedom from organic matter and disease germs. Most American manufacturers use distilled water in making ice, in order to get a pure, transparent product.

In the plate system, however, which is becoming more and more popular in this country, it is not necessary to use distilled water in order to obtain clear ice if suitable appliances are installed to prevent the occasion of air and solid particles. Though it is true that the greater part of the bacteria and mineral matters in the raw water are excluded from the frozen plate, there is insufficient ground for assuming that perfectly harmless ice can be made directly from dangerously polluted water; and while it may be conceded that water pure enough for drinking is pure enough for making ice, it is nevertheless true that too much dependence should not be placed upon the natural purifying powers of the freezing process.

G.O.P. IN SESSION

Meet in N. Y. to Name Candidates for Chief and Associate Judges

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The nomination of candidates for chief judge and associate judge of the court of appeals was the formal task before the republican state convention that assembled here today, but the party leaders planned to make the gathering one of wider importance than this duty signified. It was the first republican rally since the last state election and several new questions confronted the delegates. The answer to these will be embodied in the platform which will be adopted at the session of the convention tonight.

It became known that republicans opposed to the leadership of William Barnes, Jr., had held an overnight meeting to oppose the selection of Harold J. Hinman, minority leader of the assembly, as either permanent chairman of the resolutions committee. It was said that a compromise had been reached whereby United States Senator Elihu Root was to be made permanent chairman and Job E. Hedges chairman of the resolutions committee.

The delegates, 840 in number, met at Carnegie hall this morning to organize and hear the address of Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, president of Cornell university, as temporary chairman and adjourn until eight o'clock tonight to give the committee on resolutions time to prepare the platform.

months this year was $5171.09, as against $4507.95 the year before.

The order to borrow $12,000 for contagious diseases was adopted, unanimously.

A communication from the county commissioners notifying voters of Lowell of a vacancy existing in the office of register of deeds, southern Middlesex, by reason of the death of the late Edwin O. Childs, was read, and referred to the commissioner of finance.

Abolish Grade Crossings

The mayor then read the resolution, recently published, for the abolition of the Middlesex street, Western avenue and Fletcher street crossings.

Com. Cummings whated the representative of the Boston & Maine who said that there was no demand for the abolition of these crossings. "He had no way of knowing that there wasn't any demand and he had an awful gall to make that statement," said Mr. Cummings.

Com. Barrett said that the Merrimack street crossing should have been included in the plan for the abolition of grade crossings in this city. He said if it was possible he would like to include that crossing, but the mayor said the matter was now before the courts and it would be necessary to make the Merrimack street crossing a separate matter and Ald. Barrett moved that the city solicitor take up the matter of the abolition of the Merrimack street crossing and it was so voted.

The resolution as read by the mayor was passed.

Appleton Street Sewer

The council voted to extend a sewer in Appleton street at an expense of $980.

The Council Opposed

Com. Barrett moved that the city clerk be instructed to communicate with the interstate commerce commission protesting against the increase in freight rates as proposed by the Boston & Maine, and it was so voted.

Highland Avenue Sewer

An order to lay a sewer in Highland avenue from the end of the present sewer, near Parker street, northerly about 170 feet, at an expense of $505, was adopted.

Illuminated Clock

The council voted to allow the D. L. Page Co. to erect an illuminated clock in front of its premises in Merrimack square.

Board of City Plans Commission

The mayor then read the following ordinance creating a board of city plans commission, according to an act passed by the legislature for 1913:

An ordinance relative to the creation of a planning board for the city of Lowell.

Be it ordained by the municipal council of Lowell as follows:

Section 1. The municipal council shall immediately upon the passage of this ordinance appoint a board of city plans commission to consist of five persons who shall serve without compensation. One person to serve until Oct. 1, 1914, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1915, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1916, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1917, and one to serve until Oct. 1, 1918; and thereafter annually the municipal council shall appoint, prior to the first day of October, one member of the board of city plans commissioners who shall hold office for the term of five years from the first day of October in the year in which he is appointed. In addition to the said five persons to be appointed by the municipal council, the mayor, and the commissioner of public property and licenses shall be members ex-officio of said board of city plans commission, and the mayor shall serve as chairman.

Section 2. Vacancies occurring in the board of city plans commissioners shall be filled by appointment by the municipal council to fill the unexpired term.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of said boards to make a careful study of the entire city, and cause to be made a city plan or plans, which in their judgment will be best adapted to the present conditions and future needs of Lowell, and as soon as may be, report in writing to the municipal council the result of their study and investigation, together with all necessary plans, maps, diagrams or models which shall be considered a part of their report.

Commissioner Barrett inquired as to the expenditure of money by the board. "You might get a planning board that would tie up the city of Lowell," he said.

"What if they should? The council might not think the board's judgment was any better than its own," said the mayor.

The mayor called Mr. Barrett's attention to the fact that the council had no choice in the matter. "It is mandatory," he said.

The mayor moved that the ordinance be passed to be enrolled and it was so voted.

It was then passed to be ordained and becomes active at once.

The duty of the board will be to make investigations and recommendations relative to the development of the city, paying particular attention to housing conditions.

Mr. Cummings moved that the council ballot for a member of the planning board to serve for five years, beginning Oct. 1, 1913, and it was so voted.

Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the trades and labor council was elected on the first ballot. He received the votes of Commissioners Cummings, Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

John H. Murphy was elected a member of the board for a term of four years, receiving all votes with the exception of Mr. Brown, who voted for Dr. G. Forrest Martin.

Commissioner Brown admonished the council not to be hasty in the matter of electing members of the board inasmuch as the matter had not been discussed. He thought the election of the other three members should go over to the next meeting.

The council, however, proceeded to ballot for a three year man and Joseph A. Legare was unanimously elected.

The council's choice for a two year man was George P. Green. He received the votes of Messrs. Cummings and Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

For the one year member the council chose John C. Wilson, who received the votes of Commissioners Cummings and Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

Contagious Hospital Again

Mayor O'Donnell made another attempt to spur up his brother members on the selection of a site for an isolation hospital. Com. Brown was in favor of the Dr. Pillsbury estate.

Com Barrett wanted to know what was the objection to the site in the rear of the Chelmsford street hospital. "Personally, I think it's a horrible place," said the mayor.

Commissioner Donnelly said he was willing to vote for the site recommended by the contagious hospital commission at the Chelmsford street hospital but he understood it would not be permitted by the state board of health.

Commissioner Cummings thought a combination hospital in connection with the state hospital at Tewksbury would be a good scheme and he suggested that the mayor confer with the state board of health relative to such a plan.

The mayor said the state board of health couldn't do anything about a combination of that kind.

Mayor O'Donnell called attention to the fact that there was still another site at the Chelmsford street hospital described as the "lone tree" site, or "the trail of the lonesome pine." Part of this site is in Chelmsford and part in Lowell, but mostly in Lowell.

Ald. Barrett objected to the Pillsbury estate because the buildings thereon are of frame construction and he allowed that would be very dangerous in case of fire. He said he thought the site was ideal, but he believed that the hospital should be of fireproof construction.

Nothing doing and at 1.15 the meeting, on motion of Com. Cummings, adjourned to Tuesday at 11 a. m.

CRIMINAL COURT

guilty and his case went to trial. Inspector William H. Connors of the board of health was the first witness called. He said Clancy is a truckman and keeps his horse in a stable in Floyd street. He said he visited the aforesaid stable on May 3 and 22, and saw a horse there. He said the stable is about 12 by 15 with one stall. Witness said on both occasions he visited the stable at night and he did not see any feed there.

Agent Frederick A. Bates said he has no record of Clancy having a license to keep a stable in Floyd street. He does not know of any application from the defendant for a license.

On cross-examination Mr. Bates said there is nothing on his records which show that Mr. Clancy is conducting a stable in Floyd street. He said the board issues licenses for the keeping of stables, and they apply to stables that are being built or enlarged. He said he knows Clancy has no license and has never made application for such license.

John B. Clancy was then called. He said for four or five years he has been the agent of the blind workshop in Lowell. He said he has kept his horse in the stable in Floyd street about 27 years at intervals. Prior to 1905 he had the stable which has been remodeled since, and kept his horse there. "I never had a license to keep the stable and did not know I was supposed to have one. I am still using the stable and it is as good as any one in Lowell."

On cross-examination he said: "I never was bothered before by the board of health until some time ago when politicians wanted to have my land. The neighbors are also opposed because they don't like me. I would like to have the jury see the place. It is a fine stable, a good cellar, clean and bright, and is built on a large tract of land.

"Were you at the hearing at city hall?" asked Mr. Wier.

"There was no hearing, it was a political meeting, attended by all the neighbors, who are here today at my expense."

"When did you build the stable?"

"I never built it, it isn't built yet, although there is a building there. It was started 30 years ago. The horse was not there all the time, only at intervals. I will complete it some day if they leave me alone.

"What do you mean by intervals?"

"I mean when the district attorney gave you my record and through political influence you tried to put my horse out of the stable and me out of business. I will tell you right here I will keep my horse there even though you put me in jail, with all due respect to the court."

"How much of a building was your stable 27 years ago?"

"Oh, the cellar and a roof, but I have improved it wonderfully since, and I would like to have the jury see it."

During his testimony John B. supplied considerable amusement for the jurymen and other attendants.

Mrs. Bridget Donnelly was next called to the stand and she said the building has been in construction for a number of years and is not yet finished.

On cross-examination she admitted having a little feeling against Mr. Clancy on account of political conditions between Clancy and her son, Commissioner Donnelly. She said 15 or 16 years ago Clancy purchased a small shed, which he removed to Floyd street. She said he attempted to keep a horse there, but he found it a difficult proposition for there were no sides to the shed.

Owen McCann, of Lyons street, next testified. He said Clancy's stable is near his place. He said about 15 or 16 years ago John B. put up a small shack on his land. "The same," he said, "was burned out some five or six years ago, and then John B. endeavored to erect a club building for the boys of the district, which later he turned into a stable."

On cross examination witness said he does not want a stable near his place. He said he has no feeling against Mr. Clancy, although the latter has told lies about him to the board of health. Witness said he is over 70 years of age and has lived in the Floyd street vicinity for 33 years.

Mr. Clancy was recalled to the stand and said he has had horses in other stables. During cold weather he said he kept his house in the Keehe street stable. He said he did not keep his kicking horse with the valuable horses.

John B. Fined $10

At the conclusion of the last case the court suspended for a few minutes, and John B. Clancy took occasion to go for a short walk, but it is believed John B. met a few friends on his way, for it was fully a half hour before he returned. The jury returned to the court room and the lawyers were getting ready for their evidence, but John B. was absent. A couple of court officers were detailed to find John B., but they were unable to locate him. The court was about to default him, when in comes John B. with a happy smile on.

At the request of his counsel, but not before considerable coaxing, John B. changed his plea to guilty and the jury was dismissed. The court then imposed the sentence which John B. received in the lower court, that is a fine of $10. By pleading guilty John B. evaded a fine of about $450, for according to the district attorney, John B. was liable to a fine of $5 a day for each day he conducted his stable after being notified by the board of health to secure a license.

This case was the last brought to the attention of the court. The jurors were then dismissed and the court adjourned to Cambridge tomorrow morning.

Pres. Elliott Confers With the Inter-State Commerce Board

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Howard Elliott, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, conferred here today with the interstate commerce commission about conditions on his lines. He was particularly concerned about the forthcoming report of the committee on the Wallingford rear end collision which is to be made public late tomorrow.

President Elliott was given no inkling of the character of the report prepared by Commissioner McChord after an exhaustive personal investigation. He was assured, however, that published forecasts of the findings of the commission were unauthorized, misleading and essentially inaccurate.

Both Commissioner McChord and Inspector Belknap have not only analyzed thoroughly the evidence they adduced themselves but have carefully considered the testimony at the coroner's inquest. Their conclusions, therefore, are based on a thorough knowledge of the conditions surrounding the disaster and of the operatives who were the human factors in it.

ADMINISTRATORS' SALE OF THE LYNCH PROPERTY, CONSISTING OF A 2 1-2 STORY HOUSE OF 7 TENEMENTS, SHED IN THE REAR AND ABOUT 2805 SQUARE FEET OF LAND AT NO. 231 GORHAM STREET, 2, 4 AND 6 EAGAN'S COURT

The above property is located on Gorham street just on the rise of the hill and about opposite the new St. Peter's school and its location is considered one of the best in the city for renting of small tenements. The block, which has seven tenements averaging three, four and five rooms each, has a total rental of about $10 a month and with a little more care and attention much more rent could be obtained. This is an excellent opportunity for the speculator, as this parcel is located on one of the principal business streets of the city. The sale will be absolute, regardless of any condition of the weather, as the time has come for a settlement of the estate.

Terms: $400 to be paid the auctioneer as soon as struck off.

NEXT SATURDAY, SEPT. 27, AT 3.45 O'CLOCK

A 2 1-2-story brick building and about 4337 square feet of land at the corner of Tyler and George streets. The house, which is of brick construction, 2 1-2 stories with ell, contains 16 rooms, bath, pantry, wash room, furnace heat, cemented cellar, lighted throughout by gas, and is in good shape. It is occupied by a first class tenant at $35 a month, or a yearly rental of $420. The lot has a frontage of about 48 feet on Tyler street, 90 feet on George and about 48 feet on the passageway in the rear, that must be forever kept open. This lot has an area of about 4337 square feet. Now, then, here is a first class investment for someone. The fact that it has three frontages is certainly a great advantage to this parcel, and when you take into consideration the location, less than 100 yards from Central street, within five minutes' walk of the postoffice and within 10 minutes of many large industries. Speculators should look this property up, as it will be offered for absolute sale, regardless of any condition of the weather, on the day and hour advertised.

Terms: $400 to be paid the auctioneer as soon as struck off. Make all inquiries of the auctioneer who has full charge.

CRIMINAL SESSION OF SUPERIOR COURT

Intent to Murder Charge — Turkish Stabbing Affray — Clancy's Stable Case Heard Today

The criminal session of the superior court, Judge Keating presiding, was resumed at the local court house this morning.

Intent to Murder

Gatamo Jucono was arraigned on a complaint charging him with assault with intent to murder to which he pleaded guilty. District Attorney Higgins informed the court that defendant was playing cards, when he produced a revolver and fired, but fortunately did not hit any one. He recommended that the sentence be light on the ground that the prisoner has been in jail for the past four months, and accordingly the court imposed a fine of $50.

Turkish Stabbing Affray

Prior to the closing of the session yesterday afternoon, the cases of Mahamed Gamal, Allie Mohamed, Allie Mehmond and Allie Accarry, charged with assault with intent to murder, were disposed of. Mahomed Gemal was dismissed on the ground that the police found that the complaint had no foundation. The other three who pleaded guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon, were fined $50 each.

Chauffeur Duff's Case

Robert W. Duff, the chauffeur who was found guilty of willingly obstructing a funeral procession, was fined $20, but a stay of execution of sentence was granted by the court at the request of Duff's attorneys, who wish to carry the case to the supreme court.

John B. Clancy's Case

John B. Clancy was charged by the local board of health with unlawfully occupying a building for a stable on Sept. 15, 1912.

Mr. Clancy entered a plea of not

To Prevent City of Lowell From Selling Hildreth Cemetery for Sidewalk Tax

The case of the town of Dracut against the city of Lowell, praying for an injunction restraining the collector of taxes of the city of Lowell from selling the Hildreth cemetery for nonpayment of a special assessment levied by the city for the expense of laying a sidewalk along said cemetery in Hildreth cemetery came on to be heard at the equity session at Boston this morning, Justice Jenny presiding. Warren W. Fox represented the town of Dracut and City Solicitor Hennessy represented the city of Lowell. The case turned on the matter of the proper assessment to the town of Dracut, in that the assessment was to Hildreth cemetery rather than to the inhabitants of the town of Dracut. The court was of the opinion that such an assessment was not proper; that it did not run to the abutter, as required by law, and ordered an injunction to issue restraining the sale.

The city solicitor having assured the court that the sale would be stopped, no service of the injunction upon the city will be made.

FIRST MARRIAGE STOOD

ROME, Sept. 23.—Prince Joseph Rospigliosi, who died yesterday at Stresa, did not marry religiously Mrs. F. H. Parkhurst of Bangor, Me. (formerly Miss Marie Jennings Reed of New Orleans), according to his brother, Prince Camillo, ex-commander of the Papal guard, who was at his bedside till his death. Prince Camillo issued today an emphatic denial of the published reports, saying that independently of other considerations such a marriage was impossible, as the annulment of Mrs. Parkhurst's marriage to Colonel Parkhurst had never been admitted by the Catholic church.

LAWYERS ARGUE THAW'S CASE

In Memorable Fight for and Against Extradition Before Gov. Felker of N. H.—Jerome Denounces Morris

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Thaw was taken from the hotel to the state house promptly at two o'clock, the usual crowd attending him, but without demonstration. His counsel also were in their places at that hour.

Jerome and his associates soon followed but Governor Felker and his family did not appear until 2.15. A few minutes after Mrs. Thaw, Harry's mother, and her companion came in to their seats.

Upon the opening of the afternoon session George F. Morris of Lancaster addressed Governor Felker and said that he had been selected by his fellow counsel for Thaw to "rake after" their arguments. Mr. Morris laid stress upon the fact that in the proceeding of extradition under the constitution of the United States the first duty is to see that the rights of the citizen, Thaw, are secured.

"Your excellency," said Mr. Morris, "must be absolutely satisfied of the genuineness of this proceeding before giving your assent to it. The motive that prompts the demand is open to legislative inquiry. This petition seeks to do indirectly what its sponsors cannot do directly and is not a due process of law. There is much to be read between the lines here and it is your excellency's duty to read it. This proceeding is a subterfuge to obtain possession of the person of Harry K. Thaw.

"Public opinion and public sentiment have no part in the adjudication of a case like this, I know, but in their name nevertheless I ask your excellency to exercise broad discretion in dealing with this matter."

At 2.45 Mr. Jerome arose and said that while he had listened to many arguments in many tribunals he never had heard a more extraordinary argument advanced than that of Mr. Morris that in a forced and fraudulent public opinion the governor of New Hampshire could and should find a reason or an excuse for disregarding this petition of the state of New York for a writ of extradition and for refusing to perform a duty laid upon him by the constitution of the United States.

Jerome branded Thaw as a criminal, a fugitive from justice and then quoted decisions and instances in which men of this type had been extradited.

THAW'S COUNSEL FIGHT EXTRADITION AND JEROME QUOTES DECISIONS

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Reasons why Harry K. Thaw should not be extradited to the state of New York from the state of New Hampshire were presented to Governor Samuel D. Felker in the senate chamber of the state house today, by William H. Chase of Concord, former judge of the state supreme court and by William A. Stone of Pittsburgh, former governor of the state of Pennsylvania. Their arguments occupied the time from 11.15 to 12.45, when Governor Felker announced an adjournment of the hearing until 2 o'clock this afternoon. William T. Jerome of New York will argue then for the issuance of the extradition papers. The proceedings this morning were entirely formal and without exciting incidents. Messrs. Chase and Stone declared the petition for extradition insufficient in form and unsupported by the necessary evidence and that the state of New York having by its courts declared Thaw insane could not now request from New Hampshire his extradition for a crime which by its nature only a sane man could commit.

THAW'S REAL FIGHT FOR FREEDOM WAS BEGUN TODAY

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Harry K. Thaw's real fight for freedom began today. With the opening of the extradition hearing before Governor Felker, counsel on both sides realized that the hour of legal sparring for a temporary advantage had passed and that the outcome rested on the interpretation of points of law regarding which few if any precedents had been found.

HARTFORD IN LEAD IN FOURTH INNING

(Over the Sun's Special Wire.)

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 23.—The fourth game of the Lowell-Hartford post season series for the championship of the New England-Eastern association baseball leagues was played off here today under the most auspicious weather conditions which have greeted players and spectators at any of the games played thus far. Although a trifle cooler there was not a cloud in the sky. The sun dried up the diamond in a remarkably short time. What was yesterday a veritable small lake was today a neatly chalked baseball yard. Manager McDonald led his band of Hartford warriors into the enclosure at 1.25 p. m. and immediately chased them on to the field to warm up. The Lowell team did not arrive at the park until 2.35 and were given the same cordial welcome that they received at the hands of the Hartford fans on Saturday. Capt. Aubrey, now acting manager, announced that Zieser would pitch today's game and that Henderson would be ready to go in at a moment's notice. Thomas is Lowell's only backstop now that Daly has joined the White Sox and will be behind the bat today. If Thomas should meet with an accident during the game, Flannery, the utility infielder, will don the catcher's regimentals. The Lowells are all anxious to win two games straight now, and wind up the series. No further receipts will accrue to the players after the first four games have been played, and they are all eager to be on their homeward way. Manager Clarkin held a conference with his players shortly before the game opened and offered them an additional purse if they won today's game and tied up the series. He informed the Hartford team that he had received telegrams from several of the Eastern Association magnates which censured him severely for awarding the Hartford team his check for $1000 as a token of appreciation for the Eastern Association pennant. This the other owners aver, will act as a precedent for future pennant winners, and they do not like the idea of adding $1000 to the players' salaries. The Hartford club, to a man, promised to use even greater efforts to win today's game than they have previously demonstrated in the three previous contests.

Lowell at Batting Practice

Both teams engaged in lively practice before game was called and the Lowell men paid particular attention to batting practice. Pitcher Maybohm tossed up his floaters to the Singling brothers and they banged them all over the lot. Capt. Aubrey was well impressed with the work of his charges and expressed great confidence in their ability to win the third straight game.

When the line up of the Hartford team was announced, it was seen that a change had been made. In the other games of the series Muldoon did the backstop work, but today, Manager McDonald went behind the bat. Pitcher Averett, who won the first game of the series, which was played in Lowell last Wednesday was sent in today, in an effort to stop the onward rush of the New England league champions. Matty Zieser, who twirled the second game of the series and came out on the long end, by allowing the Hartfords but four hits, was assigned for hurling duties by the Lowell management. There were 4000 people on hand before play was started. Previous to the opening of activities the Lowell players posed for a photograph. The game was called at 2.45 o'clock, by Umpire Doherty, and the lineup was as follows:

Lowell	Hartford
Clemens cf	2b Curry
Miller 2b	lf Hoffman
Thomas c	rf Kauff
Magee lf	cf Hoey
Halstein 1b	1b Kelliher
DeGroff rf	3b Gardella
Aubrey ss	c McDonald
Dee 3b	ss Reiger
Zieser p	p Averett

First Inning

Pete Clemens was the first man up for the Lowell team. He took considerable time in approaching the plate and Pitcher Averett, remembering the fact that the Lowell centre fielder opened Saturday's game with a beautiful clip, also deliberated before he threw up his spitter. While the lead off man was at the bat, Finneran and Henderson, Lowell's clever pair of coachers, got busy on the lines and injected a great deal of comedy into the game. Pete then picked out a good one and banged it into centre field for a double. He was given a great cheer by the Lowell rooters. Clemens took third on Miller's sacrifice. Thomas hit in front of the plate and Averett banged the ball to third getting Clemens, Thomas reaching first. Thomas then tried out Manager McDonald's arm, in attempting to purloin second, but Mack was there and threw the Lowell catcher out.

Curry was the first Hartford man to oppose Zieser. He let the first one go by and the ump called it a ball. He then thought that he would bum his way to the station, but Julius thought differently and slambed one over that cut the platter. It was a beautiful strike. The next one was a foul strike. Zieser then threw one over that was a little outside and Curry let it go by a second ball. The Lowell pitcher thought that he had worked his arm enough on this man and put one more over and the head batter of the Hartford team went back and sat down. Hoffman was the next victim, going out, Aubrey to Halstein. Zieser then became generous and gave Kauff a free ticket. Just to show that he appreciated the generosity of the Lowell heaver, Kauff sole second. He stayed there, for Hoey, next up, went out on a weak grounder to Halstein.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 0.

Second Inning

Jimmy Magee, Lowell's clean up man, was first up in the second inning. He was easy for Gardella, going out on a grounder. Halstein filed out to Hoffman. Rube DeGroff cracked a single to centre, but it was a hit wasted, for the comedian went out when he tried to grab second.

Lowell's first baseman was about the whole cheese in this session, having three outputs to his credit.

Kelliher went out to Halstein, unassisted. Gardella, out Dee to Halstein. McDonald out on a foul fly to Halstein.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 0.

Third Inning

Only three Lowell men faced Averett in the third. Aubrey went out on a grounder, Reiger to Kelliher, Dee out, Curry to Kelliher and Zieser went out on a fly to Gardella.

The last of the third was very brief. Reiger gave Jimmy Magee a chance to make a put out on a fly to left. Averett was hit by a pitched ball and took first. Curry thought Pete Clemens was lonesome and just for that banged out a fly and the Lowell centre fielder grabbed it. Hoffman continued the work of his predecessors and sent up a fly that Aubrey took care of.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 0.

Fourth Inning

Clemens, the first Lowell man to get a hit today was up for his second trip to the plate. He did not have such good luck this time, however, as the best he could do was send up a fly to Curry. Miller swung at three and missed and did a marathon back to the dugout. Thomas duplicated Miller's stunt and the Lowell team took the field.

Benny Kauff, whose batting thus far in the series has been a big disappointment to the Hartford fans, owing to the fact that he led the league in batting was the first up for Hartford in the fourth. He went to the plate confident that he would break up his batting slump and with one ball and one strike called on him he smashed the pill to centre field for a single. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm. On a wild pitch, Kauff went to second. Hoey advanced him to third on a sacrifice. Kelliher hit to centre and Kauff came home with the first run of the same. Kelliher tried to steal second, but Miller had the ball before he was within two feet of the bag. Gardella closed the inning on a fly to DeGroff.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 1.

FOR AN INCREASE OF FREIGHT RATES

B. & M. Wants 10 P. C. Increase —Hearing in Boston — Lowell Men Attend to Oppose Scheme

Several Lowell men went to Boston this morning to attend the hearing before Commissioner Prouty of the interstate commerce commission on the petition of the Boston and Maine railroad to increase the general freight rates 10 per cent. Among those who went were President George M. Harrigan and Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade, Frank Cheney of the Cheney Box and Lumber Co., J. C. Wadleigh of the Merrimack Mfg. Co.; A. W. Thompson of the Saco-Lowell Machine Co.; F. W. Horne of the Horne Coal Co.; and Agent Walker of the Lawrence Mfg. Co. They represented the shippers of this city in protesting against the granting of the increase. Mr. Murphy brought to the hearing letters containing the protests of several other large Lowell concerns. He expressed the opinion that the interest shown was not sufficiently great, nor the protests of the shippers strong enough to very deeply impress the commissioners. A great many will enter their protests, however, when the increased rates become evident on their freight bill.

The hearing was held at 10 o'clock in the federal court room in the post-office building. From other cities there were many representatives, but from Lowell not as many as might be desired to represent a city of such large manufacturing resources.

One of the most prominent organizations was the New England Coal Dealers' association which was represented by counsel. In this regard, there are many important facts with reference to the effect which, if granted, the proposed increase will have upon the coal shipments to Lowell. The average freight train of coal, from Mystic wharf in Boston to this city, a distance of approximately 26 miles, brings the B. & M. a large revenue. For example, take a train of 20 cars. There are about 40 tons to each car, and the rate is at present 85 cents per ton. Thus the total receipts to the company equal $680. If the increase is granted the total will be much larger. The effect of an increase upon the dealers and upon the consumers is evident; it would doubtless cause a rise in the price of coal.

One Lowell concern realized the importance of taking action in the matter and in a letter to the board of trade, said that its freight bills amount

LOWELL FIREMEN

Will Attend Big Convention at New Bedford This Week

A number of local firemen are planning to attend the 34th convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's association to be held in Odd Fellows hall, New Bedford, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. All of the firemen in this city belong to the association and as many as can be off duty will probably be present at the convention.

The program will consist of speaking and entertainments and it is held to increase the efficiency of the firemen throughout the state. The convention will open tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and from that time until Friday afternoon sessions will be held.

Fire Commissioner Barrett of this city will speak Thursday on "Necessity of Special Construction of Chassis for Motor Fire Apparatus." Capt. James McKissock will also read several reports at the convention and on Thursday he will give an address on "Bills Introduced in the Legislature of 1913 Affecting Firemen." Among the other subjects will be: "In case of great conflagration such as happened to the city of Chelsea, should not the chiefs and deputies of all the cities and towns have it agreed to and understood with the captains of the various companies that when the fire has got beyond control, each captain shall act as a guide and direct help arriving to locate where the best work can be done," "Fire protection in large department stores," and many others.

Chief Dahill and members of the New Bedford fire department are planning a series of entertainments for the delegates, ladies and guests, the program of which is yet incomplete, but on the afternoon of the third day, they are to give all the delegates, their wives and sweethearts a sail down the bay on the steamer "Gay Head." The boat will leave New Bedford at 2 o'clock and arrive at Woods Hole at 3.30 o'clock, where an hour will be spent. The return trip will be made about 4.30.

His arm and hand were amputated some time ago, in an effort to arrest the progress of the disease which caused his death.

WRECKERS OUT

To Save Schooner That is Ashore on Skiff Island Shoal if Possible

EDGARTOWN, Sept. 23.—The work of lightering the cargo of the five-masted schooner Marcus L. Urann, ashore on Skiff island shoal in Muskaget channel began at noon today with the arrival of the wrecking tug Tasco from New London.

Captain Thomas of the schooner, who with his crew had difficulty in getting off the Urann during the gale last night, boarded the vessel this morning and found her being pounded heavily by the big seas that were running through the channel.

The wreckers were of the opinion that there was a chance of saving the vessel, providing the wind did not come in strong from the south during the next week or two. It was admitted, however, that no vessel has ever worked free of Skiff Island shoal, although the four-masted schooner William B. Palmer, which grounded in Muskaget channel at the same time the five-masted Arthur B. Zeltz was wrecked ten years ago managed to reach deep water in Nantucket sound.

12 SAVED AS BOAT SANK

A Five Masted Schooner Ran Ashore—Captain Jackson Put Out in Boat and Rescued All

EDGARTOWN, Sept. 23.—The five-masted schooner Marcus L. Urann, with a cargo of coal from Sewall's Point, Va., for Boston, ran ashore on Skiff's Island shoal in Muskegat channel yesterday. For several hours Captain Benjamin Thomas and his crew of eight men, together with the wives of the captain and of the steward, remained aboard the vessel while she pounded under the impulses of a southerly gale, which sent great waves over the Urann's decks. The ship struck during a dense fog, and her plight was not discovered from shore until the mist lifted a little yesterday afternoon.

Word was then sent to Captain Levi Jackson, honored with a Carnegie medal as a result of his life-saving exploits, and he put out to the schooner in his auxiliary fishing schooner Priscilla II. This boat was partly purchased by funds given Captain Jackson by the Carnegie hero fund commission. Its errand of succor was successful yesterday, under unfavorable conditions.

Transferred to Schooner

A heavy southerly gale was blowing, with a murky pall still hanging over the channel. Six miles off the southeast end of the island, lay the schooner, stranded on the shoal while great seas broke over her decks, and threatened the lives of those aboard. Capt. Jackson and his men were forced to approach the schooner cautiously and with all the skipper's seamanship he did not dare bring the fisherman up to the schooner's side. Captain Jackson himself took a dory to the Urann where he found that Captain Thomas had stowed the belongings of all on board in the schooner's power boat. But the captain thought it best to trust to Captain Levi and by twos and threes all were transferred to the fishing schooner, Captain Thomas being the last to leave.

He said that the accident came after a voyage through continuous haze and fog. In Sunday night's mist Captain Thomas said he made a fixed light about 11 o'clock which he thought was Shinnecock. "I shaped by course accordingly," he continued. "About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the fog thickened, and for hours we were lost. About 9 o'clock the schooner ran aground and we didn't know where we were until the fog lifted yesterday afternoon. I think the light I made out last night must have been 'Block Island.'"

Tried to Run Aground

The wreck of the Urann marks a strange coincidence of the sea. The schooner is the third vessel owned by the same company, the Coastwise Transportation company of Boston, to run aground on the same shoal and under the same conditions. The schooner Arthur G. Seitz was wrecked there under similar conditions 50 years ago and three years ago the big six-master was wrecked with 11 persons on board, who were rescued from the rigging by Captain Levi Jackson and his doughty crew in a heroic manner, which resulted in recognition by the Carnegie hero fund association.

Skiff's Island has never given up a ship but the owners of the Urann are to try to save her.

Each was sentenced to four months in jail and ordered to pay the costs of prosecution.

silent, arrived just before daylight, deputized by the state of New York to obtain the surrender of Thaw as a fugitive from justice. Whether he would press the charge of criminal conspiracy to escape from the insane asylum at Matteawan in view of the fact that the Dutchess county grand jury had failed to report an indictment against Thaw on these lines was not revealed before the hearing began.

Counsel for the fugitive maintained their confident attitude that Governor Felker would not grant the extradition of a chance visitor, whose only offense was that he had escaped from a jurisdiction in which he had been held responsible. Disinterested counsel held that the case would go from the governor to the federal courts for final determination.

Thaw Arrived

The chamber of the state senate, however, in which the hearing was held was early filled to its capacity with newspapermen, members of the bar and others who had been able to obtain tickets of admission from the senators. Thaw was not brought into the chamber until 11.05, when he appeared followed by a dozen of his counsel. They were seated on the left of the chamber, near Mrs. Thaw and her maid and son, Josiah. W. T. Jerome and his associates, Franklin Kennedy of New York and Bernard Jacobs of Lancaster were on the right with an official stenographer in the center.

Thaw passed within a foot of Jerome as he made his way to his seat, but no sign of recognition was given by either. Some of Thaw's counsel, however, shook hands with Jerome.

The appearance in the chamber of Governor Felker and his party was delayed by the fact that Mrs. Felker, the governor's wife, was on a train which did not reach Concord until after 11 o'clock.

At 11.15 the governor came in, with Mrs. Felker, and attended by Attorney General James P. Tuttle and by the members of the executive council, accompanied by their wives. Other state officials occupied a small gallery overlooking the senate chamber.

The governor said that in opening the case he was inclined to hear whatever the lawyers had to say and this with strict regard to whatever might be strictly admissible.

Counsel Waived Reading

Thaw's counsel waived the reading of the petition for extradition. Mr. Jerome addressed the governor, saying that the documents in the case speak for themselves and that there was nothing for the governor to do but to honor them. If any attack is to be made upon them it should come from the other side.

Judge William Chase of this city, of counsel for Thaw, rose and addressed the governor, saying that he would open the case for Mr. Thaw to be followed by ex-Governor Stone of Pennsylvania and by George F. Morris of Lancaster. Judge Chase, reading his argument, said that "Harry K. Thaw, a resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., is before you charged with conspiring to escape from the asylum at Matteawan, N. Y. No indictment has been found against him, although a grand jury of that county has been in session since Sept. 8. Acting Governor Glynn of New York has asked for the extradition of Thaw under the provisions of the United States constitution covering such matters. If that request is to be granted the governor of New Hampshire must be satisfied that this requisition is issued in good faith and not with any ulterior motive. The extradition process does not cover cases of insanity, but only those of treason, felony and crime.

"You cannot surrender Thaw to New York, governor, simply because he is a fugitive from Matteawan."

On this point Judge Chase quoted extensively from authorities.

Judge Chase dwelt with special emphasis upon the fact that Thaw could not be extradited simply as an insane persons.

He further stated that in the case of a requested extradition for crime the petition must be supported by evidence of crime "unless sufficient evidence is introduced here to prove to your excellency that Thaw actually has committed the crime of conspiracy charged against him then you should not issue this extradition process."

Innocent of Crime

Judge Chase stated that criminal intent is the essence of crime. Against criminal intent, insanity is a complete defence. Thaw took the life of a man but is regarded as innocent of the crime because his act was decided by a jury to have been that of an insane mind. He was thereafter confined in the asylum at Matteawan until the alleged act of conspiracy took place.

Judge Chase read from the report of the superintendent of Matteawan hospital a history of the Thaw case as connected with that institution to show that Thaw has been still insane since his incarceration there. The character of Thaw's insanity as a paranoiac was discussed by Judge Chase to show that it is generally considered incurable.

"The state of New York has no right to question the findings of its own court that Thaw is an insane person. But it has charged this insane person with the criminal act of conspiracy, especially requiring the exercise of sanity.

Why Thaw Was In Asylum

"Thaw was in Matteawan not as punishment for a crime, but as a protection to the public against the acts of an insane person. His status there is of especial importance in connection with the present phase of this case." On this point, also, Judge Chase cited authorities.

"There is no decision of the courts making the escape of an insane person from an asylum an extraditable offence. If Thaw, unaided, has escaped from Matteawan it is not a crime. And as an insane person he was not capable of entering into a conspiracy to escape. Nor is there any testimony offered to show any participation on Thaw's part in any plans for his escape."

Judge Chase closed by presenting former Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania.

Thaw Stared at Jerome

During Judge Chase's address Thaw stared most of the time at Jerome, who was directly across the senate chamber with an open space of a dozen feet between them. Jerome did not return the glances. When Judge Chase spoke in closing of Thaw's desire to return home with his mother Thaw was much affected and wiped tears from his eyes with his handkerchief.

Gov. Stone dwelt upon the insufficiency of the affidavits accompanying the request for extradition to support the charge of conspiracy there made and which is not accompanied by any indictment. "The requisition papers, therefore, do not comply with the requirements of the state and of all states in this matter. On this point, Governor Stone quoted a New York decision that there is no law to punish a lunatic for escaping from an asylum. Such a law would be ludicrous. Now, since there is no such law, there can be no conspiracy to break such a law.

"It is not only the right but it is the plain duty of the governor of New Hampshire to determine whether there has been a crime committed subject to the process of extradition or whether a charge has been trumped up against the accused. On this point Governor Stone cited authorities.

He held that the burden of proof was upon those asking for the extradition to show why it should be granted. The papers in the case, said Gov. Stone, show an entire absence of opportunity for conspiracy on Thaw's part.

"The affidavits here filed show how Thaw went away from Matteawan, but getting away is not the crime with which he is charged; it is conspiring to get away. The state of New York must show that in a lucid interval of his insanity Thaw conspired as a responsible party to escape from Matteawan. They advance here no such proof."

Gov. Stone read lengthy extracts from the stenographic report of the proceedings of the United States court at Littleton a week ago.

No Indictment Against Thaw

Gov. Stone pointed out that without an indictment against Thaw in New York he could not be tried, yet they ask for his extradition upon a charge upon which he cannot be tried if extradited.

"For some reason they are fond of Thaw at Matteawan," said Gov. Stone, "perhaps because he has given it so much notoriety. At any rate its gates are wide open for his return there and such return is the true object of these proceedings."

Gov. Stone submitted to Gov. Felker a typewritten brief in connection with his argument and other documents. At 12.50 Gov. Felker announced that the hearing was adjourned until 2 o'clock.

JEROME ARRIVED AT CONCORD EARLY THIS MORNING

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—With the arrival of former District Attorney Jerome of New York in this city at 5.15 this morning all was in readiness for the hearing before Governor Samuel D. Felker of New Hampshire on the petition of the state of New York for the extradition of Harry Kendall Thaw, alleged to have conspired to escape from the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan, N. Y.

Mr. Jerome was accompanied by Franklin Kennedy, assistant attorney general of the state of New York, and they occupied berths in a through sleeping car from New York city. After registering at the same hotel of which Thaw has been a guest for the past week, Messrs. Jerome and Kennedy went direct to their rooms and there remained until the breakfast hour. Neither had any statement to make as to their position in today's hearing.

This morning newspapermen and members of the bar obtained at the office of the secretary tickets of admission to the hearing, which will be held, beginning at 11 o'clock, in the chamber of the state senate. The desks of the 24 senators have been supplemented with tables for the use of the press and the available seating accommodations have been increased as much as possible.

While the governor's executive council does not act with him in the matter of granting extradition papers it is in session here this week on other matters and its members will attend the hearing accompanied by their wives.

Thaw was up early and had a final conference with his attorneys before arriving at the senate chamber. He appeared to be further encouraged by the presence of his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, and his brother Joseph who came here last night to give him as Mrs. Thaw said, "the support of his mother's presence in his fight to keep away from the madhouse."

A great crowd gathered outside the capital an hour before proceedings began.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KEEP CLEAN WITH CARBONOL

SOMETIMES soap-and-water cleanliness is enough. Sometimes aseptic cleanliness is absolutely necessary, and in such cases you should mix Carbonol in the water used in cleaning. A dash of Carbonol in a pail of water gives the whole mixture powerful disinfecting qualities.

Garbage cans and all repositories of refuse should be cleaned with it to kill the germs, to keep away flies and to suppress odors.

Carbonol is equally useful in general cleaning. Put it in the water when you mop the floors or wash the woodwork. Use it especially in cleaning the sickroom where there has been contagious disease. Sprinkle it in the cellar before sweeping and the musty smell will disappear.

A sample bottle with booklet will be sent free on request.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS ON

Weather Conditions Ideal—Light Vote Cast But Great Activity Among the Candidates

The state primaries are on in Lowell today and if the vote should prove light the weather clerk will not be to blame, providing the weather holds good until the polls close this evening.

The polls opened at 12 noon and will close at 9 p. m. In former years the polls opened at 11 a. m. and closed at 8 p. m. The law requires that the polls must be kept open for eight hours and it is optional with city governments or boards of selectmen as to the hour of opening. The municipal council, a month or so ago voted on the question of hours and made it from 12 m. to 9 p. m. The council allowed that these hours were best suited to local conditions.

There was considerable activity about the various precincts when the polls opened at the noon hour and automobiles and carriages were very much in evidence during the early hours of the afternoon. The automobiles and carriages were more especially for the old men and the day was so fine that a goodly number of them turned out to enjoy the ride as well as to vote.

Thirteen job wagons, with "Happy Day" Casey's caravan as an auxiliary, drew up in front of the Moody street entrance to the city hall at 11 o'clock this forenoon and took the ballot boxes to the various precincts. A little later, City Clerk Flynn made the rounds of the precincts, in the buildings department automobile, just to see that everything was in "apple pie" order, and he made a quick trip, too, as he was due back at the hall at 11.45 for a meeting of the municipal council.

Cornelius F. Sullivan, care taker of the ballot boxes, has been engaged in the office of the secretary of state and got leave of absence last Saturday, in order to prepare the boxes for the state primaries in this city. Mr. Sullivan worked all day Sunday and part of last night. This morning he announced that the boxes were ready for action and that's all there was to it.

All work in connection with elections this fall will have to be pulled off in double quick time because there is very little election money left, the money having been spent during the summer months.

The following police officers were named by Supt. Welch to serve at the various polling booths:

to approximately $75,000 annual. In addition to this they are obliged to compete with the lower tariff, and it is their belief that such an increase would greatly injure local prosperity. Another firm stated that it has a business of about 50,600 tons annually in New England alone, over the B. & M. lines. These facts were brought out during the hearing.

Among the officials present with Commissioner Prouty were representatives of the public service commissions of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Lawyer Edgar J. Rich, counsel for the Boston & Maine, opened the proceedings with a long statement of the reasons for the demand for higher rates. Part of his speech is appended.

After his opening, he called four witnesses, Vice President Hobbs, who has charge of the finances; General Manager Pollock. Mr. Bartlett, superintendent of motor power and Chief Abel Cortell.

Mr. Hobbs dealt at length with the financial conditions of the road, stating that the company needed 10,000 new freight cars as it has been doing business with hired freight cars. The company also needed greater facilities in the line of terminals and trackage.

Mr. Rich said there was a great falling off in the revenues of the road. He said that this road was confronted by a serious situation. For July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $54,500 as contrasted with $407,302 for July, 1912. For September the decrease in operating revenue had been up till the 14th at the rate of $9500 a day. This was due, Mr. Rich said, to an increase in the rate of wages, cost of material, hiring cars and in interest charges.

The annual report of the Boston & Maine road for the year ending June 31 shows a deficit of $1,324,000. The total net revenue was $10,509,996.

Lawyer Rich's Statement

The following is a synopsis of the opening statement made by Edgar J. Rich, general solicitor for the Boston & Maine railroad:

The investigation of the New England railroads which began in the spring of 1912 was occasioned principally by complaints of bad service on the Boston & Maine railroad. During the course of the hearing it developed that the causes of bad service were extreme cold weather, the Hoosac Tunnel disaster and retrenchment. It was shown that retrenchment was imperative if the railroad was to be kept solvent. During the investigation the railroad officials, smarting under public criticism, began to pay more attention to service, with the result that in the spring of 1913, although service had improved, the financial condition of the railroad was becoming most serious. This condition developed towards the close of the hearing in April. This hearing today is held, partly at least, for the purpose of determining with greater certainty whether the claim of the Boston & Maine railroad that its revenue is entirely inadequate can be justified.

Board's Financial Condition

For the year ending June 30, 1913, the Boston & Maine railroad, after paying operating expenses and fixed charges, had a net corporate income of $49,896.82. This is the total amount available for dividends to the stockholders, with nothing for additions and betterments. It is useless to conceal the serious situation which confronts the Boston & Maine railroad. For the month of July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $54,550.94, as contrasted with $407,302.93 for the same month of 1912. The net results for August are not yet available, but from a preliminary study little satisfaction is gleaned from the figures. For September the decrease in gross operating revenue to the 14th of the month has been at the rate of $9500 per day.

Increased Revenue

That the Boston & Maine railroad cannot go on without greatly increasing its net revenue is too clear for argument. It is needless to say that these representatives of expert tribunals recognize fully the necessity for reasonable net earnings which may be available in part for permanent improvements, and in part to pay a reasonable return to the owners of the property. The public, too, as a matter of fairness, recognizes fully the right of the stockholders to a reasonable return. If the public is to be properly served in the way of current service and in improvements and enlargements of service, as required by increasing business, and increasing public demands, there must be a vastly greater margin for improving the present service and enlarging the plant to accommodate the ever increasing traffic and public demands.

The only question about which there may be a difference of opinion is whether the increased net revenue should come through reduction of expenses, by more economical and more efficient methods, or whether it should come from higher rates. If the same result can be accomplished by improvement in methods and reform within the railroad organization, this ought to be done. A railroad has no right to come before the public authorities and ask for increased rates unless it can show that it cannot gain this result by the exercise of absolute honesty, reasonable economy and efficiency. The interstate commerce commission and the state commissions are justified, therefore, in compelling us to make an exhibit of our operating methods, and to see to what extent an increase in net revenue may come from the adoption of more efficient methods.

Causes of the Decrease

The public service commission of New Hampshire and the interstate commerce commission have each made searching inquiry into the causes of the financial condition of the Boston and Maine railroad. We believe that the following are the principal causes of this condition:—

1. Great increase in rate of wages. The increase for a single year ending June 30, 1911, was approximately $2,-000,000, for the same number of men—an increase equivalent to 5 per cent. on the capital stock. Since that time there has been a progressive increase in wages, so that at the present time it is safe to say that the Boston and Maine railroad is paying at least $5,-000,000 more for the same amount of labor than it paid in 1910; or, in other words, an amount equivalent to a 7 per cent. dividend.

2. The increase in the cost of hiring freight cars, the per diem rate changing on January 1, 1913, from 30 and 35c. to 45c. This would be equivalent to an increased burden of nearly a million dollars a year.

3. The moderate increase in business has resulted in extreme congestion at many points, which probably has resulted in an increase in the cost of handling traffic.

4. Large increase in interest charge.

As the decrease in net earnings was more or less coincident with New Haven management the impression has prevailed that in some way the New Haven control was responsible for this condition. The rigid investigation of the New Hampshire commission and of the federal commission establishes the fact beyond controversy that the New Haven has dealt absolutely fairly with the Boston and Maine railroad.

Exercise of Economy

The Boston and Maine railroad has had the benefit of the services of its old and trusted officials, and has also had the benefit of able men, trained on other railroads. But every new man coming to the Boston and Maine railroad comes up against the same situation; namely, that there can be little saving through the exercise of economy or through more efficient methods until vast sums are expended for permanent improvements.

By reason of the drastic investigations made by commissions during the past two or three years a few instances of inefficient administration have been discovered. For instance, the New Hampshire public service commission criticized severely, and justly the methods employed at certain points in loading coal on engines. As a result of its criticism many of our coaling plants have been revamped and others are in process of improvement, with the result that we expect soon to have most of our coaling plants doing work at greatly reduced cost. But the opportunities for saving of this kind are exceedingly few.

Coal a Big Problem

The coal problem is one of the big problems of New England railroads because we are so far from the mines. If we were able to secure our supply at the same cost that the Pennsylvania railroad secures its supply, we would save the equivalent of a five per cent dividend.

Certainly after the drastic investigations of the last two years no criticism can justly be made of our purchases of coal. The contracts have been found by commissions to be very favorable to us.

What is said of the purchase of coal is equally applicable to the purchase of all supplies. There is no evidence of lack of honesty or efficiency.

There is one internal condition, however, which would doubtless improve the situation. The last two years the Boston & Maine railroad has been so castigated, criticized and ridiculed that it is not surprising that the officers and men alike have been losing courage. Re-establish esprit de corps and you will reduce unit cost; give the officers an opportunity to loosen up a little in economy, remove the pressure under which every one is working and you will do much to rehabilitate the spirit of the organization.

How Can Road be Financed?

The money imperatively needed in order to put the Boston & Maine railroad in a fair condition for safety and efficiency in operation cannot be raised at the present time upon any basis which would not place a heavy burden upon the railroad in the future. The laws of the states in which it is incorporated forbid the selling of stock at less than par. Its present market value is about 60. Financing by short term notes can be accomplished only at such high rates of interest as would place the railroad in a more unfortunate position than it is today. Bonds cannot be sold upon the basis which the directors would be justified in authorizing. No matter how the financing is to be accomplished it cannot be done except by placing the Boston & Maine railroad in a position where its stock will sell at par. This can be done only by a material increase in rates. When earning power is re-established and the stock sells at par or higher the financial problem is solved and the Boston & Maine railroad will become an efficient public servant. The remedy is in your hands.

ACCESSORY TO SUICIDE

MEDIUM ARRESTED—MAN HELD FOR MURDER OF WIFE AND CHILD

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 23.—A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of J. G. Farrell, on a charge of being an accessory to the suicide of Mrs. T. A. Turner and her daughter at Glenwood last Wednesday.

According to a written confession that the police say was made by Mrs. Turner's husband, she and her daughter met death in an agreement that all three should commit suicide.

It is alleged Farrell induced Turner to deed his property to him and then influenced him to carry out the suicide pact. Turner is recovering from the self-administered poison. Turner said Farrell held seances with the Turner family and "brought back" Turner's dead son, who urged his father "to enter the land beyond."

County Prosecutor Collins announced that he would arrest Turner on charges of murdering his wife and daughter.

TUBERCULOSIS EMBLEM

To be Standardized—Double Red Cross Will be Used by All Anti-Tuberculosis Organizations

A special committee of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, of which Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs of Baltimore is chairman, announces the exact proportions of the double red cross, the international tuberculosis emblem, which have been adopted in the United States. Every organization or institution dealing with tuberculosis will be urged to use the emblem in its correct proportions.

Although the double red cross was adopted for use in the United States in 1906 as the symbol of the crusade against tuberculosis no effort was made to standardize the shape or proportions, with the result that hundreds of differently formed emblems are now being used in this country. After a year of study of the history and artistic merits of all of the designs available, the National association has finally chosen one in which all of the arms are pointed, the two cross-arms being of the same length. The width of the cross is taken as the unit in determining the proportions. The length of the lower leg is 7 units; the arms are 3 units on either side; the point above the arms 2½ units; and the distance between the arms, 1½ units. These measurements hold good for any size.

The double red cross was first adopted as the symbol of the International Anti-Tuberculosis association in Berlin, in October, 1902. The proposer of the symbol was Dr. G. Sersiron of Paris, who is now associate secretary of L'Association Centrale Francaise Contre la Tuberculose. Today the emblem is being used by anti-tuberculosis workers in every part of the world, even in Iceland, India, South Africa, Labrador, Japan, China and the Philippines. The double red cross is similar in shape to a cross used frequently in the Greek Catholic churches, and also to the Lorraine cross of France.

In the United States over 1200 anti-tuberculosis associations and committees, nearly 550 sanatoria and hospitals with 400 dispensaries and about 200 open air schools, besides a number of other organizations, are using the double red cross as their emblem. Wherever it is seen, it means war against tuberculosis.

PRIMARIES ON

The State Campaign for Nominations Closed Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The campaign for nominations in the state primaries closed last night. Candidates for state office come before the voters today for party endorsement, with two principal contests as the only enlivening feature of the dullest of the three campaigns under the primaries system.

Each of the two candidates in these two contests—that for governor on the republican ticket, in which Col. Everett C. Benton and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner are the contenders, and for lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket, sought by E. P. Barry and Richard H. Long, last night expressed confidence in the outcome.

"I think the chances are in my favor, but I am by no means overconfident," said Congressman Gardner.

"I shall carry every county in the state except Essex and possibly Franklin. My nomination is certain," was the more confident prediction of Mr. Benton.

Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh is an unopposed candidate for head of the democratic ticket and Charles S. Bird will lead the progressives for a second year.

There are no contests in the progressive ranks, and interest in the primaries so far as the party is concerned apparently centers in the size of the vote.

The secretary of state sent out more than a million ballots yesterday but it is expected that less than a quarter of that number will be used.

A dozen senatorial fights, and 50 or 60 struggles for nominations for the legislature may bring out votes in some districts.

The balloting in Boston and some of the other cities and a few small towns will begin at 6 a. m., but in a majority of cases the primaries will be held in the evening.

After the three parties, democratic, progressive and republican have selected their candidates there will still be two weeks in which independent candidates may obtain places on the ticket.

It was reported yesterday that Gov. Foss, elected as a democrat and who failed to receive a sufficient endorsement to run on the republican primary ticket for governor, would enter the field as an independent candidate for a fourth term. Gov. Foss has been asked several times regarding his political future but has refused to commit himself.

EARLY VOTE LIGHT

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A primary election for the selection of candidates of the November state election was held in Massachusetts today with good weather and few contests. The early vote except in districts where there was a struggle among candidates for the legislature was light.

Interest centered on the contest for the head of the republican ticket between Col. Everett C. Benton of Belmont and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton. There was also a contest in the democratic party for lieutenant governor between Edward P. Barry of Boston and Richard H. Long of Framingham. There was no opposition to Charles S. Bird of Walpole or to Lieut. Gov. Walsh of Fitchburg for the leading places on the progressive and democratic tickets.

Up to 9 a. m. the progressive vote in Boston and other large cities where early voting was held was very light.

BREAKS COAL RECORD

LAST YEAR'S PRODUCTION IN KENTUCKY SHOWS INCREASE OF NEARLY 2,500,000 TONS

The production of coal in Kentucky established a new record in 1912 with a total production of 16,490,521 short tons, according to Edward W. Parker, coal statistician of the United States geological survey. This large output represented an increase of 2,440,818 tons over the figures for 1911, and of nearly 2,000,000 tons over the former maximum output of 1910. There was an even greater increase in value in 1912, namely, $2,845,749 over the figures for 1911. The increased production in Kentucky was due chiefly to the new developments in the eastern part of the state, although the western counties participated largely in the gain.

The number of men employed in the mines in 1912 was 24,504, and the average production per man, 675 tons. Kentucky ranks second among the states in the percentage of coal produced by machines, Ohio holding first place. In 1912, 66 per cent. of the coal produced was machine mined. Labor troubles in the state were insignificant during the year, but according to the United States bureau of mines there were 51 fatalities in and about the mines, 41 underground, 2 in shafts, and 8 on the surface.

State Has Great Coal Reserve

Kentucky is the only one of the coal-producing states which has within its borders areas belonging to any two of the distinctly separate great coal fields. The eastern counties of the state are underlain by the coal beds of the great Appalachian mountain system, extending entirely across the state in a northeast-southwest direction, while the southern limits of the central or eastern interior coal field are found in the more northern counties of the western part of the state. The total area underlain by coal in the eastern counties of Kentucky is estimated at 10,270 square miles, and the coal-bearing areas in the western part of the state are estimated to contain 4500 square miles. Up to the close of 1911 the larger part of the production of the state had been from the western district, but as a result of extensive developments in Harlan, Johnson, Letcher and Pike counties, the larger part of the coal production in 1912 was from the eastern part of the state. The eastern Kentucky coals are mostly high-grade "gas" or "coking" coals, with some cannel coal.

WELL KNOWN MAN

ANDREW A. GRAY PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING—HE HAD BEEN ILL FOUR YEARS

Andrew A. Gray, one of the best known young men of this city, died this morning at his home, 19 Tolman avenue, after a lingering illness, aged 35 years. Deceased was very prominent in Lowell and counted a host of friends, who will be grieved to learn of his demise.

Andrew A. Gray was born in Lowell 35 years ago and received his education in the schools of his native city.

THE LATE ANDREW A. GRAY

For a number of years he held the position of traveling salesman for the Acme Glass Co. of New York. Four years ago he was stricken with an illness, which was sure to lead him to the grave. However, he always bore his infirmity with resignation, and it was not until about six months ago that he was confined to his home. The end came at 8 o'clock this morning.

Deceased was a member of the Lowell Aerie of Eagles, the Elks, Div. 1, A. O. H. and the Travelers' association. He is survived by his father, Terrance, three brothers, Patrick of Philadelphia, Terrence of New York and James J., manager of the Lowell baseball team five sisters, Miss Katherine T., Mrs. Mary Andrews, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunfey, Mrs. Edward Tryon and Mrs. John Dineen of Lawrence, also several nieces and nephews.

UNDERGROUND WATERS

"Underground Waters For Farm Use," a popular report of the United States Geological Survey, has again been reprinted to meet the wide demand from all farming and suburban sections of the country. A copy can now be obtained free, on application to the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

This water supply paper (No. 255) explains in simple language the habits of flow of underground waters through different kinds of rocks and soils, and calls attention to the dangerous character of many wells whose waters are supposed to be pure and wholesome. Water from limestone rock especially, it is stated, is apt to contain germs of typhoid or other disease, due to the fact that surface waters may find their way directly into underground channels which have been cut out through the dissolution of the lime.

Methods of protection from subsurface drainage in farming districts are discussed in the report, well-drilling methods and cost, types of curbs and well casings with which wells should be fitted, etc. The report embraces only about 50 pages, but is well illustrated with photographs and diagrams.

Definite results are had quickest if the delatone is bought in an original package.

FIFTY KILLED

Rebels Dynamite Train in Mexico — Survivors Were Robbed

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 23.—Fifty persons were killed when rebels dynamited a passenger train on the Mexican National railway, 60 miles south of Saltillo, Mexico, Friday afternoon according to official reports to Mexican federal headquarters in Nuevo Laredo yesterday. The train was then looted and the surviving passengers robbed, it is said.

Forty federal soldiers and 10 second class passengers comprised the official death list. The number of injured was not given.

W. W. Mervain, of San Francisco, the only American on the train, is said to have escaped injury but was robbed.

Two dynamite mines were set off by electricity, it was said. The first class coach was only derailed, but the baggage, express and two second class coaches were blown to pieces.

COAL OUTPUT INCREASES

PRODUCTION IN TENN. FOR 1912 SHOWS HEALTHY CONDITION—VALUED AT OVER $7,000,000.

Activity in coal mining in Tennessee was well maintained in 1912, according to figures of E. W. Parker, of the United States Geological Survey. In fact, the production shows an increase of some forty thousand tons in that year over 1911. The output for 1912 was 6,473, 228 short tons, valued at $7,379,903.

The coal measures of the Appalachian region across the eastern part of Tennessee in a comparatively narrow belt, 50 to 70 miles wide, in a northeast-southwest direction. The total area underlain by coal is about 4,400 square miles and the greater part of the area contains one or more beds of workable thickness and quality. All of the coals of Tennessee are bituminous, generally high grade, and some of them make a good quality of coke. Smithing coal is produced in the southern part of the field.

The coal mines of Tennessee gave employment of 10,309 men for an average of 234 days in 1912, the average production by each man employed being 625 tons for the year and 2.65 tons for each working day.

About two-thirds of the total coal production of Tennessee is properly mined, according to Mr. Parker, and one-third is shot off the solid without having been undercut or sheared. In 1912 the quantity of coal mined by hand was 2,708,650 short tons, or 41.8 per cent. of the total, and 1,205,595 tons, or 18.6 per cent., were mined by the use of machines. The quantity of coal shot off the solid was 2,127,917 tons, or 32.9 per cent. of the total. Most of the coal used in the manufacture of coke in Tennessee is washed before being charged into the ovens. In 1912 the quantity of coal made into coke at the mines was 447,413 short tons, which included 390,994 tons of washed coal.

The time lost by labor troubles in Tennessee during 1912 amounted to less than 1 per cent. of the total time made, and in consequence was not of sufficient importance to influence the production. The fatalities in the coal mines of Tennessee in 1912, according to the United States bureau of mines, totaled 18, of which 17 occurred underground, and of these, 14 were caused by falls of roof and coal. There were no deaths due to explosions of dust or gas. The fatality record of 1912 was a notable improvement over 1911, when 115 men lost their lives, 84 of them by explosions.

M. T. I. TO CELEBRATE

LOCAL SOCIETY WILL HOLD BANQUET IN HONOR OF 123D ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF FR. MATHEW

The members of the Mathew Temperance Institute of this city will celebrate the 123d anniversary of the birth of the Apostle of Temperance, Rev. Theobald Matthew, on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 9, with an elaborate banquet in their rooms, 97 Central street. This is an annual event and from the extensive preparations which have been in progress for some time under the direction of the various committees, it will doubtless be one of record success.

The banquet will start promptly at 8 o'clock. Announcements of this fact have been sent out to the members and invited guests, and all have been urged to contribute to the success by being present. Superintendent of Schools Hugh J. Molloy will preside and the principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I., of North Billerica. There will also be other prominent men among those who will deliver addresses. The entertainment committee has arranged a delightful program for the event, containing several excellent musical and literary numbers.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

At the meeting of Division 8, A. O. H. held last night in Hibernian hall three propositions for membership were received and accepted. A large amount of routine business was transacted and it was voted to hold a smoke talk on the evening of October 13.

The following committee was appointed to take charge of the entertainment: On speakers, D. F. Reilly and Patrick J. Mahoney; on refreshments, Michael Rynne, chairman, John McGarry and John Murray; on notification and press, Edw. J. Flannery, Thomas Dorsey and Hugh McGowan.

Protection Lodge, 43, A. B. S.

Protection lodge, 43, American Benefit society met in regular session in Pilgrim hall last night with a large number of members present. It was voted to hold all future meetings in Odd Fellows hall on Middlesex street. After the business a social hour was enjoyed.

TO COST $5000

Taking of Religious Census in Lowell Will Require Four Months

The chief subject of discussion at a meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches held last night at the Ministry-at-Large was the religious census. The work of taking the census will begin this week. There will be 20 census takers and it is estimated that it will take them four months to finish the job. The estimated expense is $5000 which is borne by the Bible society. The policy is to get, in each case, throughout the canvass, an expression of religious preference, if possible, in cases where families or individuals are not connected with any church. Where it is found impossible to secure such expression, the report is made "no preference."

The following committee was appointed to receive and distribute the reports of the canvassers: Rev. J. M. Kyle, chairman; Rev. W. H. McLean, Mr. Harvey B. Greene, Rev. Appleton Grannis and Rev. A. R. Dills.

Prior to the opening of the census question there were various reports of committees, one of the most interesting being the report on the work of the federation playground for the season, given by Rev. C. T. Billings, who read the report turned in by the supervisor, Miss Genevieve E. Lawrence.

The average daily attendance at the playground for the season was 27 and the cost of running the playground, irrespective of the salary paid the teacher, was very small.

FEW AIRMEN IN CIVIL LIFE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In the event of war it is doubtful whether a score of men could be found in civil life in this country who could be utilized by the army in aeroplane work, is the opinion of Brig. Gen. George S. Scriven, chief signal officer, in charge of the army aviation corps.

In calling attention to what he considers a critical situation, Gen. Scriven declared yesterday that the number of civilians who have heretofore undertaken to fly heavier-than-air machines for pleasure, sport or money-making is fast diminishing. "The army must look to itself and to the men of the organized militia," he said, "to supply a reasonable number of officers for military aviation, in case of necessity."

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty-Seekers

C. M. P.: The neck should receive similar attention to that given the complexion, so color and texture of skin will be the same. A yellow neck and a white face give a discordant effect. I advise using for both neck and complexion, the treatment recommended to "Monica."

F. M.: First, stop scowling, if you would get rid of the lines between the eyes. The best application for such lines, and all wrinkles, is a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint. Bathe the face in this daily until entirely relieved.

Monica: You hardly need such a list of cosmetics as you mention. Ordinary mercolized wax will help you more than any or all of them. It will gradually absorb the withered, discolored complexion and you will soon have a new, youthful and healthy-looking skin. You needn't get more than an ounce of the wax, which will cost you little at any druggist's. Apply nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—Woman's Realm.

FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Arrangements Being Made in All Countries for the 1916 Meet—American Prospects Good

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Although three years will elapse before the sixth revival of the Olympic games to be held at Berlin during the summer of 1916, the meet has already assumed proportions far surpassing any previous struggle for world's amateur track and field championships. The games, their preliminaries and preparation are topics of national and international comment and discussion throughout the old and new world. In the midst of these preparations the United States athletic authorities continue to lead the way. American prospects for the 1916 Olympic games are brighter than at any time since the revival of this athletic classic, owing to the work of the new "International Athletic Federation" just organized at Berlin by delegates from sixteen leading athletic countries of the world.

As a controlling international authority for amateur track and field sports its suggestions to the Olympic games committee will carry great weight. The proposed I. A. F. standard program of track and field events is made up almost entirely of events on the programs of American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American athletes are accustomed. The victory of the American views at the congress German sport critics ascribe to the fact that the events proposed by the United States are practiced everywhere and are devoid of freakishness; the superiority of the results produced under the American rules and in no small measure to the ability of the American delegates and the prestige of American athletes.

It was the concensus of opinion among the delegates that the American representatives of the Amateur Athletic union were by far the best versed in the theory and technique of athletics. When they advocated changes in the rules they advanced excellent reasons in support of their contention and won many victories and supporters to their ideas. Some of the rules advocated at the suggestion of the United States delegates were: Toeboard circles for the shotput; penalties for false starts, and a rule to prevent drawing for several entrants all representing one country in preliminary heats of races. On a few points American ideas were rejected, as, for instance in adopting a 16-pound shot made of iron instead of the smaller American lead shot, and in providing for a dug-out take-off for the broad jump, against the United States argument that the take-off joist sunk flush with the ground was far safer.

Fund of $500,000

While the International Athletic federation was smoothing out wrinkles in the program to be offered as a model for the Berlin games, the Olympic controversy that has held the attention of English athletic followers since the Stockholm meet of a year ago attained fresh prominence. The proposal to raise a fund of $500,000 rather staggered the average subject of George V. Although there were few early subscribers to the fund there were hundreds of inquiries as to what was to be done with enormous sum of money.

The Duke of Westminster in a public letter calls attention to the long list of sporting trophies and championships which England lost during the past fifteen years. He wrote:

"Polo, America; racquets, America; yachting, America; lawn tennis (singles), New Zealand; lawn tennis (Davis cup), America; court tennis, America (Jay Gould); boxing, America-France, billiards (English), Australia; swimming, America-Australia; rugby-football, South Africa-New Zealand; lacrosse, Canada; cycling, France-Germany; trotting horse, America; horse jumping, France-Russia; fencing, France; shooting (King's prize), Canada; skating, Sweden; track and field athletics, America.

"This is a tale of national disaster. Is England to do nothing to recover her ancient supremacy as the mother of sport? The king is both a man of business and a sportsman. As Prince of Wales on a memorable occasion, his momentous 'Wake up England' electrified an empire and gave an immense stimulus to commerce and industry. As our sovereign he now bids Britain to 'wake up' in sport and hopes that every effort will be made to ensure that the United Kingdom is represented by its best athletes at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1916. We are in honor bound to go forward and do our level best to restore the lost prestige of a great sporting nation. But victory is efficient organization and training, and both cost money.

"I confidently appeal to my fellow sportsmen to help me in getting the $500,000, for which a national appeal was made by Lord Grey, Lord Harris, Lord Rothschild, Lord Roberts, Lord Strathcona and myself as quickly as possible."

California Tennis Players

A surprise which was no part of the official reception was sprung on the California tennis players who toured the east this summer when they returned to their native state recently. Evidently several ambitious youngsters had been practicing with the racquet all summer and the home comers received a distinct shock in be California state championship tournament. In the doubles Maurice E. McLoughlin, paired with Wickham Havens, was defeated in three straight sets by B. H. Bolkin and C. E. Foley. Clarence J. Griffin, winner of the western singles championship, was eliminated by Norman Ambrose, an unranked player, in two sets. Another upset came when Griffin and John R. Strachan, who played McLoughlin and Bundy at Newport for the United States double title, were defeated by W. E. Johnston and E. Fottrell in three straight sets.

Challenge for Polo Cup

The impression is growing in national polo circles that a challenge for the polo cup will be received from the Hurlingham club of England before the time limit expires on Jan. 1. Lord Ashby St. Ledgers is back of the latest project to recover the trophy and has tentatively selected six players and a string of ponies. If the challenge conforms to the cup playing rules it will be accepted, according to a prominent official of the American Polo association. With competitions scheduled for the America's Davis and polo cups, 1914 would appear to be securing a flying start in international sport figures.

"TILLIE" SHAFER, SPEEDY 3D SACKER OF GIANTS, IS PLAYING FAST GAME

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—"Tillie" Shafer, the speedy Giant outfielder, is playing a hard game at the third bag for the McGrawites. Comparison with Baker, the third sacker of the Athletics, shows the Giant not as hard a hitter, but Shafer is just as fast in fielding and as speedy on bases. He is batting near the .300 mark.

SLANDER OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—If investigation shows that Perley Horne, superintendent of the Kamehameha school at Honolulu, actually said as alleged that American soldiers in the island contribute to the delinquency to the native girls, Mrs. Russell M. MacLennan, president of the Society for the Protection of the Dignity and Honor of the Uniform of the United States wants the war department to withdraw Lieut. George E. Turner, on duty at the school as military instructor.

Mrs. MacLennan has protested to the war department against what she terms the slander of American soldiers by Supt Horne. She bases her protest on information furnished by Sergeant Disler of the second infantry at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, and says that Hawaiian youth should not receive military instruction if disrespect for women is a distinguishing characteristic of the American soldier.

GALLANT, IDEAL BOXER

CHELSEA BOY DOES NOT USE TOBACCO OR LIQUOR AND ALWAYS RUSHES HOME WITH BACON

Gilbert Gallant, who meets Joe Phillips at the L. A. club Friday night, is one of the most popular boxers in New England. "Gil," as he is called by his many friends does not use tobacco or liquor in any way. Unlike the majority of boxers Gallant has but one thought and that is home. After each engagement Gallant brings his earnings home and gives the greater portion of it to his mother. As a tribute to his popularity in Boston two special cars have been chartered by his friends to accompany him to Lowell Friday evening. Gallant intends putting in a strenuous year and has hopes of reaching the top of the lightweight class. He has been resting in the country for a month and is already in excellent condition for Friday evening. Phillips is liable to upset Gallant's fondest hopes of a victory. This boy formerly claimed Providence as his home but of late has been located at Cleveland. He has had remarkable success in his tour of the middle west and the south. As he has seen Gallant perform he feels sure he can secure a decisive win over him. In speaking of the bout Boston sport writers say it should be one of the best lightweight bouts of the season. Gardiner Brooks is daily training for his bout with Young Baldwin. Brooks is one of the cleverest boys of his weight in New England and looks to have a bright future ahead of him.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Rube DeGroff has made himself nearly as popular in Hartford as he is in Lowell. Rube's antics are something new on a ball park down this way.

Manager Clarkin informed the writer that he does not expect to lose a player by draft this year. Curry, however, will be sold in all probability. The Hartford second sacker is not anxious to continue in the city where he was recently fined $200 for assault and battery. Curry is a hard player for a manager to handle but is a great man at second.

The urchins here follow the Lowell players around the streets with eyes and mouths wide open. The same curiosity, though not so openly displayed, is shown by the adults apparently. Hartford fans did not believe it possible for Lowell to even win two games.

Kelliher, Hartford's first baseman, comes from Washington, D. C., and is a typical hotheaded Southerner. Yesterday a cousin of Kelliher who had come on from New York to see Saturday's game, remarked that he considered Lowell to be the stronger team and his kinsman flew into a rage. Kelliher heaped abuse upon his cousin for several minutes until his head cooled and then his apologies were just as profuse as his harangue had been abusive.

Hoey has been playing baseball for nearly twenty years. His hair is quite gray around the temples and he is not as slight as when he was with the Red Sox. Hoey's drop to the minors was occasioned by throwing his arm out while with Boston. He has played great ball for Hartford this year.

1000 PUPILS SUSPENDED

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 23.—One thousand pupils of three Syracuse High schools were indefinitely suspended late yesterday following a strike yesterday morning as a protest against new hours of study, 9 o'clock in the morning to 2.30 in the afternoon.

The striking pupils, many of whom were girls, escaped through windows and side doors, paraded the business streets and held indignation meetings.

At the technical high school one boy attempted to address a crowd of strikers from the top of a barrel, but was pulled down by the police. The pupils demand a return to the old hours from 8.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m.

The scores made by Company K are: 200 yards shoot, 196; 500 yards, 225; 600 yards, 210. Total 634.

MANAGER GRAY IS CALLED HOME BY THE DEATH OF HIS BROTHER

(Over Sun's Special Wire)

HARTFORD, Sept. 23.—Manager Gray left the Lowell baseball headquarters here last night in response to a telegram from his family notifying him that his brother, Andrew, was near death's door and not expected to live through the night. Word came here this morning that he had passed away. Ever since the sad tidings were conveyed to the club gloom has been the predominant feature of the Lowell camp.

CAPT. AUBREY
In Charge of Lowell Team

Captain Aubrey will manage the team in today's Lowell-Hartford battle. The shortstop's word will be supreme until Manager Gray once more picks up the reins of command.

The players of both teams are confident of winning and a large crowd is expected to turn out to the fourth game. Weather indications point to an ideal baseball day.

LEATA J WINNER

California Mare Showed Class at Grand Circuit Meet in Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Leata J., a California mare, was second choice to Frank Bogash, Jr., in the Hotel Hartman pacing stake race that held the place of prominence on the program for the opening day of Columbus grand circuit racing, but she won in a five heat struggle, in which the sprinting through the stretch was a feature.

Several times this season these two pacers have met and yesterday's victory is the third for Leata J. In the second heat she did the final quarter in 29½ seconds and completed the next mile with a quarter in 25¼ seconds. Winning this heat gave her an advantage over Frank Bogash, Jr. They did not have rush enough to overtake Del Rey in the fourth heat but were fresher in the fifth, which Leata J. took by a sensational burst of speed. She was credited with pacing the last half in 1.00¾.

Directum I. was a pronounced favorite for the King pacing stake and won without trouble. Though the track was slow, he did the third and final heat in 2.04½, to keep clear of Walter Cochato and Branham Baughman.

Omar, purchased six weeks ago by Louisville, Ky., horsemen, made his first grand circuit appearance yesterday and disposed of Newzel, the first choice in the 2.11 trot. Newzel won the first two heats, with Omar close up. In the third heat the result was reversed, and Omar did not have much trouble in taking the next two.

Cleo B. was almost overlooked in a field of 13 2.15 pacers, of which Princess Margaret was thought to be the best. The first two miles were won handily by Cleo B. The third heat went to Zanzibar and then the race went over for resumption today.

62 MILES IN RAIN

Young Man Arrives in Boston After a Trip of Eleven Hundred Miles

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Drenched to the skin and covered with mud collected from Massachusetts roads, Clarence J. Tinker, divinity student at Cambridge, socialist and vegetarian, wearily pedaled along Tremont street last night on an 11-year-old bicycle, at the end of a journey that began in Michigan, 1100 miles away, 15 days ago.

The last 62 miles of his trip were made through pouring rain over soggy country roads.

Tinker, who is only 24 years old, has crossed the state of Michigan on a wheel many times and once made a 4000-mile excursion into Canada. He left his home in Fenton, Mich., Sept. 8 and when he reached Boston last night had become a confirmed vegetarian on the strength of the five pounds he had gained on a non-meat diet during the last two weeks. His trip cost him just $31.

MILLS SHOULD REWARD MERIT

If the managers of the Lowell mills would arouse the ambition and even the enthusiasm of their employes, there is just one way of doing it and that is to recognize and reward merit.

If they find a man doing good work and know that from his past record in regard to his devotion to the company's interests, his skill in doing his work, his ability to manage and control men, he is competent to be placed at the head of a department, they make a very grave blunder when they overlook such a man in filling any vacancy for which he is eligible. To be ignored in such a case chills his ambition and his enthusiasm. It demonstrates to him that good work is not appreciated by his employers or the officials over him and that it is useless for him to tax his energies unnecessarily in the company's interests. The habit of drawing upon the relatives of prominent officials of a company to fill vacancies and take charge of men who have been in the business for a generation, is one of the worst that could be adopted by the management of any mill. It has done incalculable harm to some mills we could mention here in Lowell. It has caused many of the operatives to drift along without any hope of promotion and to avoid any effort to improve. Next to this in its injurious effects is the action of a boss who when appointed to a position must gather around him a lot of men "from his own home," making places for them by discharging men who are by long odds their superiors.

But for the conviction that it is useless to seek advancement in the mills a far greater number of operatives would have taken up special courses at the Textile evening school. We have recently stated that the state should assume the entire expense of supporting the Textile school and we believe so because the school has not filled the original design of rapidly increasing the skilled help in our mills. How, it may be asked, can the school benefit the operatives who do not attend it? That they do not attend in greater numbers, we believe is due to the feeling that the increased skill attained will not bring any reward in the mills, that the man who has acquired more expert knowledge through study at the Textile school will be allowed to plod along in the same old rut and at the same rate of wages. The operatives who are cut off from all hope of promotion and who have nothing whatever to look forward to except the weekly wage are a very dull and spiritless lot. They have no enthusiasm in their work. They are working in a blind alley or cul de sac, as it were, from which they cannot hope to escape. It is a very short-sighted policy for the management of any mill to place a single operative in any such position. Better have them inspired with the hope of advancement, striving for something that will lift them to a higher position or at least increase their earning power.

It is only by rewarding merit that the mills can increase their skilled help without going outside. Had the local mills pursued this policy in past years, they would not have found it necessary to hire such a large number of the unskilled. It would have been better for them to have trained their own operatives than to have increased the number of hands and reduced alike the standard of skill and the rate of wages.

More than three-fourths of the operatives of every mill in Lowell are capable of great improvement along the lines of their various avocations. Their possibilities are allowed to lie dormant and uncultivated as a result of the failure of the mill men to reward merit by higher wages or promotion.

Where the only incentive is the pay envelope, there is a great loss of energy and of interest that would otherwise be exerted for the company. Until mill men show the operatives that merit will count, that the man who takes up special courses at the Textile school may reasonably expect some reward for his labor, there will be little improvement as a result of self-education after working hours. The mill officials should offer special inducement to operatives to take the evening courses at the Textile school and thus bring out some of their latent ability that otherwise can never be made applicable in actual work.

ABOLISH THE CROSSINGS

When any representative of the Boston and Maine company or any other company makes a statement that the people of Lowell do not want the grade crossing at Middlesex street abolished, he is simply stating an untruth, that is a libel upon Lowell and her people. The business men of Lowell are seriously handicapped by delay at the crossings on Middlesex and Fletcher streets.

Very often when the gates are down, as many as two score of teams and half a dozen automobiles are waiting on either side for an opportunity to pass. If the time of men and horses thus lost were computed for an entire day, it would prove a very considerable factor and would show the absurdity of the statement made that there is no public demand for the abolition of that crossing. There is now and always has been a strong public demand for the removal of the crossing at the depot.

This crossing is also a serious interference with the car service. The car lines that pass the depot can never keep to their time schedule on account of being held up at the crossing. The Highland line has always been a great annoyance because of the delays at the two crossings mentioned. The cars which take the Middlesex street crossing only are not quite so bad but sometimes their delays are also very aggravating. The danger of accidents at these crossings is another factor that should be considered because chauffeurs and the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles have always to exercise the greatest care lest they should be caught on the tracks when the gates go down.

The entire people of Lowell will endorse the action of the municipal council in pushing the matter of removing all the dangerous grade crossings in the city. The two mentioned are the worst and should be the next to be abolished. It is time that the business men of Lowell as well as the pedestrians who have to pass these crossings several times a day, should be protected against the danger and delay to which they are thus daily exposed.

GREATER RECIPROCITY COMING

There is some apprehension lest a trade war should be declared against the United States as a result of the termination of the trade agreements entered into with other countries by Ex-President Taft. To avert any rupture of this kind in our trade relations with other nations congress has decided to enact a provision that the existing trade agreements shall remain in force for four months after the new law takes effect. The natural result of the new tariff should be more favorable to the foreign nations; but the new law has a provision for penalty rates against any nation which discriminates against the United States. Certain amendments to the tariff law would authorize the president to impose higher duties on coffee, tea, fish, chinaware, silks, laces, jewelry, sugar, and many other items coming from countries not treating the United States as a favored nation on tariff duties.

The action proposed will avert the danger of any disturbance of our trade relations with other nations until new and in all probability more reciprocal agreements shall have been arranged under the new law.

The prospect is, that there will be larger measures of reciprocity between this and other countries and that these will redound to the general good of the entire nation.

THE SOVEREIGN PEOPLE

Today the voters have an opportunity to show their judgment in the selection of candidates to represent them in office. Upon the result will depend largely whether we shall have good men or bad, honest and capable or the reverse. The people shoulder a great responsibility in the discharge of their duties as citizens but unfortunately far too few of them realize to what an extent the sovereignty lies in their hands when they go to the polls.

In this country the sovereignty rests with the people and when certain agitators charge that trusts and combines rule the country, they imply that the people do not do their duty. The people have the power if they only exercise it but the great trouble is that they undervalue this power and fail to use it aright. The president of the United States, the senate and house of representatives have certain powers under the constitution but such powers are delegated by the people. The constitution itself, which is framed to protect the rights and liberties of the people, can be overturned, annulled or amended by the sovereign people by following the proper legal course.

When the people go to the polls to cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice and to pass upon the various questions submitted to them, they exercise the portion of the sovereignty vested in their hands. Thus they have the power that in other governments is exercised by kings and emperors. With this fact in mind how can a man be mean enough to sell his vote for beer, for money or any consideration whatsoever. The man who does this does not deserve the right of American citizenship. He should be disfranchised for life.

The British unionists are endeavoring to embroil Ireland in trouble that will cause the laborites to withdraw their support from the liberal party. They think they have succeeded and have already spread the report that there will be a general election before home rule can be granted. The wish is father to the thought. The Liberals are not likely to be moved by the threats of the Ulster followers of Sir Edward Carson.

Seen and Heard

A Massachusetts minister was making his first visit to Kentucky several years ago. He had to spend the night in a small mountain town where clouds and moonshine still abounded. Engaging in conversation with one of the natives, he said:

"My friend, this is a very bibulous state, I hear."

"Lord!" replied the man, "there hain't 25 bibles in all Kentucky."—Exchange.

A pair of local lady killers," says "The Man About Town" in the Salem News, "met their match the other evening in Town House square, when they made advances on two of the show girls who were playing in a local theatre, and the result was a scream to the few who happened to be "in" on the incident. The young men in question evidently spotted out the girls as they came along and took them for strangers. In this they were right, of course, but if they thought the girls fell prey to their charming manners (in their own minds), they were evidently mistaken. However, they succeeded in engaging the girls in conversation for a minute or so and then onlookers noticed that the party suddenly broke up, the young men beating a hasty retreat in one direction, while the girls went along about their business and with a smile on their countenances. It seems that no sooner had the youths engaged the girls in conversation than one of the latter innocently inquired where they could find a good eating place—and then the party broke up.

Ex-Senator Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, Me., is responsible for this story:

"I was in a small country store in my native state when an old lady, accompanied by a gawky-looking girl of about 15, came in and asked the proprietor to show her some cheap calico. She pulled one piece one way, then another, wetting it meantime and rubbing it with her fingers to ascertain if the colors were fast. She apparently was unable to satisfy herself regarding it.

"Finally she produced a small pair of scissors and snipped off a tiny piece, which she handed to the young girl.

"'Here, Emma,' she said, 'you chew on that an' see if it fades away.'

"Emma put the sample into her mouth and with the most serious expression imaginable went to work."

THE BEGGAR

He was a weary cripple who stopped
me in the street;
He leaned upon his crutches to rest
his weary feet,
And as I bought his pencils I saw his
thankful smile,
And where the crowd surged past us
I pause a little while.

"And are you never weary," I asked,
"of your fate,
And do you never envy the wealthy
and great?"
"Is life still worth the effort, and can
you gladly, too,
Still thank your God for favors which
He bestows on you?"

He smiled and then he answered;
"There stands in yonder square
A blind man who is begging of people
passing there;
He never sees their faces, but there,
day after day,
He bravely stands with outstretched
Hands to them that pass that way.

"I see the sky above me; I see the
children run
I see the world and wonder at things
which men have done,
And when the day is ended there is a
quiet place
Where I can see the gladness in some one's eager face.

"Sometimes I feel the burden and
sometimes I complain.
Then, seeing her who loves me, my
hopes return again."
He hobbled on; I watched him with
painful steps depart;
He took my pennies with him and left
a thankful heart.

THE SLIT SKIRTS

Houston Post: A Houston man just returned from New York says he saw quite a number of slashed skirts on Broadway, but he always turned his head the other way. However, it is not likely that this form of lying will become prevalent in Houston, and we still hope to maintain the old town's prestige as the Citadel of Truth.

GAZING AT THAW

Brockton Times: In court at Littleton, with Thaw seated at the counsel table, one girl, who is described as having blue eyes and pink cheeks, stood on tiptoe for five full minutes and gazed enraptured at the back of Thaw's head. She is no doubt treading a golden cloud of romance so high that she can't get back to dishwater and duty for fully a week.

DIDN'T FILE RETURNS

Manchester Union: One hundred and sixty-seven corporations have been restrained by the supreme court of Massachusetts from doing a business until they comply with the statutes requiring the filing of returns. Corporations, in common with individuals, should always conduct themselves with strict regard for the statutes.

LAW WILL BE REVISED

Lawrence Eagle: J. P. S. Mahoney, who was chairman of the protest meeting at city hall Friday evening expressed the case in a nut shell when he stated that the new child labor law would never have been passed had it been given sufficient notoriety. "Instead of waiting for the recess committee to investigate conditions in the cities they passed the law first and then sent the committee out to investigate," he said.

The law, however, has been passed and is being enforced. Under the conditions the only course to pursue is that adopted by Lawrence and Lowell in protesting against it and insisting that the law be revised by the next legislature. The candidates for representative in nearly all the textile cities of the state understand the situation pretty clearly and it is safe to say that there will be little delay in taking action after the session opens.

HALF FARE TO STAND

Worcester Post: A certain German street car line operating between cities in Rhenish Prussia charges only about half the regular passenger rates to those who stand. The fare from Elberfeld to Werden, a distance of about 10 miles, is 30 cents for those having seats and 17 cents for those standing. The round rate costs 50 cents if the passenger has a seat, while those who remain standing pay only 25 cents. The trip from Elberfeld to Werden takes one hour and 50 minutes.

FOREST NOTES

Washington stands first in lumber production, with Louisiana second.

It is said that 90,000,000 broom handles are used annually in the United States; one for each man, woman and child.

The lands burned over during the terrible fires on the Idaho national forests in 1910 are now largely covered with a thick growth of young tree seedlings, by natural reseeding.

Manufacturers of artificial limbs are seeking substitutes for English willow, used because of its combined lightness and strength. It is claimed that the Port Orford cedar of the Pacific coast will prove equally serviceable.

In the open yellow pine forests of Washington and Oregon a collapsible plow is being used in digging fire lines to stop surface fires. The plow can be dismantled and folded into a compact form, so that it can be packed on horseback, and weighs only 40 pounds. When in use, one man with a horse can do the work of 20 or more men working with shovels.

LOWELL MAN ARRESTED

CHARGED WITH BREAKING AND ENTERING HOUSE AT SALISBURY —HE PLEADED GUILTY

AMESBURY, Sept. 23.—Adolphus Trombley, claiming Lowell as his home, was held in $500 in the district court yesterday on a complaint charging breaking and entering Philip Helfrich, a hotel proprietor at Salisbury beach, upon returning Saturday evening to a cottage rented by him since the fire, found a window broken and the gas meter robbed. Trombley was found concealed beneath a bed, it was claimed. He pleaded guilty.

TWO PRISONERS ESCAPED

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 23.—Two prisoners escaped from the detention room at the East Cambridge court house yesterday by wrenching loose the iron grating over one of the windows. The fugitives, Michael Murphy and Alexander D. Morrison, had just been sentenced to short terms at the state farm for minor offences. Three other prisoners refused to take advantage of the chance to escape and reported the matter to the sheriff.

DAMAGE BY RAIN

Manchester Visited by Worst Storm in History—Cellars Flooded

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 23.—With a rainfall yesterday of two inches between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. Manchester experienced one of the fiercest rainstorms in its history. The basements of both business houses and dwelling houses were flooded because of the inability of the sewers to carry off the vast volume of water. Much damage was done in West Manchester by flooded cellars and washouts in the roadbeds.

Nearly all of the hill streets, Amory, Putnam, Schuyler and Sullivan streets, are washed out to a great extent and large piles of sand and even big rocks are lying about on North Main street, at the foot of the respective hills. At Wayne and North Main, the crossing was covered with crushed stones torn from the Wayne street roadbed. The same is true at Sullivan and North Main. On this hill, large cobble stones have been rent from the gutters and rolled down to North Main street, where they lay on the street car tracks until removed by a gang of men in the employ of the city and street carmen.

Cellars from Putnam street to Amory on North Main are flooded on account of the small capacity of the sewers on this street. At one time during the shower, Doucet's drug store, Wayne and North Main, was flooded with 10 inches of water, and bottles, boxes and other material stores in the cellar were knocked from their places.

St. Andrew's church rectory, at North Main and Conant streets, had 2½ feet of water in the cellar. Two new sewers at North Main and Conant, back streets, which were completed Saturday, were severely damaged. The water loosened some of the fresh cement work and the sewers will have to be rebuilt.

The Corporation back street, located across from the Fire King engine house on North Main street, was torn up more than any other street in the vicinity. A hole large enough to engulf a horse was gullied out, and to prevent accidents, the corporation officials ordered that the street be closed to travel. The "Flats" in McGregorville resembled a huge lake when the heavy rain had ceased and not a few houses in the "Flats" were flooded with several feet of water. The water in some of the houses was deep enough to drown a person of moderate height, if the person was standing.

Lake Massabesic showed a gain of two inches and is reported rising, as are the Piscataquog and Merrimac rivers.

TO PREVENT TRADE WAR

PRESIDENT WILSON TO NEGOTIATE NEW TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Apprehension lest the democratic tariff bill lead foreign nations to impose tariff penalties against the United States as soon as the new law goes into effect caused administration and senate leaders yesterday to plan the introduction of a joint resolution in congress making specific provision for the continuation of existing relations with all countries until President Wilson has time to negotiate new trade agreements.

The seriousness of the situation that will confront the administration was impressed upon Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee yesterday by state department officials.

It was pointed out that the trade relations established by President Taft's proclamations under the Payne-Aldrich law of 1909 would terminate as soon as the new law became effective and that the United States then would face the possibility of having higher tariff rates applied against its exports by many countries.

While the tariff law would give the president authority to negotiate trade and reciprocity treaties, it would also require him to apply special penalty rates against any countries discriminating against the United States.

To prevent the possibility of trade war the state department is now drafting a joint resolution which will provide that existing relations shall continue for four months.

VOTING AT BILLERICA

INTEREST SHOWN BY BOTH REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PARTIES

The polls at both precincts 1 and 2 at Billerica opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon and will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight. The voting early this afternoon was not very heavy but a large vote is expected this evening after the closing of the mills. Considerable interest is shown by both the democrat and republican parties. The town democrats will turn out in large numbers for the Billerica candidate for representative as they feel that they have not been used right by the democrats of ward nine of this city who also have a candidate in the field this year. Everett S. Benton, republican candidate for governor visited the town during the past week and has made many friends among the republicans there and it is believed that he will receive a much greater number of votes than his opponent for the republican nomination.

Dr. George T. O'Donnell, who has been one of the prominent medical doctors in North Billerica for several years is soon to remove to Waltham.

PETERS TAKES OFFICE

DIDN'T KILL GIRL

Man Who Confessed to Murder Now Makes a General Denial

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23—Repudiating his statements made to the police Sunday and yesterday, Jacob Wolfsohn yesterday afternoon denied that he was guilty of the murder of Anna Catherine Schumacher in the cemetery at Rochester, N. Y., four years ago. When closely questioned by Dist.-Atty. Barrett of Rochester yesterday afternoon, Wolfsohn declared that he had confessed to the murder because he wanted to die and could not bring himself to commit suicide.

"I want to take back my confession. It is not true that I killed the girl and I can prove my innocence," he exclaimed hysterically. "You can hang me or go whatever you want, but I do not want to die with the record of a murderer.

"My life has been an unhappy one," continued Wolfsohn. "I cannot return to Russia because I left there to escape military service. My wife divorced me here. I hoped to end my troubles by being electrocuted."

District Attorney Barrett before leaving last night for Rochester said he would make further investigations before determining whether or not he would ask for requisition for Wolfsohn.

"I am not yet satisfied that he is the murderer," said the district attorney.

Mr. Barrett will endeavor to find Wolfsohn's former wife in New York city to learn whether he had ever made a confession of the crime to her.

Wolfsohn will be given a hearing here Wednesday on the larceny charge for which he was in custody when he made his first confession late Saturday night.

GLYNN GOVERNOR OF N.Y.

Sulzer's Counsel Announces That Impeached Official Will Give Up Office Pending Trial

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—When the high court for the trial by impeachment of Governor Sulzer was called to order today his attorneys were prepared to exhaust the last of their legal ammunition to prevent the story of his alleged misuse of campaign contributions from being told on the witness stand.

Defeated yesterday by a vote of 51 to 1 on the motion for dismissal of the impeachment on the ground of its unconstitutionality, the governor's counsel expected today to offer a motion to strike out the three articles of the impeachment charging him with filing a false statement of campaign contributions and with the use of funds for speculation in Wall street.

The motion was to be presented by D. Cady Herrick, who was prepared to argue that the alleged offenses were not impeachable on the ground they were committed before the governor was sworn into office.

Former Senator Edgar Brackett was appointed to reply in behalf of the assembly managers. His brief, which has already been made public, holds in substance that the acts of a candidate for political office during a campaign and after he has become an officer-elect are so intimately connected with the actual holding of the office as to be inseparable.

Practically the entire day it was believed would be consumed in argument but it was hoped that the decision of the court in the matter would be reached before adjournment. Whether affirmative or negative, the decision should clear the decks for beginning the actual trial of the case tomorrow unless something unforeseen arises.

In the affirmative there will still be five articles of impeachment to which Mr. Sulzer will have to answer before the bar of the high court, as there has been no hint from counsel that the impeachability of the latter charges would be attacked. Conviction on any one article might result in removal.

E. L. Richards, of counsel for the managers, has been selected to make the opening address outlining the evidence to be presented. The taking of testimony will follow immediately.

The court being formally opened presiding Judge Cullen said:

"The court having overruled the motion of the respondent to dismiss the articles of impeachment on the ground that the assembly had no right to prefer the charges at an extraordinary session it now becomes incumbent upon the respondent to make answer to the charges."

Sulzer Renounces Claims

Judge Herrick, chief counsel for Governor Sulzer then took the floor and announced that in view of the fact that the court had refused to dismiss the proceedings he would state that the governor would renounce his claim to the right to exercise the functions of governor pending the termination of the trial.

"When these articles of impeachment were first presented," said Judge Herrick, the governor was advised that there was doubt about the legality of the proceedings and for that reason he declined to step down from his office. Ever since the recent decision of Supreme Court Justice Hasbrock ruling that he had not the right to pardon a prisoner he has ceased to exercise any of the functions of his office. Governor Sulzer will perform no functions of governor in the future pending the termination of this trial."

A few minutes after the court convened Judge Herrick began the reading of his brief. He took the grounds that the acts alleged in the first, second and sixth counts of the impeachment antedated Mr. Sulzer's assumption of the governorship and he asked that they be dismissed. Judge Vann of Gov. Sulzer's counsel being absent on account of sickness, his brief was read by Senator Hinman.

The brief, which touched upon the absence of constitutional definition of impeachable offenses discussed the power of the legislature to pass an act of limitation applying to both civil and criminal actions based on the lapse of time. Such an act, many of which have been passed, Judge Vann held, would be binding upon all courts, including the court of impeachment. Conceding the power of the legislature to limit the action of the court in convicting and removing from office, the brief declared that such limitation must be according to the rules of reason.

SULZER AGAIN DEFEATED—HIGH COURT OF IMPEACHMENT OVERRULED HIS MOTION

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Gov. William Sulzer must go to trial. This was decided by the high court of impeachment last night, when, by a vote of 51 to 1, its members overruled the motion of the governor's counsel to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that he was unconstitutionally impeached by the assembly, because that body was in extra session when the impeachment was brought.

Senator Gottfried H. Wende of Buffalo, democrat, an ardent supporter of the governor, cast the solitary nay. Four senators and Judge Gray were absent.

RETURNED TO WORK

MORE BOSTON SHOP OWNERS MET DEMANDS OF CLOAK AND SKIRT MAKERS

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A dozen additional small shops settled with Cloak and Skirt Makers' union yesterday and their hands returned to work. During the day all the shops where strikes had been called were picketed. At only one place was an effort made to open up with non-union help.

Many West End employers asked for police protection yesterday. There was no excitement in that vicinity, however. In the Kneeland-Washington streets district E. B. Hollander, a striker, but not a picket, was hurt. He claims that he was assaulted with a club by a non-striking employe of a shop in that section.

At the meeting of the strikers yesterday afternoon and of the entire membership of the union last night, it was voted that every boss affected by the strike be compelled to sign a new agreement to continue until September of next year, and to give a bond that he will live up to it.

The agreement is composed of 18 articles, in the main identical with those in the agreement made last March.

About 20 of the girl strikers voted last night that they would not return to work at their shops until the end of the week, although their bosses were willing to settle.

TALKS CURRENCY

Samuel Untermyer Continues His Discussion of the Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—With prospects of extended discussion on the administration currency bill the senate banking committee today continued to hear Samuel Untermyer discuss the measure. Senators were of the opinion that a month will pass before the bill will be brought into the senate.

Mr. Untermyer, while endorsing the general principles of the bill, suggested a number of amendments which he thought would strengthen it.

Many of these evoked lengthy discussions between Mr. Untermyer and members of the committee.

DYNAMITE LOST

Found on the Acton Tracks in Nashua Yesterday

A quantity of dynamite was found laying on the Acton tracks in Nashua by one John Jones. The latter turned the explosive over to James Slancombe, who in turn, having a knowledge of its powers, turned it over to police headquarters, where it was locked up in cell No. 1, pending an investigation. It is believed that the explosive was carelessly left there by some workmen doing blasting. Later the can containing the dynamite was removed to the powder house of Gen. Charles W. Stevens at his ledge, where it will be held as evidence. Everyone who handled the stuff picked his steps with extreme care, perhaps with a mental vision of himself being blown up into the clouds, the pieces gathered up in baskets on his return to earth and a nice funeral procession later.

INJURIES WERE FATAL

MAN STRUCK BY BELT AT WATERHEAD MILL DIED LAST NIGHT AT LOWELL HOSPITAL

Will Zuzlewski, aged 20 years, who was injured by a flying belt at the Waterhead mill Saturday forenoon, died last night at the Lowell hospital, where he was removed shortly after the accident.

An autopsy was performed later by Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. T. B. Smith, who found that death was caused as a result of a hemorrhage from laceration of the liver. The body was today removed to the home of deceased, 12 Bent's court.

OLDEST CONVICT PARDONED

John Tabon Has Been in Ohio Prison 43 Years—Once Refused Conditional Freedom

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—After spending practically all of his life since he attained to manhood, inside the penitentiary walls, John Tabon, the oldest convict in the Ohio penitentiary, was pardoned yesterday by Gov. Cox. Tabon has been a prisoner for 43 years.

He was convicted of murder in Delaware county in 1870 and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now 66. During the administration of Gov. Andrew L. Harris, a pardon was offered to Tarbon upon the conditions that he become an inmate of the state soldiers' home at Sandusky.

He refused the pardon at that time, declaring that he "would as soon be in one prison as another."

Garos has a world-wide reputation as an aviator, having won some of the famous long distance races in Europe, taken part in flying meets in many countries and made several altitude records.

TOOK WRONG BOX

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A man walked up to a red box on a pole at 167th street and Brook avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon with a letter in his hand. He opened the box, found no place for his letter and fooled around with the mechanism for a minute before he shut the box and went away.

Three minutes and thirteen seconds later three battalion chiefs, two engine companies and two hook and ladder companies pulled up in front of the box, looking for a fire.

A man who had seen the foreigner with the letter broke the news to the firemen gently. When they recovered they also went away.

EX-FIRE CHIEF LESHURE DEAD

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 23.—Abner P. Leshure, aged 84, inspector of buildings for many years chief of the Springfield fire department and one of the best-known veteran firemen in the East, died yesterday of pneumonia at 1516 North street.

Ex Chief Leshure was born in Woodstock, Conn., son of John Leshure, a farmer. He removed with his parents when 4 years old to Putnam, Conn., and from there to Southbridge. Young Leshure began his business career by driving a stage coach.

4 COWBOYS HERE

Making a Trip to Every State Capital — 20,000 Mile Tour

Four real "men of the far northwest" are in Lowell today, having decided upon this city as one of the stopping places in the most remarkable horseback journey ever undertaken. The cowboys, for such they have been, are J. B. Ransom, R. G. Rayne, G. W. Beck and C. C. Beck, and all four originally hailed from Seattle, Washington. They are known as the "Overland Westerners."

The trip which these four men are making is to be no less than 20,000 miles in length, and they will visit the principal cities in every state in the Union. The object of the long journey is this: they have with them a horse of Arabian blood, which they call Pinto, and which is a very remarkable animal. If this horse survives the long ordeal with the changes in climate, food, water and stable accommodations, the Western Stockmen's organization will hand the four travelers a check for $20,000, and they will have made the trip at a rate of $1 per mile.

The party left Olympia, Washington, on the first day of May, in the year 1912, and on June 1, 1915, if their plans carry, they will arrive in San Francisco, Cal., where the horse, Pinto, will be placed on exhibition during the big exposition. Of course, it will be a big thing for the stockmen if the horse makes the trip without accident. The four cowboys have already lost six horses through injury, lack of endurance, but Pinto has gained 60 pounds weight since starting and seems even more rugged and healthy than ever. It is a beautiful animal, and on the right side of its neck, there is a white spot which bears a remarkable resemblance to a galloping buffalo, a sort of natural brand.

The four men have with them a black dog of considerable value, which answers to the name of "Nip." "Nip" is very wise canine and an excellent watch dog, and he has made the long journey thus far with apparent enjoyment. He is very friendly unless someone attempts to molest the property of his masters, and then things happen. He will do just as he is told and when commanded by one of the men will remain beside the saddles and pack for hours, in an attitude that in itself is a menace to one who would attempt to touch the property.

Naturally, the men have had many strange and interesting experiences on their long horseback ride. They crossed the Cascade Mountains at an altitude of 8000 feet and through 30 miles of deep snow, high cliffs, over a trail filled with lurking dangers. In fording a river in Montana that is noted for the number and force of its whirlpools, they also took a great risk, the bridges over the stream having been destroyed.

They have ridden for several days in the pouring rain and will start on their journey again tomorrow. They will go as far as Augusta, Me., and will make that their turning point, returning from there southward. They have been through 25 states thus far, mostly in the northern portion of the country, and on the return will keep well to the south and middle parts. They have arranged their route so as to travel in the northern states in summer and in the southern states during the winter. They are a very friendly and attractive set of young men and made a decided hit with those whom they met. They have a wide knowledge of the conditions throughout the country and never lose an opportunity of adding to it.

THEFTS FROM THE MAILS

NIGHT WATCHMAN AT HAVERHILL POSTOFFICE AND R. R. MAIL CLERK AT MILLBURY SENTENCED

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Horace George, night watchman at the Haverhill post office and Arthur S. Crosby of Millbury, a railroad mail clerk, were sentenced today to 15 months' imprisonment for thefts from the mails. George was sent to the house of correction at Lawrence and Crosby to the Franklin county jail at Greenfield.

MAY BE RUNAWAY GIRL

MARSHAL OF NASHUA POLICE THINKS GIRL HELD FOR THEFT IS CONCORD ELOPER

Marshal Healey of Nashua is at present wondering whether or not the Pearl Lygne who is at present serving a sentence at Grassmere for theft, is really Ethel Curtis, a Concord runaway. The Curtis girl eloped with Ray Locke, a married man, who took her to the south. There he was arrested and convicted of a violation of the white slave law and is now serving a term in the federal prison.

Miss Lygne was at first placed on probation, and later released and sent to Grassmere. She bears a striking resemblance to a photograph of a Concord girl, and the authorities of the capital city will investigate the matter.

If you are a doctor, doesn't it pain you to see your patients, after walking up two or three flights, come into your office completely exhausted? Wouldn't it be better to provide an office in a building where your patients would be carried right up to your office door in an easy running and absolutely safe elevator? The new Sun building provides such a service. Think it over, doctor!

CITY COUNCIL ELECTS A PLANNING BOARD

CITY PLANNING COMMISSION

Charles E. Anderson.....For Five Years
John H. Murphy.....For Four Years
Joseph A. Legare.....For Three Years
George P. Green.....For Two Years
John C. Wilson.....For One Year

The municipal council at a meeting held today elected a city plans commission consisting of five members as follows: Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the Trades and Labor council, five year member; John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade, for four years; former Postmaster Joseph A. Legare, three years; George P. Green, two years, and John C. Wilson, one year. The election of a city plans commission or city planning board, is mandatory and is provided for in chapter 494 of the acts and resolves for 1913. The board will be a very important one as the scope of its observations and duties is unusually wide. The board's mission is to assist in the development of the city and to pay particular attention to the housing question, one of the most important problems of the day, especially in manufacturing cities.

Other business transacted by the council included the adoption of a loan order for $12,000 for expenses connected with contagious diseases, of which smallpox is the big item.

Jurors were drawn to serve in the superior court in this city and to report on the first Monday in October. The matter of a site for a contagious hospital was touched upon, but nothing definite was arrived at. The action of the city solicitor in bringing the question of the abolition of the grade crossings in Middlesex street, Western avenue and Fletcher street before the court was sanctioned by the council and numerous minor matters were acted upon.

The first business before the council was the drawing of six traverse jurors to serve in this city, superior court, first Monday in October. The following jurors were drawn by Com. Cummings:

Jeoffrey Cossette, 40 Sparks street, crushed stone.

John H. McCaffrey, 186 Pleasant street, carpet weaver.

William E. K. Thissell, 47 Methuen street, clerk.

John Dwyer, 12 Oak street, painter.

Willis J. Peltier, 803 Moody street, jeweler

Stephen J. Doyle, 23 Phillips street, barber.

Bad Sidewalk Work

Some time ago Henry J. O'Dowd addressed a communication to the council protesting against the way in which sidewalk work was being done in Gorham street at the court house. He declared that the specifications were not being lived up to. The work was done by the Cresolith Co.

Mr. O'Dowd was on hand today to back up the charges contained in his letter, the council having voted to give him a hearing today. "If the contractor was living up to the specifications," said Mr. O'Dowd, "he must have had one set of specifications and I another."

"There was but one set of specifications, Mr. O'Dowd," said Com. Donnelly.

"Mr. O'Dowd then read from the specifications given him before bids on the job were opened. He claimed the contractor did not go the required depth, 18 inches, and used gravel instead of crushed stone.

"If you doubt my word, examine the work," said Mr. O'Dowd, who is treasurer of the Neolithic Sanitary Flooring Co.

"Mr. Connor told me," said Mr. O'Dowd, "that I was sore because I didn't get the job and I told him that was absolutely false. Mr. Connor is a member of the Cresolith Co."

William Patenaude, said Mr. O'Dowd, had called his attention to the sidewalk. "I know what crushed stone is," he said, "and I didn't see any crushed stone in sight. The job was not done according to specifications."

The Cresolith Co. was not represented at the hearing and no defence of its position was offered. After the petitioners were heard, Com. Donnelly moved, and it was so voted, that the matter be referred to the city solicitor, the city engineer and commissioner of streets and highways.

$12,000 for Contagious Diseases

Mayor O'Donnell presented an order asking for $12,000 to defray the expenses connected with contagious diseases during the year; $9000 for smallpox and $3000 for other contagious diseases.

Commissioner Brown wanted to know if the matter couldn't go over for a month or so, and the mayor said that this was more or less of an emergency case.

The mayor explained that a number of bills were due at the present time and these bills, he said, should be paid

Agent Bates of the board of health was present at the meeting and showed where the expense of contagious diseases, exclusive of smallpox, had increased 100 per cent. for the first eight months of this year as compared with the first eight months of last year. The expense for the first eight

Two Workmen in Boston Had Narrow Escape During Storm

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Two workmen narrowly escaped serious injury and half a dozen others were forced to flee for their lives when a great oak directly in front of the new bird cage in Franklin park fell during the wind storm yesterday afternoon.

Thos. Conley of Roxbury and Jos. Charamonte of Endicott were at work in front of the bird cage during the height of the storm. Suddenly a crackling sound was heard and Conley, glancing up, saw the oak toppling. With a shout he ran to a place of safety, but Charamonte was struggling to get clear of the muddy earth. Conley, seeing his danger, ran back and dragged Charamonte out of the mire in the nick of time. A second or two later the tree fell over the place where they had stood.

The farspreading branches reached to the steps of the cage.

A short time after this accident a giant macaw was delivered to the officials of the zoo by an expressman. When he was asked who gave the bird he replied laconically, "Mayor Fitz." The mayor could not be reached last evening to verify the statement. The macaw is a species of parrot of unusually large size with a brilliant plumage.

Curator Benson of the zoo is in New York to receive a large shipment of birds from Asia and Africa. It is expected the bird building will be open to the public by Oct. 1.

MAN SUED FOR $75,000

BOND OF $25,000 WILL BE FURNISHED FOR GEO. H. CALDWELL'S RELEASE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A bond for $25,000 will be furnished by George H. Caldwell, aged 70 years, in the suit brought against him in superior court by Helen M. Mason, aged 19, for $75,000 damages for an alleged breach of promise to marry her.

When the bond is filed, the injunction issued a few weeks ago restraining him withdrawing his securities from a safe deposit vault and funds from a trust company, will be dissolved.

Judge Jenney, in the equity session of superior court yesterday, made the decree relative to a bond for $25,000 on motion of the defendant. The securities that were subject of an injunction consisted of United Shoe Machinery and Boston Insurance company stock.

Hornblower & Weeks, named as a defendant having funds belonging to Caldwell which the plaintiff sought to reach, have filed an answer stating that they held no funds of Caldwell at the time service was made on them. The Shoe Machinery company answers that Caldwell holds none of its stock in his own name and asks the plaintiff to prove that he has any in the name of others.

MGR. M'QUAID BURIED

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF BOSTON PASTOR—MGR. O'BRIEN OF LOWELL ATTENDED SERVICES

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—While the funeral services for Mgr. William P. McQuaid, for more than a quarter of a century pastor at St. James' church, Harrison avenue, were taking place within the edifice thousands of past and present parishioners stood reverently in the rain outside, the accommodations within the church being altogether inadequate for all who would pay their final tribute.

Cardinal O'Connell presided. Mgr. Denis J. O'Farrell of Roxbury was celebrant of the solemn requiem high mass. Rev. John J. Fitzgerald and Rev. Robert E. Lee, both attached to St. James' church, were deacon and subdeacon respectively, while Mgr. Splaine of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross was master of ceremonies.

Rev. M. J. O'Connor of St. Francis de Sales' church, Roxbury, was thurifer, and Rev. Michael Derby of Dorchester and Rev. Michael J. Murphy, chaplain of the state prison, were acolytes.

The sanctuary was heavily draped in black and the casket rested on a catafalque just outside the sanctuary rail, the body being vested in the robes of a monsignor. Cardinal O'Connell was attended by Mgr. P. J. Supple of Roxbury and Mgr. Peter Ronan of Dorchester as chaplains. Bishop Nilan of Hartford was seated in the sanctuary where a special throne had been erected for him. The monsignori present included Rev. Rev. George A. Patterson of South Boston, Rev. Ambrose F. Roche of Watertown, Rev. John O'Brien of East Cambridge, Rev. Arthur J. Teeling of Lynn, Rev. Edward J. Moriarty of Jamaica Plain and Rev. William O'Brien of Lowell.

Many clergymen, cit yand state officials and business men also attended the services.

BARDO MUST RETIRE

Then Brotherhood of Engineers Might Accept New Haven Road's new Rules, It Is Said

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 23.—The latest stage of the negotiations between the adjustment committee of the Brotherhood of Engineers and the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company over changes in the rules governing the promotion of firemen to be engineers and of advancement of engineers to selected runs is said to be a willingness of the engineers to accept the new rules if Gen. Mgr. C. L. Bardo retires.

The matter of the rules, with the suggestion of the engineers, is now before Vice President Hustis. The new rules, to which the engineers object, were made effective by General Manager Bardo Sept. 14.

The New Haven road issued a statement last night saying that neither Mr. Bardo nor Vice President Whaley, in charge of the operation of the road, was contemplating resigning his position.

MARKET FIRM IN TONE

READING TAKES A JUMP—UNION PACIFIC SHOWED STRENGTH IN AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The copper group showed renewed heaviness in the first dealings today but otherwise the market displayed a fairly firm tone. Speculative operations were again centered in Reading which was bid up 3-4 to a new high price for the year. The list as a whole showed no inclination to follow the leadership of Reading and in a great majority of cases prices barely moved. The sluggishness of the market discouraged traders and after the first few minutes business fell off to a low point. A few stocks broke away from the dead level. Canadian Pacific rose two points, Pittsburgh Coal pfd. 1 1-4 and Rock Island pfd. 1, the latter issue quickly losing its gain. Western Maryland and Goodrich pfd. lost a point.

The series of narrow fluctuations in stocks during the morning gave the market no persistent selling and afforded little opportunity for trading for either bulls or bears. Movements were governed largely by the action of Reading and U. P. Reading for a time ruled a point over yesterday's close and U. P. as much below. Reiteration of bullish rumors concerning special issues had a temporary bearing on general speculation but lost their potency when the supply of stocks became too large. Further buying was restrained by indications that higher prices were being utilized to distribute stocks.

Better support was offered for a short time in the afternoon session, although bears paid some attention to certain railroads and specialties which have no large outside following. Union Pacific gathered strength slowly after the meeting of the executive committee of the road began. Shorts became nervous over the possibility of action by the committee concerning disposition of the proceeds of the Southern Pacific sale and covering operations put up the price 1 1-2 above the morning's lowest. The advantage was not retained after it became known that the committee would take no action today. Reading made a brief spurt upward, but the general demand soon flattened out and the market became heavier.

The market in Wall street closed quiet. More weakness was shown in many quarters with the Coalers sagging sharply. Reading sold two points below its best.

Boston Market

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—There was moderate trading during the early hours of the local market today. Values held steady, but at noon there was a fractional reaction. Boston & Maine gained two points to 63 in the general list.

Man Who Ran Engine Fined in Police Court Today—Shiftless Husband Lectured by Court

Fred R. Davis, of Waltham, was arraigned before Judge Enright in police court this morning for violating the state law by running a steam engine without a license. Through his attorney he stated that he was operating an engine at the plant of the Lowell Gas company under the direction of his employers, Davis & Farnham, also of Waltham, when he was stopped by Mr. Harry E. Morton, state inspector of boilers. At the time that the state inspector put in an appearance he had been engaged in these duties but 42 hours. The defendant was a man of 60 years, who had never been in court before and was operating the engine at the request of his employers. He was given the minimum fine of $10, the amount to be paid within 30 days.

"Any man who can not earn $5 a week toward the support of his family should be in the house of correction," said Judge Enright to James P. McDonald, who was arrested on a capias for non-support. The defendant stated that his funds were tied up in his business at the present time and that is the reason he has failed to make his weekly payments to Probation Officer Slattery.

Mrs. McDonald was called to the stand and testified that she was the mother of six children and during the past six years has received very little toward their support except what was earned by one of her daughters. Mr. McDonald promised to pay $10 to his wife by Saturday night and the case was continued until Monday.

Philomiene Gagnon was arrested by Sergt. Petrie for drunkenness and pleaded guilty to that charge in police court this morning. She did not appear in the best of health and she promised to go home to her mother if released. The case was continued for two months.

Patrick McCarthy made his fourth appearance during the past year, charged with drunkenness. According to his story he has been living with his mother in Wilton, N. H., for some time and has been sending money to his wife in this city to support his children. He stated that the New Hampshire town was "dry" and promised that if allowed to return there he would go to work and continue supporting his family in this city. He was given a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

William Gillis, who yesterday appealed when a sentence of four months in jail was imposed upon him, withdrew his appeal this morning and was sent to the Lowell jail for the above term.

James P. Corcoran, a second offender, told the court that if released he would go to work and he was fined $6 and given three weeks to pay it in.

200 KILLED IN FIERCE BATTLE

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—In a fierce battle today between Servian troops and Albanians on the Albanian frontier, 200 Albanians were killed according to a despatch to the Neue Frei Presse. The fighting is reported to have occurred at a place between Dibra and Jakova, where many of the battles between the Servians and the Turks were fought in the recent Balkan war.

The encounter was brought about by an attempt of several thousand Albanians to penetrate the territory captured by the Servians from the Turks. They were repulsed.

The Servian troops lost one captain and a considerable number of men. They have since been reinforced.

Taken From Summer Home at Swampscott—No Clue to the Identity of the Thieves

SWAMPSCOTT, Sept. 23.—The theft of jewelry valued at $1300 was reported to the police today by William Evarts, a Boston man who occupies a summer home in Orient st. here. The robbery was discovered late last night when Mr and Mrs. Evarts returned from Boston. Entrance was gained by climbing a porch to a bedroom window. Only one room was ransacked and the thieves overlooked a lot of valuable jewels in another part of the house.

DELAY CURRENCY BILL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—An attempt to hurry along consideration of the currency bill in the senate banking and currency committee failed last night at the end of desultory questioning of Samuel Untermyer, who was counsel for the Pujo money trust committee of the last congress. Senator Shafroth of Colorado tried vainly to secure an agreement to close the hearings before the committee on Saturday, October 4. No other member of the committee supported his suggestion.

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Hans Schmidt, the confessed slayer of Anna Aumuller, was visited in the Tombs today by three physicians. They were Dr. Michael Erlwein, a member of St. Joseph's church, Dr. John Brandt, and Dr. Charles Horn. All expressed the opinion that Schmidt is shamming insanity.

CHILDREN HATE OIL, CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" Best For Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—caster oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

When the all star combination composed of Gertrude Hoffmann, Polaire and Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson comes to the Lowell Opera House patrons of that theatre will catch their first glimpse of three of the greatest stars of the present day, widely differing in type, varying remarkably in temperament and closely allied in accomplishments.

Gertrude Hoffmann, who has introduced many startling novelties is probably the most versatile, daring and artistic stage worker before the public. Miss Hoffmann will appear in a new revue in twelve scenes with a company of forty people. For her present tour she had arranged among other features "The Dance of the Mermaid." This novelty is Miss Hoffmann's own invention and in order to secure appropriate photographs of her startling novelty, Miss Hoffmann and a staff of photographers, several of the office force of the Comstock and Gest enterprises and a member of the Seagate life saving crew went down to the ocean and there with an incoming tide kicking up a series of heavy breakers, she posed for the photographer.

The camera man was lashed to the broken mast of an old wreck that lies off Seagate and Miss Hoffmann, swimming and treading water began a series of daring poses. After posing for thirty snap-shots she was finally coaxed out of the water and into some warm clothing.

"I am taking no chances with Polaire and Lady Constance," said Miss Hoffmann. "They will undoubtedly bring over a few novelties and I don't want to be left at the post."

Miss Hoffmann hit the nail on the head when she stated that the two foreign stars would arrive with novelties. Polaire came over with a large gold ring in her nose. The ring in itself is not so startling, but Polaire, who claims that woman is going back to savagery and she wants to be in line, is doing everything in keeping with the ring. She is educating a white Amazonian Tribal king preparatory to marrying him. Polaire claims that to have a good husband, one must educate him from childhood. She is educating one and says she will marry him, and support him, as a good husband should be supported.

Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, granddaughter of the Duke of Sutherland, daughter of the Earl of Cromartie and wife of a prominent British Baron, will present her wonderful dance conception "The Awakening of Dawn." Lady Constance was the wonder of London when she made her appearance at the Palace theatre and regardless of the opposition of the prudish Queen Mary, succeeded in astonishing her countrymen and winning great laurels as an artiste.

The tour of the three stars is the most important single theatrical venture ever attempted by a manager and necessitates the weekly expenditure of many thousands of dollars.

The salary list of the three stars alone exceeds seven thousand dollars. An orchestra of thirty pieces, three private cars, individual corps of servants for the three temperamental women and individual representatives for each artiste bring the cost up to princely ransom each and every week.

In addition to the three stars, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest have supplied other features, to be announced later, to complete their program.

FRANK DE CAMP
Takes the Part of "Col. Drew," at Merrimack Square This Week

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The Merrimack Square theatre players are this week presenting to their numerous patrons, the famous four-act comedy entitled "Brewster's Millions," and the first performance was given yesterday afternoon before a large gathering. The play was repeated in the evening before a much larger audience, and the warm applause that greeted the different features of the piece was a good demonstration of an appreciative audience.

The plot of the play concerns one Montgomery Brewster, a young man who has fallen heir to a round million of dollars. He has hardly straightened himself out from his first surprise when he is informed that his uncle in the west has died and made him the beneficiary of his $7,000,000 estate. The will has a proviso attached, however, in which it is stipulated that "Monty" must, within a year's time, be practically penniless, and that in doing so he must not spend his own money foolishly or extravagantly. "Spend a million to get seven," was the proposition that confronted him. His friends who are not aware of the facts, make every endeavor to prevent him spending his cash in such a free and lavish manner, and his efforts are somewhat balked. The young man who is trying very hard to get rid of his million does many unusual stunts, among which is the hiring of a yacht to take his friends on a trip around the world. He wins out in the end, but only after an eleventh-hour finish. Of course there is a little love story attached that helps to make "Brewster's Millions" a most agreeable entertainment.

The leading part is sustained by Walter Scott Weeks, while the charming young woman who is Brewster's chief attraction is no other than Miss Grace Young. The others who figure in the play are Thomas Carroll, Jack Hayden, Cecil Lugrin, John Charles, Marie Reels, William Phelps, Martin Miskell, Ivaloo Eddy, Frank DeCamp, Katherine Irving, W. J. Clark, Katherine McKenna, John C. Burns, Thomas Jordan, Harry Adams, J. J. Anderson, Marie Fisher and Harry Brown.

The staging of the piece is well done and the photo-plays are excellent.

KEITH'S THEATRE

People who are pleased with variety in vaudeville performances will highly enjoy the bill at Keith's theatre this week, for every number is of the character that delights theatre goers. The management, providing such excellent entertainment, well deserves to have the house filled at every performance.

One of the biggest attractions are the motion pictures of the world's most famous fugitive, Harry K. Thaw, taken at Sherbrooke. The pictures were taken with a view to showing the prisoner to the public as he really appears, in his characteristic attitudes, and in this, the photographer's work was marked by pronounced success, as those who have already seen the pictures will agree. Thaw is depicted in various occupations, with the cigars and flowers which seem always at hand. Hal Reid, the dramatist, secured the pictures and he is seen with Thaw in many of them. To those interested in the affairs of the man who escaped from the Matteawan asylum, these pictures will prove highly interesting.

The vaudeville acts leave nothing to be desired. The headliner throughout this week is "On the School Playground," which is somewhat different from other musical "Schooldays" acts. The big feature of the sketch is the excellent comedy furnished by E. I. Brendel who is seen in the character of "Herman Scrubbermeyer," caretaker of the playground. Brendel possesses an exceptionally ready wit and every move is a scream. His dancing was a delight to the audience. The musical numbers and dancing throughout the piece are very fine, a pleasing feature being the singing of one Miss Muriel Morgan. It is a lively sketch and one that is bound to afford genuine pleasure to all who witness it.

Hufford and Chain also provide some excellent comedy. Hufford is the comedian in the makeup of a colored person, while Chain is a tenor singer of no little ability. The act is a novel one and extremely funny.

The southern singer, Clarice Vance, was a decided hit with the audiences at the two performances of yesterday, rendering catchy ragtime selections in a manner that won her prolonged applause and encores.

"Rained In," is a western comedy sketch contributed by Howard Leroy and Alleen Harvey. It is a success. Sylvester, the sleight of hand performer pleases the audience with a line of chatter, while he accomplishes some clever tricks. The singers and dancers, Williams and Wright, and the sharpshooters, McCrea and Burns, won their big share of the honors.

The motion pictures, "Pathe's Weekly," is highly interesting this week, showing the most recent noteworthy events, including baseball, aeroplane flights, fashions, the big Newark fire, and others. The bill will be presented afternoon and evening throughout the remainder of the week, and good seats may be had by ordering in advance.

WHITE SLAVE BOARD MET

FEDERAL AGENT ATTENDS CONFERENCE IN BOSTON—TO INVESTIGATE TRAFFIC IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Frederick P. Schmid, who is the special agent of the federal department operating under the Mann act for the extinction of the white slave traffic, and District Atty. Joseph C. Pelletier were in conference yesterday afternoon with the special commission to investigate the white slave traffic in Massachusetts. Nothing was given for publication regarding the matter discussed.

Dr. Walter E. Fernald of Waverley, the chairman, was non-committal when asked if it was the intention to prosecute cases under the white slave act upon evidence laid before the commission. He remarked that the commission is not a prosecuting board. Its first duty is to investigate and next to recommend legislation to the general court. It is well known that the commission has received a large amount of testimony from those it has examined.

Dr. Fernald has said before this that if any positive evidence was submitted sufficient to convict an offender he would be prosecuted to the extent of the law.

The other members of the commission present were Sec. Charles W. Birtwell of Boston and Miss Lucia L. Jaquith of Worcester. Edwin Mulready the other member, is traveling abroad.

WIFE TURNS ON MAN

WENT TO MEET HIM AT DOCK BUT LEARNING THAT HE WAS WITH ANOTHER ENTERS SUIT

BOSTON, Sept. 23—Jose S. Rodriques of New Bedford was arrested yesterday by United States Deputy Marshal Ruhl charged with attempting to bring into this country an alien not entitled to enter. The alien is Joana Clara Goncalves Gibau, 25 years old, of the Cape Verde Islands.

Rodriques, who has a wife in New Bedford, brought the Gibau woman over with him on his return from a trip to his old home in the Cape Verde Islands, and was detained by the immigration authorities on Long wharf. Mrs. Rodriques came to Boston to assist her husband, but on learning of the Gibau woman she refused to help him and arranged for counsel to start suit against him, saying she did not want him any longer.

Rodriques was immediately placed under arrest. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, and pending a hearing on Sept. 27, he was committed to East Cambridge jail in default of $300 bail.

LOWELL PRIEST IS ILL

REV. FR. AUDIBERT, O. M. I., OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS AT GREEN BAY, WIS.

The many friends of Rev. Charles Audibert, O. M. I., formerly of this city, and who recently was transferred from St. Joseph's parish, this city to Bailey Harbor, Wis., will be grieved to learn that he is confined to the Mercy hospital, Green Bay, Wis., where he was operated upon for appendicitis.

Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., provincial of the Oblate Order for this district, yesterday, received a telegram announcing the sad news of Rev. Fr. Audibert's illness. The message also states that owing to the long ride on the train after the clergyman was stricken, his chances for recovery have been diminished considerably.

PURE WATER FOR ICE MAKING

The rapid gain in popular favor which artificial ice has made in this country in recent years is shown by the reports of the United States census.

In the manufacture of ice for household purposes and for cooling beverages it is important that the water used should meet all the requirements of potable water in respect to cleanliness and freedom from organic matter and disease germs. Most American manufacturers use distilled water in making ice, in order to get a pure, transparent product.

In the plate system, however, which is becoming more and more popular in this country, it is not necessary to use distilled water in order to obtain clear ice if suitable appliances are installed to prevent the occasion of air and solid particles. Though it is true that the greater part of the bacteria and mineral matters in the raw water are excluded from the frozen plate, there is insufficient ground for assuming that perfectly harmless ice can be made directly from dangerously polluted water; and while it may be conceded that water pure enough for drinking is pure enough for making ice, it is nevertheless true that too much dependence should not be placed upon the natural purifying powers of the freezing process.

G.O.P. IN SESSION

Meet in N. Y. to Name Candidates for Chief and Associate Judges

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The nomination of candidates for chief judge and associate judge of the court of appeals was the formal task before the republican state convention that assembled here today, but the party leaders planned to make the gathering one of wider importance than this duty signified. It was the first republican rally since the last state election and several new questions confronted the delegates. The answer to these will be embodied in the platform which will be adopted at the session of the convention tonight.

It became known that republicans opposed to the leadership of William Barnes, Jr., had held an overnight meeting to oppose the selection of Harold J. Rinman, minority leader of the assembly, as either permanent chairman of the resolutions committee. It was said that a compromise had been reached whereby United States Senator Elihu Root was to be made permanent chairman and Bob E. Hedges chairman of the resolutions committee.

The delegates, 610 in number, met at Carnegie hall this morning to organize and hear the address of Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, president of Cornell university, as temporary chairman and adjourn until eight o'clock tonight to give the committee on resolutions time to prepare the platform.

General Philip L. Reade, U. S. A., retired, has presented the General Adelbert Ames camp, Spanish War Veterans some valuable mementoes of his many years of service. Among them was a framed certificate of the society of the Army of Santiago de Cuba, 36 by 18 inches in size. It is framed in green bamboo on a mat of green and yellow, the Spanish colors. A large volume of army regulations, containing a list of regular officers in 1900 was also given and in the back part of this book are printed copies of orders sent out by General Reade during his active service in the army. Staff buttons, silver leaves worn upon the collar of his uniform and shoulder straps were also included in the gift. months this year was $8171.09, as against $4507.95 the year before.

The order to borrow $12,000 for contagious diseases was adopted, unanimously.

A communication from the county commissioners notifying voters of Lowell of a vacancy existing in the office of register of deeds, southern Middlesex, by reason of the death of the late Edwin O. Childs, was read, and referred to the commissioner of finance.

Abolish Grade Crossings

The mayor then read the resolution, recently published, for the abolition of the Middlesex street, Western avenue and Fletcher street crossings.

Com. Cummings whaled the representative of the Boston & Maine who said that there was no demand for the abolition of these crossings. "He had no way of knowing that there wasn't any demand and he had an awful gall to make that statement," said Mr. Cummings.

Com. Barrett said that the Merrimack street crossing should have been included in the plan for the abolition of grade crossings in this city. He said if it was possible he would like to include that crossing, but the mayor said the matter was now before the courts and it would be necessary to make the Merrimack street crossing a separate matter and Ald. Barrett moved that the city solicitor take up the matter of the abolition of the Merrimack street crossing and it was so voted.

The resolution as read by the mayor was passed.

Appleton Street Sewer

The council voted to extend a sewer in Appleton street at an expense of $980.

The Council Opposed

Com. Barrett moved that the city clerk be instructed to communicate with the interstate commerce commission protesting against the increase in freight rates as proposed by the Boston & Maine, and it was so voted.

Highland Avenue Sewer

An order to lay a sewer in Highland avenue from the end of the present sewer, near Parker street, northerly about 170 feet, at an expense of $503, was adopted.

Illuminated Clock

The council voted to allow the D. L. Page Co. to erect an illuminated clock in front of its premises in Merrimack square.

Board of City Plans Commission

The mayor then read the following ordinance creating a board of city plans commission, according to an act passed by the legislature for 1913:

An ordinance relative to the creation of a planning board for the city of Lowell.

Be it ordained by the municipal council of Lowell as follows:

Section 1. The municipal council shall immediately upon the passage of this ordinance appoint a board of city plans commission to consist of five persons who shall serve without compensation. One person to serve until Oct. 1, 1914, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1915, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1916, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1917, and one to serve until Oct. 1, 1918, and thereafter annually the municipal council shall appoint, prior to the first day of October, one member of the board of city plans commissioners who shall hold office for the term of five years from the first day of October in the year in which he is appointed. In addition to the said five persons to be appointed by the municipal council, the mayor, and the commissioner of public property and licenses shall be members ex-officio of said board of city plans commission, and the mayor shall serve as chairman.

Section 2. Vacancies occurring in the board of city plans commissioners shall be filled by appointment by the municipal council to fill the unexpired term.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of said boards to make a careful study of the entire city, and cause to be made a city plan or plans, which in their judgment will be best adapted to the present conditions and future needs of Lowell, and, as soon as may be, report in writing to the municipal council the result of their study and investigation, together with all necessary plans, maps, diagrams or models which shall be considered a part of their report.

Commissioner Barrett inquired as to the expenditure of money by the board. "You might get a planning board that would tie up the city of Lowell," he said.

"What if they should? The council might not think the board's judgment was any better than its own," said the mayor.

The mayor called Mr. Barrett's attention to the fact that the council had no choice in the matter. "It is mandatory," he said.

The mayor moved that the ordinance be passed to be enrolled and it was so voted.

It was then passed to be ordained and becomes active at once.

The duty of the board will be to make investigations and recommendations relative to the development of the city, paying particular attention to housing conditions.

Mr. Cummings moved that the council ballot for a member of the planning board to serve for five years, beginning Oct. 1, 1913, and it was so voted.

Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the trades and labor council was elected on the first ballot. He received the votes of Commissioners Cummings, Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

John H. Murphy was elected a member of the board for a term of four years, receiving all votes with the exception of Mr. Brown, who voted for Dr. G. Forrest Martin.

Commissioner Brown admonished the council not to be hasty in the matter of electing members of the board inasmuch as the matter had not been discussed. He thought the election of the other three members should go over to the next meeting.

The council, however, proceeded to ballot for a three year man and Joseph A. Legare was unanimously elected.

The council's choice for a two year man was George P. Green. He received the votes of Messrs. Cummings and Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

Contagious Hospital Again

Mayor O'Donnell made another attempt to spur up his brother members on the selection of a site for an isolation hospital. Com. Brown was in favor of the Dr. Pillsbury estate.

Com. Barrett wanted to know what was the objection to the site in the rear of the Chelmsford street hospital. "Personally, I think it's a horrible place," said the mayor.

Commissioner Donnelly said he was willing to vote for the site recommended by the contagious hospital commission at the Chelmsford street hospital but he understood it would not be permitted by the state board of health.

Commissioner Cummings thought a combination hospital in connection with the state hospital at Tewksbury would be a good scheme and he suggested that the mayor confer with the state board of health relative to such a plan.

The mayor said the state board of health couldn't do anything about a combination of that kind.

Mayor O'Donnell called attention to the fact that there was still another site at the Chelmsford street hospital described as the "lone tree" site, or "the trail of the lonesome pine." Part of this site is in Chelmsford and part in Lowell, but mostly in Lowell.

Ald. Barrett objected to the Pillsbury estate because the buildings thereon are of frame construction and he allowed that would be very dangerous in case of fire. He said he thought the site was ideal, but he believed that the hospital should be of fireproof construction.

Nothing doing and at 1.45 the meeting, on motion of Com. Cummings, adjourned to Tuesday at 11 a. m.

CRIMINAL COURT

guilty and his case went to trial. Inspector William H. Connors of the board of health was the first witness called. He said Clancy is a truckman and keeps his horse in a stable in Floyd street. He said he visited the aforesaid stable on May 3 and 22, and saw a horse there. He said the stable is about 12 by 15 with one stall. Witness said on both occasions he visited the stable at night and he did not see any feed there.

Agent Frederick A. Bates said he has no record of Clancy having a license to keep a stable in Floyd street. He does not know of any application from the defendant for a license.

On cross-examination Mr. Bates said there is nothing on his records which show that Mr. Clancy is conducting a stable in Floyd street. He said the board issues licenses for the keeping of stables, and they apply to stables that are being built or enlarged. He said he knows Clancy has no license and has never made application for such license.

John B. Clancy was then called. He said for four or five years he has been the agent of the blind workshop in Lowell. He said he has kept his horse in the stable in Floyd street about 27 years at intervals. Prior to 1906 he had the stable which has been remodeled since, and kept his horse there. "I never had a license to keep the stable and did not know I was supposed to have one. I am still using the stable and it is as good as any one in Lowell."

On cross-examination he said: "I never was bothered before by the board of health until some time ago when politicians wanted to have my land. The neighbors are also opposed because they don't like me. I would like to have the jury see the place. It is a fine stable, a good cellar, clean and bright, and is built on a large tract of land.

"Were you at the hearing at city hall?" asked Mr. Wier.

"There was no hearing, it was a political meeting, attended by all the neighbors, who are here today at my expense."

"When did you build the stable?"

"I never built it, it isn't built, yet, although there is a building there. It was started 30 years ago. The horse was not there all the time, only at intervals. I will complete it some day if they leave me alone.

"What do you mean by intervals?"

"I mean when the district attorney gave you my record and through political influence you tried to put my horse out of the stable and me out of business. I will tell you right here I will keep my horse there even though you put me in jail, with all due respect to the court."

"How much of a building was your stable 27 years ago?"

"Oh, the cellar and a roof, but I have improved it wonderfully since, and I would like to have the jury see it."

During his testimony John B. supplied considerable amusement for the judge and other attendants.

Mrs. Bridget Donnelly was next called to the stand and she said the building has been in construction for a number of years and is not yet finished.

On cross-examination she admitted having a little feeling against Mr. Clancy on account of political conditions between Clancy and her son, Commissioner Donnelly. She said 15 or 16 years ago Clancy purchased a small shed, which he removed to Floyd street. She said he attempted to keep a horse there, but he found it a difficult proposition for there were no sides to the shed.

Owen McCann, of Lyons street, next testified. He said Clancy's stable is near his place. He said about 15 or 16 years ago John B. put up a small shack on his land. "The same," he said, "was burned out some five or six years ago, and then John B. endeavored to erect a club building for the boys of the district, which later he turned into a stable."

On cross examination witness said he does not want a stable near his place. He said he has no feeling against Mr. Clancy, although the latter has told lies about him to the board of health. Witness said he is over 70 years of age and has lived in the Floyd street vicinity for 33 years.

Mr. Clancy was recalled to the stand and said he has had horses in other stables. During cold weather he said he kept his house in the Keene street stable. He said he did not keep his kicking horse with the valuable horses.

John B. Fined $10

At the conclusion of the last case the court suspended for a few minutes, and John B. Clancy took occasion to go for a short walk, but it is believed John B. met a few friends on his way, for it was fully a half hour before he returned. The jury returned to the court room and the lawyers were getting ready for their evidence, but John B. was absent. A couple of court officers were detailed to find John B., but they were unable to locate him. The court was about to default him, when in comes John B. with a happy smile on.

At the request of his counsel, but not before considerable coaxing, John B. changed his plea to guilty and the jury was dismissed. The court then imposed the sentence which John B. received in the lower court, that is a fine of $10. By pleading guilty John B. evaded a fine of about $450, for according to the district attorney, John B. was liable to a fine of $5 a day for each day he conducted his stable after being notified by the board of health to secure a license.

This case was the last brought to the attention of the court. The jurors were then dismissed and the court adjourned to Cambridge tomorrow morning.

Pres. Elliott Confers With the Inter-State Commerce Board

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Howard Elliott, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, conferred here today with the interstate commerce commission about conditions on his lines. He was particularly concerned about the forthcoming report of the committee on the Wallingford rear end collision which is to be made public late tomorrow.

President Elliott was given no inkling of the character of the report prepared by Commissioner McChord after an exhaustive personal investigation. He was assured, however, that published forecasts of the findings of the commission were unauthorized, misleading and essentially inaccurate.

Both Commissioner McChord and Inspector Belknap have not only analyzed thoroughly the evidence they adduced themselves but have carefully considered the testimony at the coroner's inquest. Their conclusions, therefore, are based on a thorough knowledge of the conditions surrounding the disaster and of the operatives who were the human factors in it.

The above property is located on Gorham street just on the rise of the hill and about opposite the new St. Peter's school and its location is considered one of the best in the city for renting of small tenements. The block, which has seven tenements averaging three, four and five rooms each, has a total rental of about $40 a month and with a little more care and attention much more rent could be obtained. This is an excellent opportunity for the speculator, as this parcel is located on one of the principal business streets of the city. The sale will be absolute, regardless of any condition of the weather, as the time has come for a settlement of the estate.

Terms: $400 to be paid the auctioneer as soon as struck off.

NEXT SATURDAY, SEPT. 27, AT 3.45 O'CLOCK

A 2 1-2-story brick building and about 4337 square feet of land at the corner of Tyler and George streets. The house, which is of brick construction, 2 1-2 stories with ell, contains 10 rooms, bath, pantry, wash room, furnace heat, cemented cellar, lighted throughout by gas, and is in good shape. It is occupied by a first class tenant at $35 a month, or a yearly rental of $420. The lot has a frontage of about 48 feet on Tyler street, 90 feet on George and about 48 feet on the passageway in the rear, that must be forever kept open. This lot has an area of about 4337 square feet. Now, then, here is a first class investment for someone. The fact that it has three frontages is certainly a great advantage to this parcel, and when you take into consideration the location, less than 100 yards from Central street, within five minutes' walk of the postoffice and within 10 minutes of many large industries. Speculators should look this property up, as it will be offered for absolute sale, regardless of any condition of the weather, on the day and hour advertised.

Terms: $400 to be paid the auctioneer as soon as struck off. Make all inquiries of the auctioneer who has full charge.

CRIMINAL SESSION OF SUPERIOR COURT

Intent to Murder Charge — Turkish Stabbing Affray — Clancy's Stable Case Heard Today

The criminal session of the superior court, Judge Keating presiding, was resumed at the local court house this morning.

Intent to Murder

Gaiamo Jucono was arraigned on a complaint charging him with assault with intent to murder to which he pleaded guilty. District Attorney Higgins informed the court that defendant was playing cards, when he produced a revolver and fired, but fortunately did not hit any one. He recommended that the sentence be light on the ground that the prisoner has been in jail for the past four months, and accordingly the court imposed a fine of $50.

Turkish Stabbing Affray

Prior to the closing of the session yesterday afternoon, the cases of Mahamed Gamal, Allie Mohamed, Alho Mehmond and Allie Accarry, charged with assault with intent to murder, were disposed of. Mahomed Gemal was dismissed on the ground that the police found that the complaint had no foundation. The other three who pleaded guilty to assault with a dangerous weapon, were fined $50 each.

Chauffeur Duff's Case

Robert W. Duff, the chauffeur who was found guilty of willingly obstructing a funeral procession, was fined $20, but a stay of execution of sentence was granted by the court at the request of Duff's attorneys, who wish to carry the case to the supreme court.

John B. Clancy's Case

John B. Clancy was charged by the local board of health with unlawfully occupying a building for a stable on Sept. 16, 1912.

Mr. Clancy entered a plea of not

To Prevent City of Lowell From Selling Hildreth Cemetery for Sidewalk Tax

The case of the town of Dracut against the city of Lowell, praying for an injunction restraining the collector of taxes of the city of Lowell from selling the Hildreth cemetery for nonpayment of a special assessment levied by the city for the expense of laying a sidewalk along said cemetery in Hildreth cemetery came on to be heard at the equity session at Boston this morning. Justice Jenny presiding. Warren W. Fox represented the town of Dracut and City Solicitor Hennessy represented the city of Lowell. The case turned on the matter of the proper assessment to the town of Dracut, in that the assessment was to Hildreth cemetery rather than to the inhabitants of the town of Dracut. The court was of the opinion that such an assessment was not proper; that it did not run to the abutter, as required by law, and ordered an injunction to issue restraining the sale.

The city solicitor having assured the court that the sale would be stopped, no service of the injunction upon the city will be made.

WRECKERS OUT

To Save Schooner That is Ashore on Skiff Island Shoal if Possible

EDGARTOWN, Sept. 23.—The work of lightering the cargo of the five-masted schooner Marcus L. Urann, ashore on Skiff island shoal in Muskaget channel began at noon today with the arrival of the wrecking tug Tasco from New London.

Captain Thomas of the schooner, who with his crew had difficulty in getting off the Urann during the gale last night, boarded the vessel this morning and found her being pounded heavily by the big seas that were running through the channel.

The wreckers were of the opinion that there was a chance of saving the vessel, providing the wind did not come in strong from the south during the next week or two. It was admitted, however, that no vessel has ever worked free of Skiff island shoal, although the four-masted schooner William B. Palmer, which grounded in Muskaget channel at the same time the five-masted Arthur B. Zeitz was wrecked ten years ago managed to reach deep water in Nantucket sound.

HARTFORD, Conn., Sept. 23.—The fourth game of the Lowell-Hartford post season series for the championship of the New England-Eastern association baseball leagues was played off here today under the most auspicious weather conditions which have greeted players and spectators at any of the games played thus far. Although a trifle cooler there was not a cloud in the sky. The sun dried up the diamond in a remarkably short time. What was yesterday a veritable small lake was today a neatly chalked baseball yard. Manager McDonald led his band of Hartford warriors into the enclosure at 1.25 p. m. and immediately chased them on to the field to warm up. The Lowell team did not arrive at the park until 2.35 and were given the same cordial welcome that they received at the hands of the Hartford fans on Saturday. Capt. Aubrey, now acting manager, announced that Zieser would pitch today's game and that Henderson would be ready to go in at a moment's notice. Thomas is Lowell's only backstop now that Daly has joined the White Sox and will be behind the bat today. If Thomas should meet with an accident during the game, Flannery, the utility infielder, will don the catcher's regimentals. The Lowells are all anxious to win two games straight now, and wind up the series. No further receipts will accrue to the players after the first four games have been played, and they are all eager to be on their homeward way. Manager Clarkin held a conference with his players shortly before the game opened and offered them an additional purse if they won today's game and tied up the series. He informed the Hartford team that he had received telegrams from several of the Eastern Association magnates which censured him severely for awarding the Hartford team his check for $1000 as a token of appreciation for the Eastern Association pennant. This the other owners aver, will act as a precedent for future pennant winners, and they do not like the idea of adding $1000 to the players' salaries. The Hartford club, to a man, promised to use even greater efforts to win today's game than they have previously demonstrated in the three previous contests.

Lowell at Batting Practice

Both teams engaged in lively practice before game was called and the Lowell men paid particular attention to batting practice. Pitcher Maybohm tossed up his floaters to the Bingling brothers and they banged them all over the lot. Capt. Aubrey was well impressed with the work of his charges and expressed great confidence in their ability to win the third straight game.

When the line up of the Hartford team was announced, it was seen that a change had been made. In the other games of the series Muldoon did the backstop work, but today, Manager McDonald went behind the bat. Pitcher Averett, who won the first game of the series, which was played in Lowell last Wednesday, was sent in today, in an effort to stop the onward rush of the New England league champions. Matty Zieser, who twirled the second game of the series and came out on the long end, by allowing the Hartfords but four hits, was assigned for hurling duties by the Lowell management. There were 4000 people on hand before play was started. Previous to the opening of activities the Lowell players posed for a photograph. The game was called at 2.45 o'clock, by Umpire Doherty, and the lineup was as follows:

Lowell		Hartford
Clemens	cf	2b	Curry
Miller	2b	lf	Hoffman
Thomas	c	rf	Kauff
Magee	lf	cf	Hoey
Halstein	1b	1b	Kelliher
DeGroff	rf	3b	Gardella
Aubrey	ss	c	McDonald
Dee	3b	ss	Reiger
Zieser	p	p	Averett

First Inning

Pete Clemens was the first man up for the Lowell team. He took considerable time in approaching the plate and Pitcher Averett, remembering the fact that the Lowell centre fielder opened Saturday's game with a beautiful clip, also deliberated before he threw up his spitter. While the lead off man was at the bat, Finneran and Henderson, Lowell's clever pair of coachers, got busy on the lines and injected a great deal of comedy into the game. Pete then picked out a good one and banged it into centre field for a double. He was given a great cheer by the Lowell rooters. Clemens took third on Miller's sacrifice. Thomas hit in front of the plate and Averett banged the ball to third getting Clemens, Thomas reaching first. Thomas then tried out Manager McDonald's arm, in attempting to purloin second, but Mack was there and threw the Lowell catcher out.

Curry was the first Hartford man to oppose Zieser. He let the first one go by and the ump called it a ball. He then thought that he would bum his way to the station, but Julius thought differently and slambed one over that cut the platter. It was a beautiful strike. The next one was a foul strike. Zieser then threw one over that was a little outside and Curry let it go by a second ball. The Lowell pitcher thought that he worked his arm enough on this man and put one more over and the head batter of the Hartford team went back and sat down. Hoffman was the next victim, going out, Aubrey to Halstein. Zieser then became generous and gave Kauff a free ticket. Just to show that he appreciated the generosity of the Lowell heaver, Kauff sole second. He stayed there, for Hoey, next up, went out on a weak grounder to Halstein.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 0.

Second Inning

Jimmy Magee, Lowell's clean up man, was first up in the second inning. He was easy for Gardella, going out on a grounder. Halstein filed out to Hoffman. Rube DeGroff cracked a single to centre, but it was a hit wasted, for the comedian went out when he tried to grab second.

Lowell's first baseman was about the whole cheese in this session, having three outputs to his credit.

Kelliher went out to Halstein, unassisted. Gardella, out Dee to Halstein. McDonald out on a foul fly to Halstein.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 0.

Third Inning

Only three Lowell men faced Averett in the third. Aubrey went out on a grounder, Reiger to Kelliher, Dee out, Curry to Kelliher and Zieser went out on a fly to Gardella.

The last of the third was very brief. Reiger gave Jimmy Magee a chance to make a put out on a fly to left. Averett was hit by a pitched ball and took first. Curry thought Pete Clemens was lonesome and just for that banged out a fly and the Lowell centre fielder grabbed it. Hoffman continued the work of his predecessors and sent up a fly that Aubrey took care of.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 0.

Fourth Inning

Clemens, the first Lowell man to get a hit today was up for his second trip to the plate. He did not have such good luck this time, however, as the best he could do was send up a fly to Curry. Miller swung at three and missed and did a marathon back to the dugout. Thomas duplicated Miller's stunt and the Lowell team took the field.

Benny Kauff, whose batting thus far in the series has been a big disappointment to the Hartford fans, owing to the fact that he led the league in batting was the first up for Hartford in the fourth. He went to the plate confident that he would break up his batting slump and with one ball and one strike called on him he smashed the pill to centre field for a single. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm. On a wild pitch, Kauff went to second. Hoey advanced him to third on a sacrifice. Kelliher hit to centre and Kauff came home with the first run of the game. Kelliher tried to steal second, but Miller had the ball before he was within two feet of the bag. Gardella closed the inning on a fly to DeGroff.

Score: Lowell 0, Hartford 1.

Fifth Inning

Magee opened up the fifth with a triple to deep left field. The Lowell left fielder was roundly cheered for the hit. It was one of the longest of the series. Halstein then came to bat and the Hartford rooters pleaded with Averett for a strike out. The Hartford pitcher put everything he had on the ball and the Lowell first baseman fanned. There was a cheer for Averett. DeGroff was next up and he thought that Magee was entitled to a rest after smashing out the three-bagger, so he slambed out a single to left and Magee trotted home with Lowell's first run. With DeGroff on first and the prospects good for more runs, Aubrey hit to Curry, who tagged second getting DeGroff and sent the ball to first for a double play.

Zieser started in the fifth very confident after seeing his teammates tie up the score and steamed em up in grand style. But three of the Hartford players came up and but three of them went down. McDonald flied to Magee. Reiger flied to Aubrey and Averett went out, Zeiser to Halstein.

Score: Lowell 1, Hartford 1.

Sixth Inning

Shorty Dee marched up to the plate at the opening of the sixth and after clouting out a single to centre field, he marched to first. He did not stay long but advanced to second on Zieser's sacrifice and went to third on a wild peg. Clemens foul filed to McDonald and Miller closed on a grounder to Gardella.

Curry took his war club and did a marathon to the home plate, but he held it there while Zieser sent over three beauts for a strike out. Hoffman went out on a line drive to Dee. Kauff singled to centre field and stole second. A peculiar play then came and only for the work of Capt. Aubrey, the Hartford team would have been allowed a run that they did not rightly score. Hoey banged up a ball on the line and Thomas muffed it. He took first and Kauff scored. Aubrey claimed that it was a foul and Umpire Doherty overruled his claim. On a consultation of the umpires and officials, however, Aubrey's claim was sustained and Kauff was sent back to third and Hoey back to bat. Hoey then sent a fly to deep right field and DeGroff grabbed it after a hard run.

Score: Lowell 1, Hartford 1.

Seventh Inning

Thomas was first up for Lowell in the lucky seventh. He was given a free pass. Magee advanced Thomas to second on a beautiful sacrifice. Thomas went to third when Halstein went out on a grounder to first. Thomas scored on a wild pitch. DeGroff went out on a fly. Kelliher went out on a grounder to Halstein, Zieser covering the bag. Gardella out on a fly to Clemens. McDonald out on a fly to DeGroff.

Score: Lowell 2, Hartford 1.

Eight Inning

Aubrey struck out. Dee singled to left. Dee out at first, McDonald to Kelliher. Zieser grounded out to Curry.

Reiger opened with a single to left. Averett got a life when Thomas made a bad throw of his bunt. With two on, Zieser shot them over at great speed. Curry struck out. Hoffman popped up a foul fly and Dee and Thomas came together, with the result that the ball dropped safely. He then banged out a single to left and Reiger scored. The crowd was in an uproar.

Hoffman went to second when Kauff grounded to Aubrey and Averett went to third. Hoey closed the inning with a fly.

Score: Lowell 2, Hartford 2.

Ninth Inning

Clemens singled to center. He took second on Miller's sacrifice. Thomas was safe at first on Reiger's error. Clemens went out at the plate when Magee hunted and Thomas was caught off the bag on a close decision.

Kelliher flied out to Magee. Gardella out, Zieser to Halstein. McDonald filed out to DeGroff.

Score: Lowell 2, Hartford 2.

Tenth Inning

Halstein out, Averett to Kelliher. DeGroff flied out to Hoey. Aubrey filed to Curry.

Zieser fanned three men in the tenth.

Reiger struck out. Averett struck out. Curry doubled to left. Hoffman struck out.

Eleventh Inning

Dee walked in the first of the 11th. Zieser sacrificed. Dee went to third and Zieser safe on first when Kelliher muffed Gardella's throw. Clemens went out at first on grounder, Kelliher to Curry. Dee scored on Miller's grounder to Gardella. Zieser scored on wild pitch and Miller took third. Thomas walked. Thomas stole second. Averett a little wild. Miller scored on Magee's sacrifice. Halstein grounded out to Averett.

Kauff singled to left.

Hoey went out at first, Miller to Halstein.

Kauff scored on Kelliher's single to right.

Gardella walked and Kelliher went to second.

Gardella doubled up between first and second on Kelliher going to third.

McDonald filed out.

FOR AN INCREASE OF FREIGHT RATES

B. & M. Wants 10 P. C. Increase —Hearing in Boston — Lowell Men Attend to Oppose Scheme

Several Lowell men went to Boston this morning to attend the hearing before Commissioner Prouty of the interstate commerce commission on the petition of the Boston and Maine railroad to increase the general freight rates 10 per cent. Among those who went were President George M. Harrigan and Secretary John H. Murphy of the Lowell board of trade, Frank Cheney of the Cheney Box and Lumber Co., J. C. Wadleigh of the Merrimack Mfg. Co., A. W. Thompson of the Saco-Lowell Machine Co., F. W. Horne, of the Horne Coal Co., and Agent Walker of the Lawrence Mfg. Co. They represented the shippers of this city in protesting against the granting of the increase. Mr. Murphy brought to the hearing letters containing the protests of several other large Lowell concerns. He expressed the opinion that the interest shown was not sufficiently great, nor the protests of the shippers strong enough to very deeply impress the commissioners. A great many will enter their protests, however, when the increased rates become evident on their freight bill.

The hearing was held at 10 o'clock in the federal court room in the post-office building. From other cities there were many representatives, but from Lowell not as many as might be desired to represent a city of such large manufacturing resources.

One of the most prominent organizations was the New England Coal Dealers' association which was represented by counsel. In this regard, there are many important facts with reference to the effect which, if granted the proposed increase will have upon the coal shipments to Lowell. The average freight train of coal, from Mystic wharf in Boston to this city, a distance of approximately 25 miles, brings the B. & M. a large revenue. For example, take a train of 20 cars. There are about 40 tons to each car, and the rate is at present 55 cents per ton. Thus the total receipts to the company equal $660. If the increase is granted the total will be much larger. The effect of an increase upon the dealers and upon the consumers is evident; it would doubtless cause a rise in the price of coal.

One Lowell concern realized the importance of taking action in the matter and in a letter to the board of trade, said that its freight bills amount

LOWELL FIREMEN

Will Attend Big Convention at New Bedford This Week

A number of local firemen are planning to attend the 34th convention of the Massachusetts State Firemen's association to be held in Odd Fellows hall, New Bedford, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. All of the firemen in this city belong to the association and as many as can be off duty will probably be present at the convention.

The program will consist of speaking and entertainments and it is held to increase the efficiency of the firemen throughout the state. The convention will open tomorrow afternoon at 2.30 o'clock and from that time until Friday afternoon sessions will be held.

Fire Commissioner Barrett of this city will speak Thursday on "Necessity of Special Construction of Chassis for Motor Fire Apparatus." Capt. James McKissock will also read several reports at the convention and on Thursday he will give an address on "Bills Introduced in the Legislature of 1913 Affecting Firemen." Among the other subjects will be: "In case of great conflagration such as happened to the city of Chelsea, should not the chiefs and deputies of all the cities and towns have it agreed to and understood with the captains of the various companies that when the fire has got beyond control, each captain shall act as a guide and direct help arriving to locate where the best work can be done," "Fire protection in large department stores," and many others.

Chief Dahill and members of the New Bedford fire department are planning a series of entertainments for the delegates, ladies and guests, the program of which is yet incomplete, but on the afternoon of the third day, they are to give all the delegates, their wives and sweethearts a sail down the bay on the steamer "Gay Head." The boat will leave New Bedford at 2 o'clock and arrive at Woods Hole at 3.30 o'clock, where an hour will be spent. The return trip will be made about 4.30.

12 SAVED AS BOAT SANK

A Five Masted Schooner Ran Ashore—Captain Jackson Put Out in Boat and Rescued All

EDGARTOWN, Sept. 23.—The five-masted schooner Marcus L. Urann, with a cargo of coal from Sewall's Point, Va., for Boston, ran ashore on Skiff's Island shoal in Muskegat channel yesterday. For several hours Captain Benjamin Thomas and his crew of eight men, together with the wives of the captain and of the steward, remained aboard the vessel while she pounded under the impulses of a southerly gale, which sent great waves over the Urann's decks. The ship struck during a dense fog, and her plight was not discovered from shore until the mist lifted a little yesterday afternoon.

Word was then sent to Captain Levi Jackson, honored with a Carnegie medal as a result of his life-saving exploits, and he put out to the schooner in his auxiliary fishing schooner Priscilla II. This boat was partly purchased by funds given Captain Jackson by the Carnegie hero fund commission. Its errand of succor was successful yesterday, under unfavorable conditions.

Transferred to Schooner

A heavy southerly gale was blowing, with a murky pall still hanging over the channel. Six miles off the southeast end of the island, lay the schooner, stranded on the shoal while great seas broke over her decks, and threatened the lives of those aboard. Capt. Jackson and his men were forced to approach the schooner cautiously and with all the skipper's seamanship he did not dare bring the fisherman up to the schooner's side. Captain Jackson himself took a dory to the Urann where he found that Captain Thomas had stowed the belongings of all on board in the schooner's power boat. But the captain thought it best to trust to Captain Levi and by twos and threes all were transferred to the fishing schooner, Captain Thomas being the last to leave.

He said that the accident came after a voyage through continuous haze and fog. In Sunday night's mist Captain Thomas said he made a fixed light about 11 o'clock which he thought was Shinnecock. "I shaped by course accordingly," he continued. "About 2 o'clock yesterday morning the fog thickened, and for hours we were lost. About 9 o'clock the schooner ran aground and we didn't know where we were until the fog lifted yesterday afternoon. I think the light I made out last night must have been Block Island."

Tried to Run Aground

The wreck of the Urann marks a strange coincidence of the sea. The schooner is the third vessel owned by the same company, the Coastwise Transportation company of Boston, to run aground on the same shoal and under the same conditions. The schooner Arthur G. Seitz was wrecked there under similar conditions 10 years ago and three years ago the big six-master was wrecked with 11 persons on board, who were rescued from the rigging by Captain Levi Jackson and his doughty crew in a heroic manner, which resulted in recognition by the Carnegie hero fund association.

Skiff's island has never given up a ship but the owners of the Urann are to try to save her.

MANCHESTER JUDGE HANDS OUT JAIL TERMS TO MEN WHO NEGLECTED LITTLE ONES

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 23.—Judge John Kivel in the superior court yesterday outlined the jail terms offenders in the future may expect who are brought before him for wilful neglect and failure to support their minor children, when he pronounced sentence on William Linehan and Alphonse P. Brunelle of this city. Both had pleaded nolo to indictments charging them with failure to provide for their respective families. Each was sentenced to four months in jail and ordered to pay the costs of prosecution.

silent, arrived just before daylight, deputized by the state of New York to obtain the surrender of Thaw as a fugitive from justice. Whether he would press the charge of criminal conspiracy to escape from the insane asylum at Matteawan in view of the fact that the Dutchess county grand jury had failed to report an indictment against Thaw on these lines was not revealed before the hearing began.

Counsel for the fugitive maintained their confident attitude that Governor Felker would not grant the extradition of a chance visitor, whose only offense was that he had escaped from a jurisdiction in which he had been held responsible. Disinterested counsel held that the case would go from the governor to the federal courts for final determination.

Thaw Arrived

The chamber of the state senate, however, in which the hearing was held was early filled to its capacity with newspapermen, members of the bar and others who had been able to obtain tickets of admission from the senators. Thaw was not brought into the chamber until 11.05, when he appeared followed by a dozen of his counsel. They were seated on the left of the chamber, near Mrs. Thaw and her maid and son, Josiah. W. T. Jerome and his associates, Franklin Kennedy of New York and Bernard Jacobs of Lancaster were on the right with an official stenographer in the center.

Thaw passed within a foot of Jerome as he made his way to his seat, but no sign of recognition was given by either. Some of Thaw's counsel, however, shook hands with Jerome.

The appearance in the chamber of Governor Felker and his party was delayed by the fact that Mrs. Felker, the governor's wife, was on a train which did not reach Concord until after 11 o'clock.

At 11.15 the governor came in, with Mrs. Felker, and attended by Attorney General James P. Tuttle and by the members of the executive council, accompanied by their wives. Other state officials occupied a small gallery overlooking the senate chamber.

The governor said that in opening the case he was inclined to hear whatever the lawyers had to say and this with strict regard to whatever might be strictly admissible.

Counsel Waived Reading

Thaw's counsel waived the reading of the petition for extradition. Mr. Jerome addressed the governor, saying that the documents in the case speak for themselves and that there was nothing for the governor to do but to honor them. If any attack is to be made upon them it should come from the other side.

Judge William Chase of this city, of counsel for Thaw, rose and addressed the governor, saying that he would open the case for Mr. Thaw to be followed by ex-Governor Stone of Pennsylvania and by George F. Morris of Lancaster. Judge Chase, reading his argument, said that "Harry K. Thaw, a resident of Pittsburgh, Pa., is before you charged with conspiring to escape from the asylum at Matteawan, N. Y. No indictment has been found against him, although a grand jury of that county has been in session since Sept. 8. Acting Governor Glynn of New York has asked for the extradition of Thaw under the provisions of the United States constitution covering such matters. If that request is to be granted the governor of New Hampshire must be satisfied that this requisition is issued in good faith and not with any ulterior motive. The extradition process does not cover cases of insanity, but only those of treason, felony and crime.

"You cannot surrender Thaw to New York, governor, simply because he is a fugitive from Matteawan."

On this point Judge Chase quoted extensively from authorities.

Judge Chase dwelt with special emphasis upon the fact that Thaw could not be extradited simply as an insane person.

He further stated that in the case of a requested extradition for crime the petition must be supported by evidence of crime "unless sufficient evidence is introduced here to prove to your excellency that Thaw actually has committed the crime of conspiracy charged against him then you should not issue this extradition process."

Innocent of Crime

Judge Chase stated that criminal intent is the essence of crime. Against criminal intent, insanity is a complete defence. Thaw took the life of a man but is regarded as innocent of the crime because his act was decided by a jury to have been that of an insane mind. He was thereafter confined in the asylum at Matteawan until the alleged act of conspiracy took place.

Judge Chase read from the report of the superintendent of Matteawan hospital a history of the Thaw case as connected with that institution to show that Thaw has been still insane since his incarceration there. The character of Thaw's insanity as a paranoiac was discussed by Judge Chase to show that it is generally considered incurable.

"The state of New York has no right to question the findings of its own court that Thaw is an insane person. But it has charged this insane person with the criminal act of conspiracy, especially requiring the exercise of sanity.

Why Thaw Was In Asylum

"Thaw was in Matteawan not as punishment for a crime, but as a protection to the public against the acts of an insane person. His status there is of especial importance in connection with the present phase of this case." On this point, also, Judge Chase cited authorities.

"There is no decision of the courts making the escape of an insane person from an asylum an extraditable offence. If Thaw, unaided, has escaped from Matteawan it is not a crime. And as an insane person he was not capable of entering into a conspiracy to escape. Nor is there any testimony offered to show any participation on Thaw's part in any plans for his escape."

Judge Chase closed by presenting former Gov. Stone of Pennsylvania.

Thaw Stared at Jerome

During Judge Chase's address Thaw stared most of the time at Jerome, who was directly across the senate chamber with an open space of a dozen feet between them. Jerome did not return the glances. When Judge Chase spoke in closing of Thaw's desire to return home with his mother Thaw was much affected and wiped tears from his eyes with his handkerchief.

Gov. Stone dwelt upon the insufficiency of the affidavits accompanying the request for extradition to support the charge of conspiracy there made and which is not accompanied by any indictment. "The requisition papers, therefore, do not comply with the requirements of the state and of all states in this matter. On this point, Governor Stone quoted a New York decision that there is no law to punish a lunatic for escaping from an asylum. Such a law would be ludicrous. Now, since there is no such law, there can be no conspiracy to break such a law.

"It is not only the right but it is the plain duty of the governor of New Hampshire to determine whether there has been a crime committed subject to the process of extradition or whether a charge has been trumped up against the accused. On this point Governor Stone cited authorities.

He held that the burden of proof was upon those asking for the extradition to show why it should be granted. The papers in the case, said Gov. Stone, show an entire absence of opportunity for conspiracy on Thaw's part.

"The affidavits here filed show how Thaw went away from Matteawan, but getting away is not the crime with which he is charged; it is conspiring to get away. The state of New York must show that in a lucid interval of his insanity Thaw conspired as a responsible party to escape from Matteawan. They advance here no such proof."

Gov. Stone read lengthy extracts from the stenographic report of the proceedings of the United States court at Littleton a week ago.

No Indictment Against Thaw

Gov. Stone pointed out that without an indictment against Thaw in New York he could not be tried, yet they ask for his extradition upon a charge upon which he cannot be tried if extradited.

"For some reason they are fond of Thaw at Matteawan," said Gov. Stone, "perhaps because he has given it so much notoriety. At any rate its gates are wide open for his return there and such return is the true object of these proceedings."

Gov. Stone submitted to Gov. Felker a typewritten brief in connection with his argument and other documents. At 12.50 Gov. Felker announced that the hearing was adjourned until 2 o'clock.

JEROME ARRIVED AT CONCORD EARLY THIS MORNING

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—With the arrival of former District Attorney Jerome of New York in this city at 5.15 this morning all was in readiness for the hearing before Governor Samuel D. Felker of New Hampshire on the petition of the state of New York for the extradition of Harry Kendall Thaw, alleged to have conspired to escape from the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan, N. Y.

Mr. Jerome was accompanied by Franklin Kennedy, assistant attorney general of the state of New York, and they occupied berths in a through sleeping car from New York city. After registering at the same hotel of which Thaw has been a guest for the past week, Messrs. Jerome and Kennedy went direct to their rooms and there remained until the breakfast hour. Neither had any statement to make as to their position in today's hearing.

This morning newspapermen and members of the bar obtained at the office of the secretary tickets of admission to the hearing, which will be held, beginning at 11 o'clock, in the chamber of the state senate. The desks of the 24 senators have been supplemented with tables for the use of the press and the available seating accommodations have been increased as much as possible.

While the governor's executive council does not act with him in the matter of granting extradition papers it is in session here this week on other matters and its members will attend the hearing accompanied by their wives.

Thaw was up early and had a final conference with his attorneys before arriving at the senate chamber. He appeared to be further encouraged by the presence of his mother, Mrs. Mary Copley Thaw, and his brother Joseph who came here last night to give him as Mrs. Thaw said, "the support of his mother's presence in his fight to keep away from the madhouse."

A great crowd gathered outside the capital an hour before proceedings began.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KEEP CLEAN WITH CARBONOL

SOMETIMES soap-and-water cleanliness is enough. Sometimes aseptic cleanliness is absolutely necessary, and in such cases you should mix Carbonol in the water used in cleaning. A dash of Carbonol in a pail of water gives the whole mixture powerful disinfecting qualities.

Garbage cans and all repositories of refuse should be cleaned with it to kill the germs, to keep away flies and to suppress odors.

Carbonol is equally useful in general cleaning. Put it in the water when you mop the floors or wash the woodwork. Use it especially in cleaning the sickroom where there has been contagious disease. Sprinkle it in the cellar before sweeping and the musty smell will disappear.

A sample bottle with booklet will be sent free on request.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS ON

Weather Conditions Ideal—Light Vote Cast But Great Activity Among the Candidates

The state primaries are on in Lowell today and if the vote should prove light the weather clerk will not be to blame, providing the weather holds good until the polls close this evening.

The polls opened at 12 noon and will close at 9 p. m. In former years the polls opened at 11 a. m. and closed at 8 p. m. The law requires that the polls must be kept open for eight hours and it is optional with city governments or boards of selectmen as to the hour of opening. The municipal council, a month or so ago voted on the question of hours and made it from 12 m. to 9 p. m. The council allowed that these hours were best suited to local conditions.

There was considerable activity about the various precincts when the polls opened at the noon hour and automobiles and carriages were very much in evidence during the early hours of the afternoon. The automobiles and carriages were more especially for the old men and the day was so fine that a goodly number of them turned out to enjoy the ride as well as to vote.

Thirteen jobwagons, with "Happy Day" Casey's caravan as an auxiliary, drew up in front of the Moody street entrance to the city hall at 11 o'clock this forenoon and took the ballot boxes to the various precincts. A little later, City Clerk Flynn made the rounds of the precincts, in the buildings department automobile, just to see that everything was in "apple pie" order, and he made a quick trip, too, as he was due back at the hall at 11.45 for a meeting of the municipal council.

Cornelius F. Sullivan, care taker of the ballot boxes, has been engaged in the office of the secretary of state and got leave of absence last Saturday, in order to prepare the boxes for the state primaries in this city. Mr. Sullivan worked all day Sunday and part of last night. This morning he announced that the boxes were ready for action and that's all there was to it.

All work in connection with elections this fall will have to be pulled off in double quick time because there is very little election money left, the money having been spent during the summer months.

The following police officers were named by Supt. Welch to serve at the various polling booths:

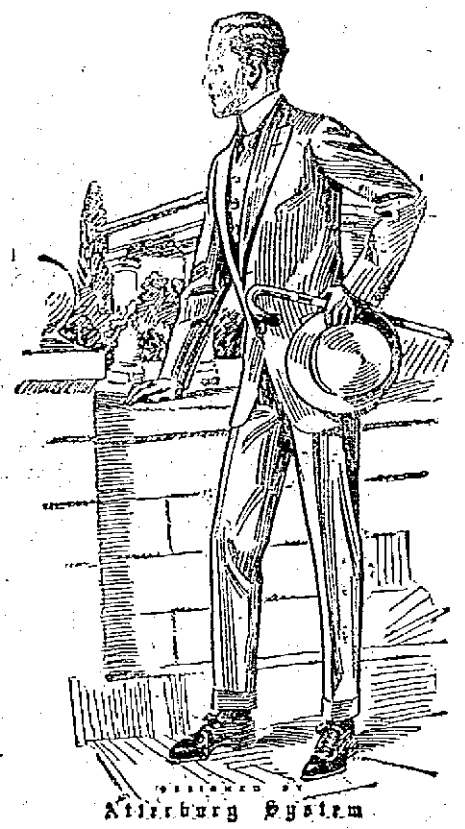

Amos P. Best, candidate for senator was the first man to vote at precinct 3, ward 7 this noon. The above precinct is located on Riverside street.

The comfort and pleasure of having a clean, light, airy, sanitary office for your patrons as well as yourself, makes work easy in the new Sun building.

to approximately $75,000 annual. In addition to this they are obliged to compete with the lower tariff, and it is their belief that such an increase would greatly injure local prosperity. Another firm stated that it has a business of about 50,600 tons annually in New England alone, over the B. & M. lines. These facts were brought out during the hearing.

Among the officials present with Commissioner Prouty were representatives of the public service commissions of Massachusetts, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Lawyer Edgar J. Rich, counsel for the Boston & Maine, opened the proceedings with a long statement of the reasons for the demand for higher rates. Part of his speech is appended.

After his opening, he called four witnesses, Vice President Hobbs, who has charge of the finances; General Manager Pollock, Mr. Bartlett, superintendent of motor power and Chief Abel Cortell.

Mr. Hobbs dealt at length with the financial conditions of the road, stating that the company needed 10,000 new freight cars as it has been doing business with hired freight cars. The company also needed greater facilities in the line of terminals and trackage.

Mr. Rich said there was a great falling off in the revenues of the road. He said that this road was confronted by a serious situation. For July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $54,550 as contrasted with $407,302 for July, 1912. For September the decrease in operating revenue had been up till the 14th at the rate of $9500 a day. This was due, Mr. Rich said, to an increase in the rate of wages, cost of material, hiring cars and in interest charges.

The annual report of the Boston & Maine road for the year ending June 31 shows a deficit of $1,324,000. The total net revenue was $10,803,998.

Lawyer Rich's Statement

The following is a synopsis of the opening statement made by Edgar J. Rich, general solicitor for the Boston & Maine railroad:

The investigation of the New England railroads which began in the spring of 1912 was occasioned principally by complaints of bad service on the Boston & Maine railroad. During the course of the hearing it developed that the causes of bad service were extreme cold weather, the Hoosac Tunnel disaster and retrenchment. It was shown that retrenchment was imperative if the railroad was to be kept solvent. During the investigation the railroad officials, smarting under public criticism, began to pay more attention to service, with the result that in the spring of 1913, although service had improved, the financial condition of the railroad was becoming most serious. This condition developed towards the close of the hearing in April. This hearing today is held, partly at least, for the purpose of determining with greater certainty whether the claim of the Boston & Maine railroad that its revenue is entirely inadequate can be justified.

Board's Financial Condition

For the year ending June 30, 1913, the Boston & Maine railroad, after paying operating expenses and fixed charges, had a net corporate income of $49,695.82. This is the total amount available for dividends to the stockholders, with nothing for additions and betterments. It is useless to conceal the serious situation which confronts the Boston & Maine railroad. For the month of July, 1913, the net corporate income was only $54,550.94, as contrasted with $407,302.93 for the same month of 1912. The net results for August are not yet available, but from a preliminary study little satisfaction is gleaned from the figures. For September the decrease in gross operating revenue to the 14th of the month has been at the rate of $9600 per day.

Increased Revenue

That the Boston & Maine railroad cannot go on without greatly increasing its net revenue is too clear for argument. It is needless to say that these representatives of expert tribunals recognize fully the necessity for reasonable net earnings which may be available in part for permanent improvements, and in part to pay a reasonable return to the owners of the property. The public, too, as a matter of fairness, recognizes fully the right of the stockholders to a reasonable return. If the public is to be properly served in the way of current service and in improvements and enlargements of service, as required by increasing business and increasing public demands, there must be a vastly greater margin for improving the present service and enlarging the plant to accommodate the ever increasing traffic and public demands.

The only question about which there may be a difference of opinion is whether the increased net revenue should come through reduction of expenses, by more economical and more efficient methods, or, whether it should come from higher rates. If the same result can be accomplished by improvement in methods and reform within the railroad organization, this ought to be done. A railroad has no right to come before the public authorities and ask for increased rates unless it can show that it cannot gain this result by the exercise of absolute honesty, reasonable economy and efficiency. The interstate commerce commission and the state commissions are justified, therefore, in compelling us to make an exhibit of our operating methods, and to see to what extent an increase in net revenue may come from the adoption of more efficient methods.

Causes of the Decrease

The public service commission of New Hampshire and the interstate commerce commission have each made searching inquiry into the causes of the financial condition of the Boston and Maine railroad. We believe that the following are the principal causes of this condition:—

1. Great increase in rate of wages. The increase for a single year, ending June 30, 1911, was approximately $2,000,000, for the same number of men—an increase equivalent to 5 per cent. on the capital stock. Since that time there has been a progressive increase in wages, so that at the present time it is safe to say that the Boston and Maine railroad is paying at least $3,000,000 more for the same amount of labor than it paid in 1910; or, in other words, an amount equivalent to a 7 per cent. dividend.

2. The increase in the cost of hiring freight cars, the per diem rate changing on January 1, 1913, from 40 and 35c. to 45c. This would be equivalent to an increased burden of nearly a million dollars a year.

3. The moderate increase in business has resulted in extreme congestion at many points, which probably has resulted in an increase in the cost of handling traffic.

4. Large increase in interest charge.

As the decrease in net earnings was more or less coincident with New Haven management the impression has prevailed that in some way the New Haven control was responsible for this condition. The rigid investigation of the New Hampshire commission and of the federal commission establishes the fact beyond controversy that the New Haven has dealt absolutely fairly with the Boston and Maine railroad.

Exercise of Economy

The Boston and Maine railroad has had the benefit of the services of its old and trusted officials, and has also had the benefit of able men, trained on other railroads. But, every new man coming to the Boston and Maine railroad comes up against the same situation; namely, that there can be little saving through the exercise of economy or through more efficient methods until vast sums are expended for permanent improvements.

By reason of the drastic investigations made by commissions during the past two or three years a few instances of inefficient administration have been discovered. For instance, the New Hampshire public service commission criticized severely and justly the methods employed at certain points in loading coal on engines. As a result of its criticism many of our coaling plants have been revamped and others are in process of improvement, with the result that we expect soon to have most of our coaling plants doing work at greatly reduced cost. But the opportunities for saving of this kind are exceedingly few.

Coal a Big Problem

The coal problem is one of the big problems of New England railroads because we are so far from the mines. If we were able to secure our supply at the same cost that the Pennsylvania railroad secures its supply, we would save the equivalent of a five per cent dividend.

Certainly after the drastic investigations of the last two years no criticism can justly be made of our purchases of coal. The contracts have been found by commissions to be very favorable to us.

What is said of the purchase of coal is equally applicable to the purchase of all supplies. There is no evidence of lack of honesty or efficiency.

There is one internal condition, however, which would doubtless improve the situation. The last two years the Boston & Maine railroad has been so castigated, criticized and ridiculed that it is not surprising that the officers and men alike have been losing courage. Re-establish esprit de corps and you will reduce unit cost; give the officers an opportunity to loosen up a little in economy, remove the pressure under which every one is working and you will do much to rehabilitate the spirit of the organization.

How Can Road be Financed?

The money imperatively needed in order to put the Boston & Maine railroad in a fair condition for safety and efficiency in operation cannot be raised at the present time upon any basis which would not place a heavy burden upon the railroad in the future. The laws of the states in which it is incorporated forbid the selling of stock at less than par. Its present market value is about 60. Financing by short term notes can be accomplished only at such high rates of interest as would place the railroad in a more unfortunate position than it is today. Bonds cannot be sold upon the basis which the directors would be justified in authorizing. No matter how the financing is to be accomplished it cannot be done except by placing the Boston & Maine railroad in a position where its stock will sell at par. This can be done only by a material increase in rates. When earning power is re-established and the stock sells at par or higher the financial problem is solved and the Boston & Maine railroad will become an efficient public servant. The remedy is in your hands.

ACCESSORY TO SUICIDE

MEDIUM ARRESTED—MAN HELD FOR MURDER OF WIFE AND CHILD

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 23.—A warrant was issued yesterday for the arrest of J. G. Farrell, on a charge of being an accessory to the suicide of Mrs. T. A. Turner and her daughter at Glenwood last Wednesday.

According to a written confession that the police say was made by Mrs. Turner's husband, she and her daughter met death in an agreement that all three should commit suicide.

It is alleged Farrell induced Turner to deed his property to him and then influenced him to carry out the suicide pact. Turner is recovering from the self-administered poison. Turner said Farrell held seances with the Turner family and "brought back" Turner's dead son, who urged his father "to enter the land beyond."

County Prosecutor Collins announced that he would arrest Turner on charges of murdering his wife and daughter.

TUBERCULOSIS EMBLEM

To be Standardized—Double Red Cross Will be Used by All Anti-Tuberculosis Organizations

A special committee of the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis, of which Dr. Henry Barton Jacobs of Baltimore is chairman, announces the exact proportions of the double red cross, the international tuberculosis emblem, which have been adopted in the United States. Every organization or institution dealing with tuberculosis will be urged to use the emblem in its correct proportions.

Although the double red cross was adopted for use in the United States in 1906 as the symbol of the crusade against tuberculosis no effort was made to standardize the shape or proportions, with the result that hundreds of differently formed emblems are now being used in this country. After a year of study of the history and artistic merits of all of the designs available, the National association has finally chosen one in which all of the arms are pointed, the two cross-arms being of the same length. The width of the cross is taken as the unit in determining the proportions. The length of the lower leg is 7 units; the arms are 3 units on either side; the point above the arms 2¼ units; and the distance between the arms, 1½ units. These measurements hold good for any size.

The double red cross was first adopted as the symbol of the International Anti-Tuberculosis association in Berlin, in October, 1902. The proposer of the symbol was Dr. G. Sersiron of Paris, who is now associate secretary of L'Association Centrale Francaise Contre la Tuberculose. Today the emblem is being used by anti-tuberculosis workers in every part of the world, even in Iceland, India, South Africa, Labrador, Japan, China and the Philippines. The double red cross is similar in shape to a cross used frequently in the Greek Catholic churches, and also to the Lorraine cross of France.

In the United States over 1300 anti-tuberculosis associations and committees, nearly 550 sanatoria and hospitals with 400 dispensaries and about 200 open air schools, besides a number of other organizations, are using the double red cross as their emblem. Wherever it is seen, it means war against tuberculosis.

PRIMARIES ON

The State Campaign for Nominations Closed Last Night

BOSTON, Sept. 22.—The campaign for nominations in the state primaries closed last night. Candidates for state office come before the voters today for party endorsement, with two principal contests as the only enlivening feature of the dullest of the three campaigns under the primaries system.

Each of the two candidates in these two contests—that for governor on the republican ticket, in which Col. Everett C. Benton and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner are the contenders, and for lieutenant governor on the democratic ticket, sought by E. P. Barry and Richard H. Long, last night expressed confidence in the outcome.

"I think the chances are in my favor, but I am by no means overconfident," said Congressman Gardner.

"I shall carry every county in the state except Essex and possibly Franklin. My nomination is certain," was the more confident prediction of Mr. Benton.

Lieut. Gov. David I. Walsh is an unopposed candidate for head of the democratic ticket and Charles S. Bird will lead the progressives for a second year.

There are no contests in the progressive ranks, and interest in the primaries so far as party is concerned apparently centers in the size of the vote.

The secretary of state sent out more than a million ballots yesterday but it is expected that less than a quarter of that number will be used.

A dozen senatorial fights, and 50 or 60 struggles for nominations for the legislature may bring out votes in some districts.

The balloting in Boston and some of the other cities and a few small towns will begin at 6 a. m., but in a majority of cases the primaries will be held in the evening.

After the three parties, democratic, progressive and republican have selected their candidates there will still be two weeks in which independent candidates may obtain places on the ticket.

It was reported yesterday that Gov. Foss, elected as a democrat and who failed to receive a sufficient endorsement to run on the republican primary ticket for governor, would enter the field as an independent candidate for a fourth term. Gov. Foss has been asked several times regarding his political future but has refused to commit himself.

EARLY VOTE LIGHT

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A primary election for the selection of candidates of the November state election was held in Massachusetts today with good weather and few contests. The early vote except in districts where there was a struggle among candidates for the legislature was light.

Interest centered on the contest for the head of the republican ticket between Col. Everett C. Benton of Belmont and Congressman Augustus P. Gardner of Hamilton. There was also a contest in the democratic party for lieutenant governor between Edward P. Barry of Boston and Richard H. Long of Framingham. There was no opposition to Charles S. Bird of Walpole or to Lieut. Gov. Walsh of Fitchburg for the leading places on the progressive and democratic tickets.

Up to 9 a. m. the progressive vote in Boston and other large cities where early voting was held was very light.

BREAKS COAL RECORD

LAST YEAR'S PRODUCTION IN KENTUCKY SHOWS INCREASE OF NEARLY 2,500,000 TONS

The production of coal in Kentucky established a new record in 1912 with a total production of 16,450,631 short tons, according to Edward W. Parker, coal statistician of the United States geological survey. This large output represented an increase of 2,440,818 tons over the figures for 1911, and of nearly 2,000,000 tons over the former maximum output of 1910. There was an even greater increase in value in 1912, namely, $2,545,749 over the figures for 1911. The increased production in Kentucky was due chiefly to the new developments in the eastern part of the state, although the western counties participated largely in the gain.

The number of men employed in the mines in 1912 was 24,384, and the average production per man, 678 tons. Kentucky ranks second among the states in the percentage of coal produced by machines, Ohio holding first place. In 1912, 66 per cent. of the coal produced was machine mined. Labor troubles in the state were insignificant during the year, but according to the United States bureau of mines there were 51 fatalities in and about the mines, 41 underground, 2 in shafts, and 8 on the surface.

State Has Great Coal Reserve

Kentucky is the only one of the coal-producing states which has within its borders areas belonging to any two of the distinctly separate great coal fields. The eastern counties of the state are underlain by the coal beds of the great Appalachian mountain system, extending entirely across the state in a northeast-southwest direction, while the southern limits of the central or eastern interior coal field are found in the more northern counties of the western part of the state. The total area underlain by coal in the eastern counties of Kentucky is estimated at 16,270 square miles, and the coal-bearing areas in the western part of the state are estimated to contain 4100 square miles. Up to the close of 1911 the larger part of the production of the state had been from the western district, but as a result of extensive developments in Harlan, Johnson, Letcher and Pike counties, the larger part of the coal production in 1912 was from the eastern part of the state. The eastern Kentucky coals are mostly high-grade "gas" or "coking" coals, with some cannel coal.

LIQUOR FIRM BANKRUPT

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—The liquor firm of Mark H. Cobe & Co., of this city filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the United States district court yesterday. The assets are estimated at $98,455, principally of stock in trade valued at $47,164. The liabilities amount to $165,676, of which $107,240 is unsecured. A brewing firm with a claim for $21,000 is the largest creditor.

LOCOMOTIVE, TENDER AND BAGGAGE CAR DITCHED—TWELVE PASSENGERS INJURED

EVERETT, Wash., Sept. 23.—More than a dozen passengers on Great Northern Overland train were injured yesterday, one fatally and two others seriously, near Mukilteo, south of Everett, through the breaking of an axle of the tender and the ditching of the locomotive, tender and baggage car.

Before a flagman could be sent back to post a warning signal, a west bound train came along at full speed on the other track. Some of the wreckage of the locomotive and baggage car lay on the rails and the train crashed into it, but escaped serious damage.

All the injured passengers were brought to a hospital here. Rev. G. W. Grannis of Long Beach, Cal., is expected to die.

WELL KNOWN MAN

ANDREW A. GRAY PASSED AWAY THIS MORNING—HE HAD BEEN ILL FOUR YEARS

Andrew A. Gray, one of the best known young men of this city, died this morning at his home, 19 Tolman avenue, after a lingering illness, aged 38 years. Deceased was very prominent in Lowell and counted a host of friends, who will be grieved to learn of his demise.

Andrew A. Gray was born in Lowell 38 years ago and received his education in the schools of his native city.

THE LATE ANDREW A. GRAY

For a number of years he held the position of traveling salesman for the Acme Glass Co. of New York. Four years ago he was stricken with an illness, which was sure to lead him to the grave. However, he always bore his infirmity with resignation, and it was not until about six months ago that he was confined to his home. The end came at 8 o'clock this morning.

Deceased was a member of the Lowell Aerie of Eagles, the Elks, Div. 1, A. O. H. and the Travelers' association. He is survived by his father, Terrence, three brothers, Patrick of Philadelphia, Terrence of New York and James J., manager of the Lowell baseball team five sisters, Miss Katherine T., Mrs. Mary Andrews, Mrs. Elizabeth Dunfey, Mrs. Edward Tryon and Mrs. John Dineen of Lawrence, also several nieces and nephews.

UNDERGROUND WATERS

"Underground Waters For Farm Use," a popular report of the United States Geological Survey, has again been reprinted to meet the wide demand from all farming and suburban sections of the country. A copy can now be obtained free, on application to the Director, United States Geological Survey, Washington, D. C.

This water supply paper (No. 255) explains in simple language the habits of flow of underground waters through different kinds of rocks and soils, and calls attention to the dangerous character of many wells whose waters are supposed to be pure and wholesome. Water from limestone rock especially, it is stated, is apt to contain germs of typhoid or other disease, due to the fact that surface waters may find their way directly into underground channels which have been cut out through the dissolution of the lime.

Methods of protection from subsurface drainage in farming districts are discussed in the report, well-drilling methods and cost, types of curbs and well casings with which wells should be fitted, etc. The report embraces only about 50 pages, but is well illustrated with photographs and diagrams.

Here is a simple treatment, which if used, will quickly banish hair or fuzz from chin, cheek or lip: Mix enough powdered delatone and water to cover the hairy surface, apply and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off and the hairs are gone. Then wash the skin to rid it of the remaining paste. This is quite harmless and does not injure the most sensitive skin. Definite results are had quickest if the delatone is bought in an original package.

FIFTY KILLED

Rebels Dynamite Train in Mexico — Survivors Were Robbed

LAREDO, Tex., Sept. 23.—Fifty persons were killed when rebels dynamited a passenger train on the Mexican National railway, 60 miles south of Saltillo, Mexico, Friday afternoon according to official reports to Mexican federal headquarters in Novo Laredo yesterday. The train was then looted and the surviving passengers robbed, it is said.

Forty federal soldiers and 10 second class passengers comprised the official death list. The number of injured was not given.

W. W. Mervain, of San Francisco, the only American on the train, is said to have escaped injury but was robbed.

Two dynamite mines were set off by electricity, it was said. The first class coach was only derailed, but the baggage, express and two second class coaches were blown to pieces.

COAL OUTPUT INCREASES

PRODUCTION IN TENN. FOR 1912 SHOWS HEALTHY CONDITION—VALUED AT OVER $7,000,000.

Activity in coal mining in Tennessee was well maintained in 1912, according to figures of E. W. Parker, of the United States Geological Survey. In fact, the production shows an increase of some forty thousand tons in that year over 1911. The output for 1912 was 6,473, 228 short tons, valued at $7,379,903.

The coal measures of the Appalachian region across the eastern part of Tennessee in a comparatively narrow belt, 50 to 70 miles wide, in a northeast-southwest direction. The total area underlain by coal is about 4,400 square miles and the greater part of the area contains one or more beds of workable thickness and quality. All of the coals of Tennessee are bituminous, generally high grade, and some of them make a good quality of coke. Smithing coal is produced in the southern part of the field.

The coal mines of Tennessee gave employment of 10,309 men for an average of 234 days in 1912, the average production by each man employed being 628 tons for the year and 2.68 tons for each working day.

About two-thirds of the total coal production of Tennessee is properly mined, according to Mr. Parker, and one-third is shot off the solid without having been undercut or sheared. In 1912 the quantity of coal mined by hand was 2,708,650 short tons, or 41.8 per cent. of the total, and 1,295,695 tons, or 18.6 per cent., were mined by the use of machines. The quantity of coal shot off the solid was 2,127,917 tons, or 32.9 per cent. of the total. Most of the coal used in the manufacture of coke in Tennessee is washed before being charged into the ovens. In 1912 the quantity of coal made into coke at the mines was 447,413 short tons, which included 350,994 tons of washed coal.

The time lost by labor troubles in Tennessee during 1912 amounted to less than 1 per cent. of the total time made, and in consequence was not of sufficient importance to influence the production. The fatalities in the coal mines of Tennessee in 1912, according to the United States bureau of mines, totaled 18, of which 17 occurred underground, and of these, 14 were caused by falls of roof and coal. There were no deaths due to explosions of dust or gas. The fatality record of 1912 was a notable improvement over 1911, when 115 men lost their lives, 84 of them by explosions.

M. T. I. TO CELEBRATE

LOCAL SOCIETY WILL HOLD BANQUET IN HONOR OF 123D ANNIVERSARY OF BIRTH OF FR. MATHEW

The members of the Mathew Temperance Institute of this city will celebrate the 123d anniversary of the birth of the Apostle of Temperance, Rev. Theobald Matthew, on the evening of Thursday, Oct. 9, with an elaborate banquet in their rooms, 97 Central street. This is an annual event and from the extensive preparations which have been in progress for some time under the direction of the various committees, it will doubtless be one of record success.

The banquet will start promptly at 8 o'clock. Announcements of this fact have been sent out to the members and invited guests, and all have been urged to contribute to the success by being present. Superintendent of Schools Hugh J. Molloy will preside and the principal speaker of the evening will be Rev. E. J. Cornell, O. M. I., of North Billerica. There will also be other prominent men among those who will deliver addresses. The entertainment committee has arranged a delightful program for the event, containing several excellent musical and literary numbers.

SOCIAL AND FRATERNAL

At the meeting of Division 8, A. O. H. held last night in Hibernian hall three propositions for membership were received and accepted. A large amount of routine business was transacted and it was voted to hold a smoke talk on the evening of October 13.

The following committee was appointed to take charge of the entertainment: On speakers, D. F. Reilly and Patrick J. Mahoney; on refreshments, Michael Rynne, chairman, John McGarry and John Murray; on notification and press, Edw. J. Flannery, Thomas Dorsey and Hugh McGowan.

Protection Lodge, 43, A. D. S.

Protection lodge, 43, American Benefit society met in regular session in Pilgrim hall last night with a large number of members present. It was voted to hold all future meetings in Odd Fellows hall on Middlesex street. After the business a social hour was enjoyed.

TO COST $5000

Taking of Religious Census in Lowell Will Require Four Months

The chief subject of discussion at a meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Churches held last night at the Ministry-at-Large was the religious census. The work of taking the census will begin this week. There will be 20 census takers and it is estimated that it will take them four months to finish the job. The estimated expense is $5000 which is borne by the Bible society. The policy is to get, in each case, throughout the canvass, an expression of religious preference, if possible. In cases where families or individuals are not connected with any church. Where it is found impossible to secure such expression, the report is made "no preference."

The following committee was appointed to receive and distribute the reports of the canvassers: Rev. J. M. Kyle, chairman; Rev. W. H. McLean, Mr. Harvey B. Greene, Rev. Appleton Grannis and Rev. A. R. Dills.

Prior to the opening of the census question there were various reports of committees, one of the most interesting being the report on the work of the federation playground for the season, given by Rev. C. T. Billings, who read the report turned in by the supervisor, Miss Genevieve E. Lawrence.

The average daily attendance at the playground for the season was 27 and the cost of running the playground, irrespective of the salary paid the teacher, was very small.

FEW AIRMEN IN CIVIL LIFE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—In the event of war it is doubtful whether a score of men could be found in civil life in this country who could be utilized by the army in aeroplane work, in the opinion of Brig. Gen. George S. Scriven, chief signal officer, in charge of the army aviation corps.

In calling attention to what he considers a critical situation, Gen. Scriven declared yesterday that the number of civilians who have heretofore undertaken to fly heavier-than-air machines for pleasure, sport or money-making is fast diminishing. "The army must look to itself and to the men of the organized militia," he said, "to supply a reasonable number of officers for military aviation, in case of necessity."

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty-Seekers

C. M. P.: The neck should receive similar attention to that given the complexion, so color and texture of skin will be the same. A yellow neck and a white face give a discordant effect. I advise using for both neck and complexion, the treatment recommended to "Monica."

F. M.: First, stop scowling. If you would get rid of the lines between the eyes. The best application for such lines, and all wrinkles, is a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, ½ pint. Bathe the face in this daily until entirely relieved.

Monica: You hardly need such a list of cosmetics as you mention. Ordinary mercolized wax will help you more than any or all of them. It will gradually absorb the withered, discolored complexion and you will soon have a new, youthful and healthy-looking skin. You needn't get more than an ounce of the wax, which will cost you little at any druggist's. Apply nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—Woman's Realm.

FOR THE OLYMPIC GAMES

Arrangements Being Made in All Countries for the 1916 Meet — American Prospects Good

NEW YORK, Sept. 22.—Although three years will elapse before the sixth revival of the Olympic games to be held at Berlin during the summer of 1916, the meet has already assumed proportions far surpassing any previous struggle for world's amateur track and field championships. The games, their preliminaries and preparation are topics of national and international comment and discussion throughout the old and new world. In the midst of these preparations the United States athletic authorities continue to lead the way. American prospects for the 1916 Olympic games are brighter than at any time since the revival of this athletic classic, owing to the work of the new "International Athletic Federation" just organized at Berlin by delegates from sixteen leading athletic countries of the world.

As a controlling international authority for amateur track and field sports its suggestions to the Olympic games committee will carry great weight. The proposed I. A. F. standard program of track and field events is made up almost entirely of events on the programs of American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American college and athletic club events and the rules are largely those to which the American athletes are accustomed. The victory of the American views at the congress German sport critics ascribe to the fact that the events proposed by the United States are practiced everywhere and are devoid of freakishness; the superiority of the results produced under the American rules and in no small measure to the ability of the American delegates and the prestige of American athletes.

It was the concensus of opinion among the delegates that the American representatives of the Amateur Athletic union were by far the best versed in the theory and technique of athletics. When they advocated changes in the rules they advanced excellent reasons in support of their contention and won many victories and supporters to their ideas. Some of the rules advocated at the suggestion of the United States delegates were: Toeboard circles for the shotput; penalties for false starts, and a rule to prevent drawing for several entrants all representing one country in preliminary heats of races. On a few points American ideas were rejected, as, for instance in adopting a 16-pound shot made of iron instead of the smaller American lead shot, and in providing for a dug-out take-off for the broad jump, against the United States argument that the take-off joist sunk flush with the ground was far safer.

Fund of $500,000

While the International Athletic federation was smoothing out wrinkles in the program to be offered as a model for the Berlin games, the Olympic controversy that has held the attention of English athletic followers since the Stockholm meet of a year ago attained fresh prominence. The proposal to raise a fund of $500,000 rather staggered the average subject of George V. Although there were few early subscribers to the fund there were hundreds of inquiries as to what was to be done with enormous sum of money.

The Duke of Westminster in a public letter calls attention to the long list of sporting trophies and championships which England lost during the past fifteen years. He wrote:

"Polo, America; racquets, America; yachting, America; lawn tennis (singles), New Zealand; lawn tennis (Davis cup), America; court tennis, America (Jay Gould); boxing, America-France, billiards (English), Australia; swimming, America-Australia; rugby-football, South Africa-New Zealand; lacrosse, Canada; cycling, France-Germany; trotting horse, America; horse jumping, France-Russia; fencing, France; shooting (King's prize), Canada; skating, Sweden; track and field athletics, America.

"This is a tale of national disaster. Is England to do nothing to recover her ancient supremacy as the mother of sport? The king is both a man of business and a sportsman. As Prince of Wales on a memorable occasion, his momentous 'Wake up England' electrified an empire and gave an immense stimulus to commerce and industry. As our sovereign he now bids Britain to 'wake up' in sport and hopes that every effort will be made to ensure that the United Kingdom is represented by its best athletes at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1916. We are in honor bound to go forward and do our level best to restore the lost prestige of a great sporting nation. But victory is efficient organization and training, and both cost money.

"I confidently appeal to my fellow sportsmen to help me in getting the $500,000, for which a national appeal was made by Lord Grey, Lord Harris, Lord Rothschild, Lord Roberts, Lord Strathcona and myself as quickly as possible."

California Tennis Players

A surprise which was no part of the official reception was sprung on the California tennis players who toured the east this summer when they returned to their native state recently. Evidently several ambitious youngsters had been practicing with the racquet all summer and the home comers received a distinct shock in he California state championship tournament. In the doubles Maurice E. McLoughlin, paired with Wickham Havens, was defeated in three straight sets by B. H. Botkin and C. E. Foley. Clarence J. Griffin, winner of the western singles championship, was eliminated by Norman Ambrose, an unranked player, in two sets. Another upset came when Griffin and John R. Strachan, who played McLoughlin and Bundy at Newport for the United States double title, were defeated by W. E. Johnston and E. Fottrell in three straight sets.

Challenge for Polo Cup

The impression is growing in national polo circles that a challenge for the polo cup will be received from the Hurlingham club of England before the time limit expires on Jan. 1. Lord Ashby St. Ledgers is back of the latest project to recover the trophy and has tentatively selected six players and a string of ponies. If the challenge conforms to the cup playing rules it will be accepted, according to a prominent official of the American Polo association. With competitions scheduled for the America's Davis and polo cups, 1914 would appear to be securing a flying start in international sport figures.

GALLANT, IDEAL BOXER

CHELSEA BOY DOES NOT USE TOBACCO OR LIQUOR AND ALWAYS RUSHES HOME WITH BACON

Gilbert Gallant, who meets Joe Phillips at the L. A. club Friday night, is one of the most popular boxers in New England. "Gil," as he is called by his many friends does not use tobacco or liquor in any way. Unlike the majority of boxers Gallant has but one thought and that is home. After each engagement Gallant brings his earnings home and gives the greater portion of it to his mother. As a tribute to his popularity in Boston two special cars have been chartered by his friends to accompany him to Lowell Friday evening. Gallant intends putting in a strenuous year and has hopes of reaching the top of the lightweight class. He has been resting in the country for a month and is already in excellent condition for Friday evening. Phillips is liable to upset Gallant's fondest hopes of a victory. This boy formerly claimed Providence as his home but of late has been located at Cleveland. He has had remarkable success in his tour of the middle west and the south. As he has seen Gallant perform he feels sure he can secure a decisive win over him. In speaking of the bout Boston sport writers say it should be one of the best lightweight bouts of the season. Gardiner Brooks is daily training for his bout with Young Baldwin. Brooks is one of the cleverest boys of his weight in New England and looks to have a bright future ahead of him.

DIAMOND DAZZLES

Rube DeGroff has made himself nearly as popular in Hartford as he is in Lowell. Rube's antics are something new on a ball park down this way.

Manager Clarkin informed the writer that he does not expect to lose a player by draft this year. Curry, however, will be sold in all probability. The Hartford second sacker is not anxious to continue in the city where he was recently fined $200 for assault and battery. Curry is a hard player for a manager to handle but is a great man at second.

The urchins here follow the Lowell players around the streets with eyes and mouths wide open. The same curiosity, though not so openly displayed, is shown by the adults apparently. Hartford fans did not believe it possible for Lowell to even win two games.

Kelliher, Hartford's first baseman, comes from Washington, D. C., and is a typical hotheaded Southerner. Yesterday a cousin of Kelliher who had come on from New York to see Saturday's game, remarked that he considered Lowell to be the stronger team and his kinsman flew into a rage. Kelliher heaped abuse upon his cousin for several minutes until his head cooled and then his apologies were just as profuse as his harangue had been abusive.

MANAGER GRAY IS CALLED HOME BY THE DEATH OF HIS BROTHER

(Over Sun's Special Wire)

HARTFORD, Sept. 23.—Manager Gray left the Lowell baseball headquarters here last night in response to a telegram from his family notifying him that his brother, Andrew, was near death's door and not expected to live through the night. Word came here this morning that he had passed away. Ever since the sad tidings were conveyed to the club gloom has been the predominant feature of the Lowell camp.

CAPT. AUBREY
In Charge of Lowell Team

Captain Aubrey will manage the team in today's Lowell-Hartford battle. The shortstop's word will be supreme until Manager Gray once more picks up the reins of command.

The players of both teams are confident of winning and a large crowd is expected to turn out to the fourth game. Weather indications point to an ideal baseball day.

LAWYERS ARGUE THAW'S CASE

In Memorable Fight for and Against Extradition Before Gov. Felker of N. H.—Jerome Denounces Thaw

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Thaw was taken from the hotel to the state house promptly at two o'clock, the usual crowd attending him, but without demonstration. His counsel also were in their places at that hour.

Jerome and his associates soon followed but Governor Felker and his family did not appear until 2.15. A few minutes after Mrs. Thaw, Harry's mother, and her companion came in to their seats.

Upon the opening of the afternoon session George F. Morris of Lancaster addressed Governor Felker and said that he had been selected by his fellow counsel for Thaw to "take after" their arguments. Mr. Morris laid stress upon the fact that in the proceeding of extradition under the constitution of the United States the first duty is to see that the rights of the citizen, Thaw, are secured.

"Your excellency," said Mr. Morris, "must be absolutely satisfied of the genuineness of this proceeding before giving your assent to it. The motive that prompts the demand is open to legislative inquiry. This petition seeks to do indirectly what its sponsors cannot do directly and is not a due process of law. There is much to be read between the lines here and it is your excellency's duty to read it. This proceeding is a subterfuge to obtain possession of the person of Harry K. Thaw.

"Public opinion and public sentiment have no part in the adjudication of a case like this, I know, but in their name nevertheless I ask your excellency to exercise broad discretion in dealing with this matter."

At 2.45 Mr. Jerome arose and said that while he had listened to many arguments in many tribunals he never had heard a more extraordinary argument advanced than that of Mr. Morris that in a forced and fraudulent public opinion the governor of New Hampshire could and should find a reason or an excuse for disregarding this petition of the state of New York for a writ of extradition and for refusing to perform a duty laid upon him by the constitution of the United States.

Jerome branded Thaw as a criminal, a fugitive from justice and then quoted decisions and instances in which men of this type had been extradited.

Jerome in conclusion branded Thaw as a homicidal maniac at certain times and at others a vicious degenerate. Judge Chase replied arguing that there was a personal motive.

Gov. Stone charged Jerome with hounding Thaw and causing prejudice against him by allusion to the Thaw millions.

Gov. Stone was given until next Monday to file supplementary briefs.

THAW'S COUNSEL FIGHT EXTRADITION AND JEROME QUOTES DECISIONS

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Reasons why Harry K. Thaw should not be extradited to the state of New York from the state of New Hampshire were presented to Governor Samuel D. Felker in the senate chamber of the state house today by William M. Chase of Concord, former judge of the state supreme court and by William A. Stone of Pittsburgh, former governor of the state of Pennsylvania. Their arguments occupied the time from 11.15 to 12.45, when Governor Felker announced an adjournment of the hearing until 2 o'clock this afternoon. William T. Jerome of New York will argue then for the issuance of the extradition papers. The proceedings this morning were entirely formal and without exciting incidents. Messrs. Chase and Stone declared the petition for extradition insufficient in form and unsupported by the necessary evidence and that the state of New York having by its courts declared Thaw insane could not now request from New Hampshire his extradition for a crime which by its nature only a sane man could commit.

THAW'S REAL FIGHT FOR FREEDOM WAS BEGUN TODAY

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 23.—Harry K. Thaw's real fight for freedom began today. With the opening of the extradition hearing before Governor Felker, counsel on both sides realized that the hour of legal sparring for a temporary advantage had passed and that the outcome rested on the interpretation of points of law regarding which few if any precedents had been found.

ELECTRIC UNION

Held Banquet in Boston —President McNulty Talks

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A proposition that it be urged that the American Federation of Labor be reorganized on industrial lines was advanced at the convention of the Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' unions yesterday, and was voted down by an almost unanimous vote. The proposition was offered by delegates from Schenectady. International Pres. Frank J. McNulty left the chair to lead the opposition. Last night, at the convention banquet tendered by Boston Union 103, Pres. McNulty referred to the matter in his address, saying in part:

"Nothing can prevent our going forward. No matter what secession movement is started, it is bound to fail. When I visited the Pacific coast I found myself in a hot bed of secession. What they really want is industrialism, and that doesn't fit with trade unionism.

"Industrialism has been tried and found wanting. The A. F. of L. is built on the ruins of an industrial organization—the Knights of Labor. The A. F. of L. has done more for the working people than any other movement. Religion and politics have never done as much. The strength of the trade union movement, let by the great leader, Samuel Gompers, is due to its plan of organization. They have tried to bribe Gompers, as was revealed by Mulhall at the investigation at Washington. All such attempts failed. I was present in the hotel when the agent of the Manufacturers' Association called to see Gompers, so that I know something about the mater. I know personally that Mulhall told what was true."

Pres. McNulty advocated higher dues for the brotherhood, as it would provide a fund that would enable the organization to fight its future battles and also strengthen it in many ways. He said he did not believe in strikes, and in the 10 years he had been president he had never yet called one. He believed in a settlement if possible and a strike only when absolutely necessary.

Tonight, at the Nautical Gardens, Revere Beach, Boston Union 103 will tender the visiting officers and delegates a ball.

Tomorrow at the convention it is expected that the proposed changes in the laws so as to put telephone operators and other women's locals on an equal footing with men's unions, will be acted on. International Pres. McNulty and other officers urge that step and also the organizing of the operators at every place.

1000 PUPILS SUSPENDED

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 23.—One thousand pupils of three Syracuse High schools were indefinitely suspended late yesterday following a strike yesterday morning as a protest against new hours of study, 9 o'clock in the morning to 2.30 in the afternoon.

The striking pupils, many of whom were girls, escaped through windows and side doors, paraded the business streets and held indignation meetings.

At the technical high school one boy attempted to address a crowd of strikers from the top of a barrel, but was pulled down by the police. The pupils demand a return to the old hours from 8.30 a. m. to 12.30 p. m.

FIRST MARRIAGE STOOD

ROME, Sept. 23.—Prince Joseph Rospigliosi, who died yesterday at Stresa, did not marry religiously Mrs. F. H. Parkhurst of Bangor, Me. (formerly Miss Marie Jennings Reed of New Orleans), according to his brother, Prince Camillo, ex-commander of the Papal guard, who was at his bedside till his death. Prince Camillo issued today an emphatic denial of the published reports, saying that independently of other considerations such a marriage was impossible, as the annulment of Mrs. Parkhurst's marriage to Colonel Parkhurst had never been admitted by the Catholic church.

SLANDER OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—If investigation shows that Perley Horne, superintendent of the Kamehameha school at Honolulu, actually said as alleged that American soldiers in the island contribute to the delinquency to the native girls, Mrs. Russell M. MacLennan, president of the Society for the Protection of the Dignity and Honor of the Uniform of the United States wants the war department to withdraw Lieut. George E. Turner, on duty at the school as military instructor.

Mrs. MacLennan has protested to the war department against what she terms the slander of American soldiers by Supt Horne. She bases her protest on information furnished by Sergeant Disler of the second infantry at Fort Shafter, Hawaii, and says that Hawaiian youth should not receive military instruction if disrespect for women is a distinguishing characteristic of the American soldier.

LEATA J WINNER

California Mare Showed Class at Grand Circuit Meet in Columbus

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—Leata J., a California mare, was second choice to Frank Bogash, Jr., in the Hotel Hartman pacing stake race that held the place of prominence on the program for the opening day of Columbus grand circuit racing, but she won in a five heat struggle, in which the sprinting through the stretch was a feature.

Several times this season these two pacers have met and yesterday's victory is the third for Leata J. In the second heat she did the final quarter in 29½ seconds and completed the next mile with a quarter in 28¾ seconds. Winning this heat gave her an advantage over Frank Bogash, Jr. They did not have rush enough to overtake Del Rey in the fourth heat but were fresher in the fifth, which Leata J. took by a sensational burst of speed. She was credited with pacing the last half in 1.00¾.

Directum I. was a pronounced favorite for the King pacing stake and won without trouble. Though the track was slow, he did the third and final heat in 2.04¾, to keep clear of Walter Cochato and Branham Baughman.

Omar, purchased six weeks ago by Louisville, Ky., horsemen, made his first grand circuit appearance yesterday and disposed of Newzel, the first choice in the 2.11 trot. Newzel won the first two heats, with Omar close up. In the third heat the result was reversed, and Omar did not have much trouble in taking the next two.

Cleo B. was almost overlooked in a field of 13 2.15 pacers, of which Princess Margaret was thought to be the best. The first two miles were won handily by Cleo B. The third heat went to Zanzibar and then the race went over for resumption today.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

The Young Ponies desire to extend to the Midgets a sincere challenge for a game to be contested on Saturday next for a prize of two 25-cent balls. Will the Midgets please get busy and take up a collection for the prize, and accept the challenge.

The Glenmores claim the championship of this city and will defend their title against the Shamrocks for a purse of $20. The manager says "if any other teams think they have a look in, just step this way." Send all replies to Buster Shea, manager, 44 Pine street, or through this column.

The Shamrocks will play the St. Columbas at the Lakeview avenue grounds on Saturday for a purse of $10. Jack Lyons of the Shamrocks, who has been out of the game for a period, will be seen in his old position in right field.

62 MILES IN RAIN

Young Man Arrives in Boston After a Trip of Eleven Hundred Miles

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Drenched to the skin and covered with mud collected from Massachusetts roads, Clarence J. Tinker, divinity student at Cambridge, socialist and vegetarian, wearily pedaled along Tremont street last night on an 11-year-old bicycle, at the end of a journey that began in Michigan, 1100 miles away, 15 days ago.

The last 62 miles of his trip were made through pouring rain over soggy country roads.

Tinker, who is only 24 years old, has crossed the state of Michigan on a wheel many times and once made a 1000-mile excursion into Canada. He left his home in Fenton, Mich., Sept. 8 and when he reached Boston last night had become a confirmed vegetarian on the strength of the five pounds he had gained on a non-meat diet during the last two weeks. His trip cost him just $31.

MILLS SHOULD REWARD MERIT

If the managers of the Lowell mills would arouse the ambition and even the enthusiasm of their employes, there is just one way of doing it and that is to recognize and reward merit.

If they find a man doing good work and know that from his past record in regard to his devotion to the company's interests, his skill in doing his work, his ability to manage and control men, he is competent to be placed at the head of a department, they make a very grave blunder when they overlook such a man in filling any vacancy for which he is eligible. To be ignored in such a case chills his ambition and his enthusiasm. It demonstrates to him that good work is not appreciated by his employers or the officials over him and that it is useless for him to tax his energies unnecessarily in the company's interests. The habit of drawing upon the relatives of prominent officials of a company to fill vacancies and take charge of men who have been in the business for a generation, is one of the worst that could be adopted by the management of any mill. It has done incalculable harm to some mills we could mention here in Lowell. It has caused many of the operatives to drift along without any hope of promotion and to avoid any effort to improve. Next to this in its injurious effects is the action of a boss who when appointed to a position must gather around him a lot of men "from his own home," making places for them by discharging men who are by long odds their superiors.

But for the conviction that it is useless to seek advancement in the mills a far greater number of operatives would have taken up special courses at the Textile evening school. We have recently stated that the state should assume the entire expense of supporting the Textile school and we believe so because the school has not filled the original design of rapidly increasing the skilled help in our mills. How, it may be asked, can the school benefit the operatives who do not attend it? That they do not attend in greater numbers, we believe is due to the feeling that the increased skill attained will not bring any reward in the mills, that the man who has acquired more expert knowledge through study at the Textile school will be allowed to plod along in the same old rut and at the same rate of wages. The operatives who are cut off from all hope of promotion and who have nothing whatever to look forward to except the weekly wage are a very dull and spiritless lot. They have no enthusiasm in their work. They are working in a blind alley or cul de sac, as it were, from which they cannot hope to escape. It is a very short-sighted policy for the management of any mill to place a single operative in any such position. Better have them inspired with the hope of advancement, striving for something that will lift them to a higher position or at least increase their earning power.

It is only by rewarding merit that the mills can increase their skilled help without going outside. Had the local mills pursued this policy in past years, they would not have found it necessary to hire such a large number of the unskilled. It would have been better for them to have trained their own operatives than to have increased the number of hands and reduced alike the standard of skill and the rate of wages.

More than three-fourths of the operatives of every mill in Lowell are capable of great improvement along the lines of their various avocations. Their possibilities are allowed to lie dormant and uncultivated as a result of the failure of the mill men to reward merit by higher wages or promotion.

Where the only incentive is the pay envelope, there is a great loss of energy and of interest that would otherwise be exerted for the company. Until mill men show the operatives that merit will count, that the man who takes up special courses at the Textile school may reasonably expect some reward for his labor, there will be little improvement as a result of self-education after working hours. The mill officials should offer special inducement to operatives to take the evening courses at the Textile school and thus bring out some of their latent ability that otherwise can never be made applicable in actual work.

ABOLISH THE CROSSINGS

When any representative of the Boston and Maine company or any other company makes a statement that the people of Lowell do not want the grade crossing at Middlesex street abolished, he is simply stating an untruth, that is a libel upon Lowell and her people. The business men of Lowell are seriously handicapped by delay at the crossings on Middlesex and Fletcher streets.

Very often when the gates are down, as many as two score of teams and half a dozen automobiles are waiting on either side for an opportunity to pass. If the time of men and horses thus lost were computed for an entire day, it would prove a very considerable factor and would show the absurdity of the statement made that there is no public demand for the abolition of that crossing. There is now and always has been a strong public demand for the removal of the crossing at the depot.

This crossing is also a serious interference with the car service. The car lines that pass the depot can never keep to their time schedule on account of being held up at the crossing. The Highland line has always been a great annoyance because of the delays at the two crossings mentioned. The cars which take the Middlesex street crossing only are not quite so bad but sometimes their delays are also very aggravating. The danger of accidents at these crossings is another factor that should be considered because chauffeurs and the drivers of horse-drawn vehicles have always to exercise the greatest care lest they should be caught on the tracks when the gates go down.

The entire people of Lowell will endorse the action of the municipal council in pushing the matter of removing all the dangerous grade crossings in the city. The two mentioned are the worst and should be the next to be abolished. It is time that the business men of Lowell as well as the pedestrians who have to pass these crossings several times a day, should be protected against the danger and delay to which they are thus daily exposed.

GREATER RECIPROCITY COMING

There is some apprehension lest a trade war should be declared against the United States as a result of the termination of the trade agreements entered into with other countries by Ex-President Taft. To avert any rupture of this kind in our trade relations with other nations congress has decided to enact a provision that the existing trade agreements shall remain in force for four months after the new law takes effect. The natural result of the new tariff should be more favorable to the foreign nations; but the new law has a provision for penalty rates against any nation which discriminates against the United States. Certain amendments to the tariff law would authorize the president to impose higher duties on coffee, tea, fish, chinaware, silks, laces, jewelry, sugar, and many other items coming from countries not treating the United States as a favored nation on tariff duties.

The action proposed will avert the danger of any disturbance of our trade relations with other nations until new and in all probability more reciprocal agreements shall have been arranged under the new law.

The prospect is, that there will be larger measures of reciprocity between this and other countries and that these will redound to the general good of the entire nation.

THE SOVEREIGN PEOPLE

Today the voters have an opportunity to show their judgment in the selection of candidates to represent them in office. Upon the result will depend largely whether we shall have good men or bad, honest and capable or the reverse. The people shoulder a great responsibility in the discharge of their duties as citizens but unfortunately far too few of them realize to what an extent the sovereignty lies in their hands when they go to the polls.

In this country the sovereignty rests with the people and when certain agitators charge that trusts and combines rule the country, they imply that the people do not do their duty. The people have the power if they only exercise it but the great trouble is that they undervalue this power and fail to use it aright. The president of the United States, the senate and house of representatives have certain powers under the constitution but such powers are delegated by the people. The constitution itself, which is framed to protect the rights and liberties of the people, can be overturned, annulled or amended by the sovereign people by following the proper legal course.

When the people go to the polls to cast their ballots for the candidates of their choice and to pass upon the various questions submitted to them, they exercise the portion of the sovereignty vested in their hands. Thus they have the power that in other governments is exercised by kings and emperors. With this fact in mind how can a man be mean enough to sell his vote for beer, for money or any consideration whatsoever. The man who does this does not deserve the right of sovereign citizenship. He should be disfranchised for life.

The British unionists are endeavoring to embroil Ireland in trouble that will cause the laborites to withdraw their support from the liberal party. They think they have succeeded and have already spread the report that there will be a general election before home rule can be granted. The wish is father to the thought. The liberals are not likely to be moved by the threats of the Ulster followers of Sir Edward Carson.

Seen and Heard

A Massachusetts minister was making his first visit to Kentucky several years ago. He had to spend the night in a small mountain town where clouds and moonshine still abounded. Engaging in conversation with one of the natives, he said:

"My friend, this is a very bibulous state, I hear."

"Lord!" replied the man, "there hain't 25 bibles in all Kentucky."—Exchange.

A pair of local lady killers," says "The Man About Town" in the Salem News, "met their match the other evening in Town House square, when they made advances on two of the show girls who were playing in a local theatre, and the result was a scream to the few who happened to be "in" on the incident. The young men in question evidently spotted out the girls as they came along and took them for strangers. In this they were right, of course, but if they thought the girls fell prey to their charming manners (in their own minds), they were evidently mistaken. However, they succeeded in engaging the girls in conversation for a minute or so and then onlookers noticed that the party suddenly broke up, the young men beating a hasty retreat in one direction, while the girls went along about their business and with a smile on their countenances. It seems that no sooner had the youths engaged the girls in conversation than one of the latter innocently inquired where they could find a good eating place—and then the party broke up."

Ex-Senator Obadiah Gardner of Rockland, Me., is responsible for this story:

"I was in a small country store in my native state when an old lady, accompanied by a gawky-looking girl of about 15, came in and asked the proprietor to show her some cheap calico. She pulled one piece one way, then another, wetting it meantime and rubbing it with her fingers to ascertain if the colors were fast. She apparently was unable to satisfy herself regarding it.

"Finally she produced a small pair of scissors and snipped off a tiny piece, which she handed to the young girl.

"'Here, Emma,' she said, 'you chew on that an' see if it fades away.'

"Emma put the sample into her mouth and with the most serious expression imaginable went to work."

THE BEGGAR

He was a weary cripple who stopped
me in the street;
He leaned upon his crutches to rest
his weary feet;
And as I bought his pencils I saw his
thankful smile,
And where the crowd surged past us
I pause a little while.

"And are you never weary," I asked,
"of your fate,
And do you never envy the wealthy
and great?"
"Is life still worth the effort, and can
you gladly, too,
Still thank your God for favors which
He bestows on you?"

He smiled and then he answered:
"There stands in yonder square
A blind man who is begging of people passing there;
He never sees their faces, but there,
day after day,
He bravely stands with outstretched
hands to them that pass that way.

"I see the sky above me; I see the
children run;
I see the world and wonder at things
which men have done,
And when the day is ended there is a
quiet place
Where I can see the gladness in some one's eager face.

"Sometimes I feel the burden and
sometimes I complain,
Then, seeing her who loves me, my
hopes return again."
He hobbled on; I watched him with
painful steps depart;
He took my pennies with him and left
a thankful heart.

THE SLIT SKIRTS

Houston Post: A Houston man just returned from New York says he saw quite a number of slashed skirts on Broadway, but he always turned his head the other way. However, it is not likely that this form of lying will become prevalent in Houston, and we still hope to maintain the old town's prestige as the Citadel of Truth.

GAZING AT THAW

Brockton Times: In court at Littleton, with Thaw seated at the counsel table, one girl, who is described as having blue eyes and pink cheeks, stood on tiptoe for five full minutes and gazed enraptured at the back of Thaw's head. She is no doubt treading a golden cloud of romance so high that she can't get back to dishwater and duty for fully a week.

DIDN'T FILE RETURNS

Manchester Union: One hundred and sixty-seven corporations have been restrained by the supreme court of Massachusetts from doing a business until they comply with the statutes requiring the filing of returns. Corporations, in common with individuals, should always conduct themselves with strict regard for the statutes.

LAW WILL BE REVISED

Lawrence Eagle: J. P. S. Mahoney, who was chairman of the protest meeting at city hall Friday evening expressed the case in a nut shell when he stated that the new child labor law would never have been passed had it been given sufficient notoriety. "Instead of waiting for the recess committee to investigate conditions in the cities they passed the law first and then sent the committee out to investigate," he said.

The law, however, has been passed and is being enforced. Under the conditions the only course to pursue is that adopted by Lawrence and Lowell in protesting against it and insisting that the law be revised by the next legislature. The candidates for representative in nearly all the textile cities of the state understand the situation pretty clearly and it is safe to say that there will be little delay in taking action after the session opens.

HALF FARE TO STAND

Worcester Post: A certain German street car line operating between cities in Rhenish Prussia charges only about half the regular passenger rates to those who stand. The fare from Elberfeld to Werden, a distance of about 10 miles, is 30 cents for those having seats and 17 cents for those standing. The round rate costs 50 cents if the passenger has a seat, while those who remain standing pay only 25 cents. The trip from Elberfeld to Werden takes one hour and 50 minutes.

FOREST NOTES

Washington stands first in lumber production, with Louisiana second.

It is said that 90,000,000 broom handles are used annually in the United States, one for each man, woman and child.

The lands burned over during the terrible fires on the Idaho national forests in 1910 are now largely covered with a thick growth of young tree seedlings, by natural reseeding.

Manufacturers of artificial limbs are seeking substitutes for English willow, used because of its combined lightness and strength. It is claimed that the Port Orford cedar of the Pacific coast will prove equally serviceable.

In the open yellow pine forests of Washington and Oregon a collapsible plow is being used in digging fire lines to stop surface fires. The plow can be dismantled and folded into a compact form, so that it can be packed on horseback, and weighs only 40 pounds. When in use, one man with a horse can do the work of 20 or more men working with shovels.

LOWELL MAN ARRESTED

CHARGED WITH BREAKING AND ENTERING HOUSE AT SALISBURY —HE PLEADED GUILTY

AMESBURY, Sept. 23.—Adolphus Trombley, claiming Lowell as his home, was held in $500 in the district court yesterday on a complaint charging breaking and entering. Philip Helfrich, a hotel proprietor at Salisbury beach, upon returning Saturday evening to a cottage rented by him since the fire, found a window broken and the gas meter robbed. Trombley was found concealed beneath a bed, it was claimed. He pleaded guilty.

TWO PRISONERS ESCAPED

CAMBRIDGE, Sept. 23.—Two prisoners escaped from the detention room at the East Cambridge court house yesterday by wrenching loose the iron grating over one of the windows. The fugitives, Michael Murphy and Alexander D. Morrison, had just been sentenced to short terms at the state farm for minor offences. Three other prisoners refused to take advantage of the chance to escape and reported the matter to the sheriff.

DAMAGE BY RAIN

Manchester Visited by Worst Storm in History—Cellars Flooded

MANCHESTER, N. H., Sept. 23.—With a rainfall yesterday of two inches between 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. Manchester experienced one of the fiercest rainstorms in its history. The basements of both business houses and dwelling houses were flooded because of the inability of the sewers to carry off the vast volume of water. Much damage was done in West Manchester by flooded cellars and washouts in the roadbeds.

Nearly all of the hill streets, Amory, Putnam, Schuyler and Sullivan streets, are washed out to a great extent and large piles of sand and even big rocks are lying about on North Main street, at the foot of the respective hills. At Wayne and North Main, the crossing was covered with crushed stones torn from the Wayne street roadbed. The same is true at Sullivan and North Main. On this hill, large cobble stones have been rent from the gutters and rolled down to North Main street, where they lay on the street car tracks until removed by a gang of men in the employ of the city and street carmen.

Cellars from Putnam street to Amory on North Main are flooded on account of the small capacity of the sewers on this street. At one time during the shower, Doucet's drug store, Wayne and North Main, was flooded with 10 inches of water, and bottles, boxes and other material stores in the cellar were knocked from their places.

St. Andrew's church rectory, at North Main and Conant streets, had 2½ feet of water in the cellar. Two new sewers at North Main and Conant, back streets, which were completed Saturday, were severely damaged. The water loosened some of the fresh cement work and the sewers will have to be rebuilt.

The Corporation back street, located across from the Fire King engine house on North Main street, was torn up more than any other street in the vicinity. A hole large enough to engulf a horse was gullied out, and to prevent accidents, the corporation officials ordered that the street be closed to travel. The "Flats" in McGregorville resembled a huge lake when the heavy rain had ceased and not a few houses in the "Flats" were flooded with several feet of water. The water in some of the houses was deep enough to drown a person of moderate height, if the person was standing.

Lake Massabesic showed a gain of two inches and is reported rising, as are the Piscataquog and Merrimac rivers.

TO PREVENT TRADE WAR

PRESIDENT WILSON TO NEGOTIATE NEW TRADE AGREEMENTS WITH ALL FOREIGN COUNTRIES

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Apprehension lest the democratic tariff bill lead foreign nations to impose tariff penalties against the United States as soon as the new law goes into effect caused administration and senate leaders yesterday to plan the introduction of a joint resolution in congress making specific provision for the continuation of existing relations with all countries until President Wilson has time to negotiate new trade agreements.

The seriousness of the situation that will confront the administration was impressed upon Chairman Simmons of the senate finance committee yesterday by state department officials.

It was pointed out that the trade relations established by President Taft's proclamations under the Payne-Aldrich law of 1909 would terminate as soon as the new law became effective and that the United States then would face the possibility of having higher tariff rates applied against its exports by many countries.

While the tariff law would give the president authority to negotiate trade and reciprocity treaties, it would also require him to apply special penalty rates against any countries discriminating against the United States.

To prevent the possibility of trade war the state department is now drafting a joint resolution which will provide that existing relations shall continue for four months.

VOTING AT BILLERICA

INTEREST SHOWN BY BOTH REPUBLICAN AND DEMOCRATIC PARTIES

The polls at both precincts 1 and 2 at Billerica opened at 2 o'clock this afternoon and will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight. The voting early this afternoon was not very heavy but a large vote is expected this evening after the closing of the mills. Considerable interest is shown by both the democrat and republican parties. The town democrats will turn out in large numbers for the Billerica candidate for representative as they feel that they have not been used right by the democrats of ward nine of this city who also have a candidate in the field this year. Everett S. Benton, republican candidate for governor visited the town during the past week and has made many friends among the republicans there and it is believed that he will receive a much greater number of votes than his opponent for the republican nomination.

Dr. George T. O'Donnell, who has been one of the prominent medical doctors in North Billerica for several years is soon to remove to Waltham.

DIDN'T KILL GIRL

Man Who Confessed to Murder Now Makes a General Denial

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 23.—Repudiating his statements made to the police Sunday and yesterday, Jacob Wolfsohn yesterday afternoon denied that he was guilty of the murder of Anna Catherine Schumacher in the cemetery at Rochester, N. Y., four years ago. When closely questioned by Dist.-Atty. Barrett of Rochester yesterday afternoon, Wolfsohn declared that he had confessed to the murder because he wanted to die and could not bring himself to commit suicide.

"I want to take back my confession. It is not true that I killed the girl and I can prove my innocence," he exclaimed hysterically. "You can hang me or do whatever you want, but I do not want to die with the record of a murderer.

"My life has been an unhappy one," continued Wolfsohn. "I cannot return to Russia because I left there to escape military service. My wife divorced me here. I hoped to end my troubles by being electrocuted."

District Attorney Barrett before leaving last night for Rochester said he would make further investigations before determining whether or not he would ask for requisition for Wolfsohn.

"I am not yet satisfied that he is the murderer," said the district attorney.

Mr. Barrett will endeavor to find Wolfsohn's former wife in New York city to learn whether he had ever made a confession of the crime to her.

Wolfsohn will be given a hearing here Wednesday on the larceny charge for which he was in custody when he made his first confession late Saturday night.

GLYNN GOVERNOR OF N.Y.

Sulzer's Counsel Announces That Impeached Official Will Give Up Office Pending Trial

ALBANY, N Y., Sept. 23.—When the high court for the trial by impeachment of Governor Sulzer was called to order today his attorneys were prepared to exhaust the last of their legal ammunition to prevent the story of his alleged misuse of campaign contributions from being told on the witness stand.

Defeated yesterday by a vote of 51 to 1 on the motion for dismissal of the impeachment on the ground of its unconstitutionality, the governor's counsel expected today to offer a motion to strike out the three articles of the impeachment charging him with filing a false statement of campaign contributions and with the use of funds for speculation in Wall street.

The motion was to be presented by D. Cady Herrick, who was prepared to argue that the alleged offenses were not impeachable on the ground they were committed before the governor was sworn into office.

Former Senator Edgar Brackett was appointed to reply in behalf of the assembly managers. His brief, which has already been made public, holds in substance that the acts of a candidate for political office during a campaign and after he has become an officer-elect are so intimately connected with the actual holding of the office as to be inseparable.

Practically the entire day it was believed would be consumed in argument but it was hoped that the decision of the court in the matter would be reached before adjournment. Whether affirmative or negative, the decision should clear the decks for beginning the actual trial of the case tomorrow unless something unforeseen arises.

In the affirmative there will still be five articles of impeachment to which Mr. Sulzer will have to answer before the bar of the high court, as there has been no hint from counsel that the impeachability of the latter charges would be attacked. Conviction on any one article might result in removal.

E. L. Richards, of counsel for the managers, has been selected to make the opening address outlining the evidence to be presented. The taking of testimony will follow immediately.

The court being formally opened presiding Judge Cullen said:

"The court having overruled the motion of the respondent to dismiss the articles of impeachment on the ground that the assembly had no right to prefer the charges at an extraordinary session it now becomes incumbent upon the respondent to make answer to the charges."

Sulzer Renounces Claims.

Judge Herrick, chief counsel for Governor Sulzer then took the floor and announced that in view of the fact that the court had refused to dismiss the proceedings he would state that the governor would renounce his claim to the right to exercise the functions of governor pending the termination of the trial.

"When these articles of impeachment were first presented," said Judge Herrick, the governor was advised that there was doubt about the legality of the proceedngs and for that reason he declined to step down from his office. Ever since the recent decision of Supreme Court Justice Hasbrock ruling that he had not the right to pardon a prisoner he has ceased to exercise any of the functions of his office. Governor Sulzer will perform no functions of governor in the future pending the termination of this trial."

A few minutes after the court convened Judge Herrick began the reading of his brief. He took the grounds that the acts alleged in the first, second and sixth counts of the impeachment antedated Mr. Sulzer's assumption of the governorship and he asked that they be dismissed. Judge Vann of Gov. Sulzer's counsel being absent on account of sickness, his brief was read by Senator Hinman.

The brief, which touched upon the absence of constitutional definition of impeachable offenses discussed the power of the legislature to pass an act of limitation applying to both civil and criminal actions based on the lapse of time. Such an act, many of which have been passed, Judge Vann held, would be binding upon all courts, including the court of impeachment. Conceding the power of the legislature to limit the action of the court in convicting and removing from office, the brief declared that such limitation must be according to the rules of reason.

SULZER AGAIN DEFEATED—HIGH COURT OF IMPEACHMENT OVERRULED HIS MOTION

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 23.—Gov. William Sulzer must go to trial. This was decided by the high court of impeachment last night, when, by a vote of 51 to 1, its members overruled the motion of the governor's counsel to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that he was unconstitutionally impeached by the assembly, because that body was in extra session when the impeachment was brought.

Senator Gottfried H. Wende of Buffalo, democrat, an ardent supporter of the governor, cast the solitary nay. Four senators and Judge Gray were absent.

RETURNED TO WORK

MORE BOSTON SHOP OWNERS MET DEMANDS OF CLOAK AND SKIRT MAKERS

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A dozen additional small shops settled with Cloak and Skirt Makers' union yesterday and their hands returned to work. During the day all the shops where strikes had been called were picketed. At only one place was an effort made to open up with non-union help.

Many West End employers asked for police protection yesterday. There was no excitement in that vicinity, however. In the Kneeland-Washington streets district E. B. Hollander, a striker, but not a picket, was hurt. He claims that he was assaulted with a club by a non-striking employe of a shop in that section.

At the meeting of the strikers yesterday afternoon and of the entire membership of the union last night, it was voted that every boss affected by the strike be compelled to sign a new agreement to continue until September of next year, and to give a bond that he will live up to it.

The agreement is composed of 18 articles, in the main identical with those in the agreement made last March.

About 20 of the girl strikers voted last night that they would not return to work at their shops until the end of the week, although their bosses were willing to settle.

TALKS CURRENCY

Samuel Untermyer Continues His Discussion of the Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22.—With prospects of extended discussion on the administration currency bill the senate banking committee today continued to hear Samuel Untermyer discuss the measure. Senators were of the opinion that a month will pass before the bill will be brought into the senate.

Mr. Untermyer, while endorsing the general principles of the bill, suggested a number of amendments which he thought would strengthen it.

Many of these evoked lengthy discussions between Mr. Untermyer and members of the committee.

DYNAMITE LOST

Found on the Acton Tracks in Nashua Yesterday

A quantity of dynamite was found laying on the Acton tracks in Nashua by one John Jones. The latter turned the explosive over to James Slancombe, who in turn, having a knowledge of its powers, turned it over to police headquarters, where it was locked up in cell No. 1, pending an investigation. It is believed that the explosive was carelessly left there by some workmen doing blasting. Later the can containing the dynamite was removed to the powder house of Gen. Charles W. Stevens at his ledge, where it will be held as evidence. Everyone who handled the stuff picked his steps with extreme care, perhaps with a mental vision of himself being blown up into the clouds, the pieces gathered up in baskets on his return to earth and a nice funeral procession later.

INJURIES WERE FATAL

MAN STRUCK BY BELT AT WATERHEAD MILL DIED LAST NIGHT AT LOWELL HOSPITAL

Will Zuzlewski, aged 23 years, who was injured by a flying belt at the Waterhead mill Saturday forenoon, died last night at the Lowell hospital, where he was removed shortly after the accident.

An autopsy was performed later by Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. T. B. Smith, who found that death was caused as a result of a hemorrhage from laceration of the liver. The body was today removed to the home of deceased, 12 Bent's court.

OLDEST CONVICT PARDONED

John Tabon Has Been in Ohio Prison 43 Years—Once Refused Conditional Freedom

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 23.—After spending practically all of his life since he attained to manhood, inside the penitentiary walls, John Tabon, the oldest convict in the Ohio penitentiary, was pardoned yesterday by Gov. Cox. Tabon has been a prisoner for 43 years.

He was convicted of murder in Delaware county in 1870 and sentenced to life imprisonment. He is now 65. During the administration of Gov. Andrew L. Harris, a pardon was offered to Tarbon upon the conditions that he become an inmate of the state soldiers' home at Sandusky.

He refused the pardon at that time, declaring that he "would as soon be in one prison as another."

FLIGHT OF 600 MILES

ST. RAPHAEL, France, Sept. 23.—A flight across the Mediterranean from the French coast to Tunis was started at 6.08 a. m. this morning by Roland Garos. The distance in a direct line is between 550 and 600 miles. Garos has a world-wide reputation as an aviator, having won some of the famous long distance races in Europe, taken part in flying meets in many countries and made several altitude records.

TOOK WRONG BOX

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—A man walked up to a red box on a pole at 137th street and Brook avenue, the Bronx, yesterday afternoon with a letter in his hand. He opened the box, found no place for his letter and fooled around with the mechanism for a minute before he shut the box and went away.

Three minutes and thirteen seconds later three battalion chiefs, two engine companies and two hook and ladder companies pulled up in front of the box, looking for a fire.

A man who had seen the foreigner with the letter broke the news to the firemen gently. When they recovered they also went away.

EX-FIRE CHIEF LESHURE DEAD

SPRINGFIELD, Sept. 23.—Abner P. Leshire, aged 84, inspector of buildings, for many years chief of the Springfield fire department and one of the best-known veteran firemen in the East, died yesterday of pneumonia at 1516 North street.

Ex Chief Leshure was born in Woodstock, Conn., son of John Leshure, a farmer. He removed with his parents when 4 years old to Putnam, Conn., and from there to Southbridge. Young Leshure began his business career by driving a stage coach.

BIG FIRE AT EAST BERKSHIRE

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Sept. 23.—The village hotel, general store and postoffice, a residence and several barns and sheds were destroyed by fire of unknown origin at East Berkshire, a village 25 miles east of here today. Dynamite was used to check the spread of the flames. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

4 COWBOYS HERE

Making a Trip to Every State Capital—20,000 Mile Tour

Four real "men of the far northwest" are in Lowell today, having decided upon this city as one of the stopping places in the most remarkable horseback journey ever undertaken. The cowboys, for such they have been, are J. B. Ransom, R. G. Rayne, G. W. Beck and C. C. Beck, and all four originally hailed from Seattle, Washington. They are known as the "Overland Westerners."

The trip which these four men are making is to be no less than 20,000 miles in length, and they will visit the principal cities in every state in the Union. The object of the long journey is this: they have with them a horse of Arabian blood, which they call Pinto, and which is a very remarkable animal. If this horse survives the long ordeal with the changes in climate, food, water and stable accommodations, the Western Stockmen's organization will hand the four travelers a check for $20,000, and they will have made the trip at a rate of $1 per mile.

The party left Olympia, Washington, on the first day of May, in the year 1912, and on June 1, 1915, if their plans carry, they will arrive in San Francisco, Cal., where the horse, Pinto, will be placed on exhibition during the big exposition. Of course, it will be a big thing for the stockmen if the horse makes the trip without accident. The four cowboys have already lost six horses through injury, lack of endurance, but Pinto has gained 60 pounds weight since starting and seems even more rugged and healthy than ever. It is a beautiful animal, and on the right side of its neck, there is a white spot which bears a remarkable resemblance to a galloping buffalo, a sort of natural brand.

The four men have with them a black dog of considerable value, which answers to the name of "Nip." "Nip" is very wise canine and an excellent watch dog, and he has made the long journey thus far with apparent enjoyment. He is very friendly unless someone attempts to molest the property of his masters, and then things happen. He will do just as he is told and when commanded by one of the men will remain beside the saddles and pack for hours, in an attitude that in itself is a menace to one who would attempt to touch the property.

Naturally, the men have had many strange and interesting experiences on their long horseback ride. They crossed the Cascade Mountains at an altitude of 5000 feet and through 30 miles of deep snow, high cliffs, over a trail filled with lurking dangers. In fording a river in Montana that is noted for the number and force of its whirlpools, they also took a great risk, the bridges over the stream having been destroyed.

They have ridden for several days in the pouring rain and will start on their journey again tomorrow. They will go as far as Augusta, Me., and will make that their turning point, returning from there southward. They have been through 25 states thus far, mostly in the northern portion of the country, and on the return will keep well to the south and middle parts. They have arranged their route so as to travel in the northern states in summer and in the southern states during the winter. They are a very friendly and attractive set of young men and made a decided hit with those whom they met. They have a wide knowledge of the conditions throughout the country and never lose an opportunity of adding to it.

THEFTS FROM THE MAILS

NIGHT WATCHMAN AT HAVERHILL POSTOFFICE AND R. R. MAIL CLERK AT MILLBURY SENTENCED

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Horace George, night watchman at the Haverhill post office and Arthur S. Crosby of Milbury, a railroad mail clerk, were sentenced today to 15 months' imprisonment for thefts from the mails. George was sent to the house of correction at Lawrence and Crosby to the Franklin county jail at Greenfield.

MAY BE RUNAWAY GIRL

MARSHAL OF NASHUA POLICE THINKS GIRL HELD FOR THEFT IS CONCORD ELOPER

Marshal Healey of Nashua is at present wondering whether or not the Pearl Lygne who is at present serving a sentence at Grassmere for theft, is really Ethel Curtis, a Concord runaway. The Curtis girl eloped with Ray Locke, a married man, who took her to the south. There he was arrested and convicted of a violation of the white slave law and is now serving a term in the federal prison.

Miss Lygne was at first placed on probation, and later released and sent to Grassmere. She bears a striking resemblance to a photograph of a Concord girl, and the authorities of the capital city will investigate the matter.

If you are a doctor, doesn't it pain you to see your patients, after walking up two or three flights, come into your office completely exhausted? Wouldn't it be better to provide an office in a building where your patients would be carried right up to your office door in an easy running and absolutely safe elevator? The new Sun building provides such a service. Think it over, doctor!

CITY COUNCIL ELECTS A PLANNING BOARD

Consisting of Five Members—Council Votes $12,000 for Smallpox and Other Contagious Diseases

CITY PLANNING COMMISSION

Charles E. Anderson.....For Five Years
John H. Murphy.....For Four Years
Joseph A. Legare.....For Three Years
George P. Green.....For Two Years
John C. Wilson.....For One Year

The municipal council at a meeting held today elected a city plans commission consisting of five members, as follows: Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the Trades and Labor council, five year member; John H. Murphy, secretary of the Lowell board of trade, for four years; former Postmaster Joseph A. Legare, three years; George P. Green, two years, and John C. Wilson, one year. The election of a city plans commission or city planning board, is mandatory and is provided for in chapter 494 of the acts and resolves for 1913. The board will be a very important one as the scope of its observations and duties is unusually wide. The board's mission is to assist in the development of the city and to pay particular attention to the housing question, one of the most important problems of the day, especially in manufacturing cities.

Other business transacted by the council included the adoption of a loan order for $12,000 for expenses connected with contagious diseases, of which smallpox is the big item.

Jurors were drawn to serve in the superior court in this city and to report on the first Monday in October. The matter of a site for a contagious hospital was touched upon, but nothing definite was arrived at. The action of the city solicitor in bringing the question of the abolition of the grade crossings in Middlesex street, Western avenue and Fletcher street before the court was sanctioned by the council and numerous minor matters were acted upon.

The first business before the council was the drawing of six traverse jurors to serve in this city, superior court, first Monday in October. The following jurors were drawn by Com. Cummings:

Jeoffrey Cossette, 40 Sparks street, printer.

John H. McCaffrey, 186 Pleasant street, carpet weaver.

William E. K. Thissell, 47 Methuen street, clerk.

John Dwyer, 12 Oak street, painter.

Willis J. Peltier, 502 Moody street, jeweler.

Stephen J. Doyle, 23 Philips street, barber.

Bad Sidewalk Work

Some time ago Henry J. O'Dowd addressed a communication to the council protesting against the way in which sidewalk work was being done in Gorham street at the court house. He declared that the specifications were not being lived up to. The work was done by the Cresolith Co.

Mr. O'Dowd was on hand today to back up the charges contained in his letter, the council having voted to give him a hearing today. "If the contractor was living up to the specifications," said Mr. O'Dowd, "he must have had one set of specifications and I another."

"There was but one set of specifications, Mr. O'Dowd," said Com. Donnelly.

"Mr. O'Dowd then read from the specifications given him before bids on the job were opened. He claimed the contractor did not go the required depth, 18 inches, and used gravel instead of crushed stone.

"If you doubt my word, examine the work," said Mr. O'Dowd, who is treasurer of the Neolithic Sanitary Flooring Co.

"Mr. Connor told me," said Mr. O'Dowd, "that I was sore because I didn't get the job and I told him that was absolutely false. Mr. Connor is a member of the Cresolith Co."

William Patenaude, said Mr. O'Dowd, had called his attention to the sidewalk. "I know what crushed stone is," he said, "and I didn't see any crushed stone."

Rosario Lussier said he had looked the job over on a certain day and there was no crushed stone. "I went up a second day," he said, "and found them using gravel instead of crushed stone. When they saw me coming they stopped the mixers and started on other work. I stayed around for some time and they resumed the gravel mixing work. There wasn't any crushed stone in sight. The job was not done according to specifications."

The Cresolith Co. was not represented at the hearing and no defence of its position was offered. After the petitioners were heard, Com. Donnelly moved, and it was so voted, that the matter be referred to the city solicitor, the city engineer and commissioner of streets and highways.

$12,000 for Contagious Diseases

Mayor O'Donnell presented an order asking for $12,000 to defray the expenses connected with contagious diseases during the year; $9000 for smallpox and $3000 for other contagious diseases.

Commissioner Brown wanted to know if the matter couldn't go over for a month or so, and the mayor said that this was more or less of an emergency case.

The mayor explained that a number of bills were due at the present time and these bills, he said, should be paid.

Agent Bates of the board of health was present at the meeting and showed where the expense of contagious diseases, exclusive of smallpox, had increased 100 per cent. for the first eight months of this year as compared with the first eight months of last year. The expense for the first eight

Two Workmen in Boston Had Narrow Escape During Storm

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Two workmen narrowly escaped serious injury and half a dozen others were forced to flee for their lives when a great oak directly in front of the new bird cage in Franklin park fell during the wind storm yesterday afternoon.

Thos. Conley of Roxbury and Jos. Charamonte of Endicott were at work in front of the bird cage during the height of the storm. Suddenly a crackling sound was heard and Conley, glancing up, saw the oak toppling. With a shout he ran to a place of safety, but Charamonte was struggling to get clear of the muddy earth. Conley, seeing his danger, ran back and dragged Charamonte out of the mire in the nick of time. A second or two later the tree fell over the place where they had stood.

The farspreading branches reached to the steps of the cage.

A short time after this accident a giant macaw was delivered to the officials of the zoo by an expressman. When he was asked who gave the bird he replied laconically, "Mayor Fitz." The mayor could not be reached last evening to verify the statement. The macaw is a species of parrot of unusually large size, with a brilliant plumage.

Curator Benson of the zoo is in New York to receive a large shipment of birds from Asia and Africa. It is expected the bird building will be open to the public by Oct. 1.

MAN SUED FOR $75,000

BOND OF $25,000 WILL BE FURNISHED FOR GEO. H. CALDWELL'S RELEASE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—A bond for $25,000 will be furnished by George H. Caldwell, aged 70 years, in the suit brought against him in superior court by Helen M. Mason, aged 19, for $75,000 damages for an alleged breach of promise to marry her.

When the bond is filed, the injunction issued a few weeks ago restraining him withdrawing his securities from a safe deposit vault and funds from a trust company, will be dissolved.

Judge Jenney, in the equity session of superior court yesterday, made the decree relative to a bond for $25,000 on motion of the defendant. The securities that were subject of an injunction consisted of United Shoe Machinery and Boston Insurance company stock.

Hornblower & Weeks, named as a defendant having funds belonging to Caldwell which the plaintiff sought to reach, have filed an answer stating that they held no funds of Caldwell at the time service was made on them. The Shoe Machinery company answers that Caldwell holds none of its stock in his own name and asks the plaintiff to prove that he has any in the name of others.

MGR. M'QUAID BURIED

THOUSANDS AT FUNERAL OF BOSTON PASTOR—MGR. O'BRIEN OF LOWELL ATTENDED SERVICES

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—While the funeral services for Mgr. William P. McQuaid, for more than a quarter of a century pastor at St. James' church, Harrison avenue, were taking place within the edifice thousands of past and present parishioners stood reverently in the rain outside, the accommodations within the church being altogether inadequate for all who would pay their final tribute.

Cardinal O'Connell presided. Mgr. Denis J. O'Farrell of Roxbury was celebrant of the solemn requiem high mass. Rev. John J. Fitzgerald and Rev. Robert E. Lee, both attached to St. James' church, were deacon and subdeacon respectively, while Mgr. Splaine of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross was master of ceremonies.

Rev. M. J. O'Connor of St. Francis de Sales' church, Roxbury, was thurifer, and Rev. Michael Derby of Dorchester and Rev. Michael J. Murphy, chaplain of the state prison, were acolytes.

The sanctuary was heavily draped in black and the casket rested on a catafalque just outside the sanctuary rail, the body being vested in the robes of a monsignor. Cardinal O'Connell was attended by Mgr. P. J. Supple of Roxbury and Mgr. Peter Ronan of Dorchester as chaplains. Bishop Nilan of Hartford was seated in the sanctuary where a special throne had been erected for him. The monsignori present included Rev. Rev. George A. Patterson of South Boston, Rev. Ambrose F. Roche of Watertown, Rev. John O'Brien of East Cambridge, Rev. Arthur J. Teeling of Lynn, Rev. Edward J. Moriarty of Jamaica Plain and Rev. William O'Brien of Lowell.

Many clergymen, cit yand state officials and business men also attended the services.

BARDO MUST RETIRE

Then Brotherhood of Engineers Might Accept New Haven Road's new Rules, It Is Said

NEW HAVEN, Sept. 23.—The latest stage of the negotiations between the adjustment committee of the Brotherhood of Engineers and the officials of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company over changes in the rules governing the promotion of firemen to be engineers and of advancement of engineers to selected runs is said to be a willingness of the engineers to accept the new rules, if Gen. Mgr. C. L. Bardo retires.

The matter of the rules, with the suggestion of the engineers, is now before Vice President Hustis. The new rules, to which the engineers object, were made effective by General Manager Bardo Sept. 14.

The New Haven road issued a statement last night saying that neither Mr. Bardo nor Vice President Whaley, in charge of the operation of the road, was contemplating resigning his position.

MARKET FIRM IN TONE

READING TAKES A JUMP—UNION PACIFIC SHOWED STRENGTH IN AFTERNOON

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The copper group showed renewed heaviness in the first dealings today but otherwise the market displayed a fairly firm tone. Speculative operations were again centered in Reading which was bid up 3-4 to a new high price for the year. The list as a whole showed no inclination to follow the leadership of Reading and in a great majority of cases prices barely moved. The sluggishness of the market discouraged traders and after the first few minutes business fell off to a low point. A few stocks broke away from the dead level. Canadian Pacific rose two points, Pittsburgh Coal pfd. 1 1-4 and Rock Island pfd. 1, the latter issue quickly losing its gain. Western Maryland and Goodrich pfd. lost a point.

The series of narrow fluctuations in stocks during the morning gave the market no persistent selling and afforded little opportunity for trading for either bulls or bears. Movements were governed largely by the action of Reading and U. P. Reading for a time ruled a point over yesterday's close and U. P. as much below. Reiteration of bullish rumors concerning special issues had a temporary bearing on general speculation but lost their potency when the supply of stocks became too large. Further buying was restrained by indications that higher prices were being utilized to distribute stocks.

Better support was offered for a short time in the afternoon session, although bears paid some attention to certain railroads and specialties which have no large outside following. Union Pacific gathered strength slowly after the meeting of the executive committee of the road began. Shorts became nervous over the possibility of action by the committee concerning disposition of the proceeds of the Southern Pacific sale and covering operations put up the price 1 1-2 above the morning's lowest. The advantage was not retained after it became known that the committee would take no action today. Reading made a brief spurt upward, but the general demand soon flattened out and the market became heavier.

The market in Wall street closed quiet. More weakness was shown in many quarters with the Coalers sagging sharply. Reading sold two points below its best.

Boston Market

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—There was moderate trading during the early hours of the local market today. Values held steady, but at noon there was a fractional reaction. Boston & Maine gained two points to 63 in the general list.

Man Who Ran Engine Fined in Police Court Today—Shiftless Husband Lectured by Court

Fred R. Davis, of Waltham, was arraigned before Judge Enright in police court this morning for violating the state law by running a steam engine without a license. Through his attorney he stated that he was operating an engine at the plant of the Lowell Gas company under the direction of his employers, Davis & Farnham, also of Waltham, when he was stopped by Mr. Harry E. Morton, state inspector of boilers. At the time that the state inspector put in an appearance he had been engaged in these duties but 42 hours. The defendant was a man of 50 years, who had never been in court before and was operating the engine at the request of his employers. He was given the minimum fine of $10, the amount to be paid within 30 days.

"Any man who can not earn $5 a week toward the support of his family should be in the house of correction," said Judge Enright to James P. McDonald, who was arrested on a capias for non-support. The defendant stated that his funds were tied up in his business at the present time and that is the reason he has failed to make his weekly payments to Probation Officer Slattery.

Mrs. McDonald was called to the stand and testified that she was the mother of six children and during the past six years has received very little toward their support except what was earned by one of her daughters. Mr. McDonald promised to pay $10 to his wife by Saturday night and the case was continued until Monday.

Philomiene Gagnon was arrested by Sergt. Petrie for drunkenness and pleaded guilty to that charge in police court this morning. She did not appear in the best of health and she promised to go home to her mother if released. The case was continued for two months.

Patrick McCarthy made his fourth appearance during the past year, charged with drunkenness. According to his story he has been living with his mother in Wilton, N. H., for some time and has been sending money to his wife in this city to support his children. He stated that the New Hampshire town was "dry" and promised that if allowed to return there he would go to work and continue supporting his family in this city. He was given a suspended sentence of five months in jail.

William Gillis, who yesterday appealed when a sentence of four months in jail was imposed upon him, withdrew his appeal this morning and was sent to the Lowell jail for the above term.

James P. Corcoran, a second offender, told the court that if released he would go to work and he was fined $6 and given three weeks to pay it in.

NASHUA CLERKS

Coming to Lowell to be Guests of Local Clerks Thursday Afternoon

Several employes of the department stores of Nashua, N. H., are scheduled to come to Lowell Thursday afternoon, where they will be the guests of the employes of the A. G. Pollard Co.

The visitors who will number over 50, will be entertained in the afternoon and evening. Upon their arrival in the Spindle city they will be taken on a tour of inspection around the principal districts of the city.

In the evening they will be tendered a reception and will also be entertained at dinner. A couple of weeks ago the Lowell clerks were entertained in Nashua, and it is now up to them to do the honors.

SAY SCHMIDT IS SHAMMING

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—Hans Schmidt, the confessed slayer of Anna Aumuller, was visited in the Tombs today by three physicians. They were Dr. Michael Eriwein, a member of St. Joseph's church, Dr. John Brandt, and Dr. Charles Horn. All expressed the opinion that Schmidt is shamming insanity.

AMERICAN REFUGEES ARRIVE

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 23.—Twenty-five American refugees from the state of Durango arrived here today having traveled overland to Zacatecas where they boarded a train for the capital. Out of the normal American population in Durango of 3,000 less than 25, all men, remain there.

200 KILLED IN FIERCE BATTLE

VIENNA, Sept. 23.—In a fierce battle today between Servian troops and Albanians on the Albanian frontier, 200 Albanians were killed according to a despatch to the Neue Frei Presse. The fighting is reported to have occurred at a place between Dibra and Jakova, where many of the battles between the Servians and the Turks were fought in the recent Balkan war.

The encounter was brought about by an attempt of several thousand Albanians to penetrate the territory captured by the Servians from the Turks. They were repulsed.

The Servian troops lost one captain and a considerable number of men. They have since been reinforced.

Taken From Summer Home at Swampscott; No Clue to the Identity of the Thieves

SWAMPSCOTT, Sept. 23.—The theft of jewelry valued at $1300 was reported to the police today by William Evarts, a Boston man who occupies a summer home in Orient st. here. The robbery was discovered late last night when Mr and Mrs. Evarts returned from Boston. Entrance was gained by climbing a porch to a bedroom window. Only one room was ransacked and the thieves overlooked a lot of valuable jewels in another part of the house.

DELAY CURRENCY BILL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—An attempt to hurry along consideration of the currency bill in the senate banking and currency committee failed last night at the end of desultory questioning of Samuel Untermyer, who was counsel for the Pujo money trust committee of the last congress. Senator Shafroth of Colorado tried vainly to secure an agreement to close the hearings before the committee on Saturday, October 4. No other member of the committee supported his suggestion.

CHILDREN HATE OIL, CALOMEL AND PILLS

"California Syrup of Figs" Best For Tender Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

Look back at your childhood days. Remember the "dose" mother insisted on—caster oil, calomel, cathartics. How you hated them, how you fought against taking them.

With our children it's different. Mothers who cling to the old form of physic simply don't realize what they do. The children's revolt is well-founded. Their tender little "insides" are injured by them.

If your child's stomach, liver and bowels need cleansing, give only delicious "California Syrup of Figs." Its action is positive, but gentle. Millions of mothers keep this harmless "fruit laxative" handy; they know children love to take it; that it never fails to clean the liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach, and that a teaspoonful given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. See that it is made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE

When the all star combination composed of Gertrude Hoffmann, Polaire and Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson comes to the Lowell Opera House patrons of that theatre will catch their first glimpse of three of the greater stars of the present day, widely differing in type, varying remarkably in temperament and closely allied in accomplishments.

Gertrude Hoffmann, who has introduced many startling novelties is probably the most versatile, daring and artistic stage worker before the public. Miss Hoffmann will appear in a new revue in twelve scenes with a company of forty people. For her present tour she had arranged among other features "The Dance of the Mermaid." This novelty is Miss Hoffmann's own invention and in order to secure appropriate photographs of her startling novelty, Miss Hoffmann and a staff of photographers, several of the office force of the Comstock and Gest enterprises and a member of the Seagate life saving crew went down to the ocean and there with an incoming tide kicking up a series of heavy breakers, she posed for the photographer.

The camera man was lashed to the broken mast of an old wreck that lies off Seagate and Miss Hoffmann, swimming and treading water began a series of daring poses. After posing for thirty snap-shots she was finally coaxed out of the water and into some warm clothing.

"I am taking no chances with Polaire and Lady Constance," said Miss Hoffmann. "They will undoubtedly bring over a few novelties and I don't want to be left at the post."

Miss Hoffmann hit the nail on the head when she stated that the two foreign stars would arrive with novelties. Polaire came over with a large gold ring in her nose. The ring in itself is not so startling, but Polaire, who claims that woman is going back to savagery and she wants to be in line, is doing everything in keeping with the ring. She is educating a white Amazonian Tribal king preparatory to marrying him. Polaire claims that to have a good husband, one must educate him from childhood. She is educating one and says she will marry him, and support him, as a good husband should be supported.

Lady Constance Stewart-Richardson, granddaughter of the Duke of Sutherland, daughter of the Earl of Cromartie and wife of a prominent British Baron, will present her wonderful dance conception "The Awakening of Dawn." Lady Constance was the wonder of London when she made her appearance at the Palace theatre and regardless of the opposition of the prudish Queen Mary, succeeded in astonishing her countrymen and winning great laurels as an artiste.

The tour of the three stars is the most important single theatrical venture ever attempted by a manager and necessitates the weekly expenditure of many thousands of dollars.

The salary list of the three stars alone exceeds seven thousand dollars. An orchestra of thirty pieces, three private cars, individual corps of servants for the three temperamental women and individual representatives for each artiste bring the cost up to princely ransom each and every week.

In addition to the three stars, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest have supplied other features, to be announced later, to complete their program.

FRANK DE CAMP
Takes the Part of "Col. Drew," at Merrimack Square This Week

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

The Merrimack Square theatre players are this week presenting to their numerous patrons, the famous four-act comedy entitled "Brewster's Millions," and the first performance was given yesterday afternoon before a large gathering. The play was repeated in the evening before a much larger audience, and the warm applause that greeted the different features of the piece was a good demonstration of an appreciative audience.

The plot of the play concerns one Montgomery Brewster, a young man who has fallen heir to a round million of dollars. He has hardly straightened himself out from his first surprise when he is informed that his uncle in the west has died and made him the beneficiary of his $7,000,000 estate. The will has a proviso attached, however, in which it is stipulated that "Monty" must, within a year's time, be practically penniless, and that in doing so he must not spend his own money foolishly or extravagantly. "Spend a million to get seven," was the proposition that confronted him. His friends who are not aware of the facts, make every endeavor to prevent him spending his cash in such a free and lavish manner, and his efforts are somewhat balked. The young man who is trying very hard to get rid of his million does many unusual stunts, among which is the hiring of a yacht to take his friends on a trip around the world. He wins out in the end, but only after an elevanth-hour finish. Of course there is a little love story attached that helps to make "Brewster's Millions" a most agreeable entertainment.

The leading part is sustained by Walter Scott Weeks, while the charming young woman who is Brewster's chief attraction is no other than Miss Grace Young. The others who figure in the play are Thomas Carroll, Jack Hayden, Cecil Lugrin, John Charles, Marie Reels, William Phelps, Martin Miskell, Ivaloo Eddy, Frank DeCamp, Katherine Irving, W. J. Clark, Katherine McKenna, John C. Burns, Thomas Jordan, Harry Adams, J. J. Anderson, Marie Fisher and Harry Brown.

The staging of the piece is well done and the photo-plays are excellent.

KEITH'S THEATRE

People who are pleased with variety in vaudeville performances will highly enjoy the bill at Keith's theatre this week, for every number is of the character that delights theatre goers. The management, providing such excellent entertainment, well deserves to have the house filled at every performance.

One of the biggest attractions are the motion pictures of the world's most famous fugitive, Harry K. Thaw, taken at Sherbrooke. The pictures were taken with a view to showing the prisoner to the public as he really appears, in his characteristic attitudes, and in this, the photographer's work was marked by pronounced success, as those who have already seen the pictures will agree. Thaw is depicted in various occupations, with the cigars and flowers which seem always at hand. Hal Reid, the dramatist, secured the pictures and he is seen with Thaw in many of them. To those interested in the affairs of the man who escaped from the Matteawan asylum, these pictures will prove highly interesting.

The vaudeville acts leave nothing to be desired. The headliner throughout this week is "On the School Playground," which is somewhat different from other musical "Schooldays" acts. The big feature of the sketch is the excellent comedy furnished by E. I. Brendel who is seen in the character of "Herman Scrubbermeyer," caretaker of the playground. Brendel possesses an exceptionally ready wit and every move is a scream. His dancing was a delight to the audience. The musical numbers and dancing throughout the piece are very fine, a pleasing feature being the singing of one Miss Muriel Morgan. It is a lively sketch and one that is bound to afford genuine pleasure to all who witness it.

Hufford and Chain also provide some excellent comedy. Hufford is the comedian, in the makeup of a colored person, while Chain is a tenor singer of no little ability. The act is a novel one and extremely funny.

The southern singer, Clarice Vance, was a decided hit with the audiences at the two performances of yesterday, rendering catchy ragtime selections in a manner that won her prolonged applause and encores.

"Rained In," is a western comedy sketch contributed by Howard Leroy and Allaen Harvey. It is a success. Sylvester, the sleight of hand performer pleases the audience with a line of chatter, while he accomplishes some clever tricks. The singers and dancers, Williams and Wright, and the sharpshooters, McCrea and Burns, won their big share of the honors.

The motion pictures, "Pathe's Weekly," is highly interesting this week, showing the most recent noteworthy events, including baseball, aeroplane flights, fashions, the big Newark fire, and others. The bill will be presented afternoon and evening throughout the remainder of the week, and good seats may be had by ordering in advance.

WHITE SLAVE BOARD MET

FEDERAL AGENT ATTENDS CONFERENCE IN BOSTON—TO INVESTIGATE TRAFFIC IN BAY STATE

BOSTON, Sept. 23.—Frederick P. Schmid, who is the special agent of the federal department operating under the Mann act for the extinction of the white slave traffic, and District Atty. Joseph C. Pelletier were in conference yesterday afternoon with the special commission to investigate the white slave traffic in Massachusetts. Nothing was given for publication regarding the matter discussed.

Dr. Walter E. Fernald of Waverley, the chairman, was non-committal when asked if it was the intention to prosecute cases under the white slave act upon evidence laid before the commission. He remarked that the commission is not a prosecuting board. Its first duty is to investigate and next to recommend legislation to the general court. It is well known that the commission has received a large amount of testimony from those it has examined.

Dr. Fernald has said before this that if any positive evidence was submitted sufficient to convict an offender he would be prosecuted to the extent of the law.

The other members of the commission present were Sec. Charles W. Birtwell of Boston and Miss Lucia L. Jaquith of Worcester. Edwin Mulready the other member, is traveling abroad.

WIFE TURNS ON MAN

WENT TO MEET HIM AT DOCK BUT LEARNING THAT HE WAS WITH ANOTHER ENTERS SUIT

BOSTON, Sept. 23—Jose S. Rodriques of New Bedford was arrested yesterday by United States Deputy Marshal Ruhl charged with attempting to bring into this country an alien not entitled to enter. The alien is Joana Clara Goncalves Gibau, 25 years old, of the Cape Verde Islands.

Rodriques, who has a wife in New Bedford, brought the Gibau woman over with him on his return from a trip to his old home in the Cape Verde Islands, and was detained by the immigration authorities on Long wharf. Mrs. Rodriques came to Boston to assist her husband, but on learning of the Gibau woman she refused to help him and arranged for counsel to start suit against him, saying she did not want him any longer.

Rodriques was immediately placed under arrest. He pleaded not guilty when arraigned before United States Commissioner Hayes, and pending a hearing on Sept. 27, he was committed to East Cambridge jail in default of $300 bail.

REV. FR. AUDIBERT, O. M. I. OPERATED ON FOR APPENDICITIS AT GREEN BAY, WIS.

The many friends of Rev. Charles Audibert, O. M. I., formerly of this city, and who recently was transferred from St. Joseph's parish, this city to Bailey Harbor, Wis., will be grieved to learn that he is confined to the Mercy hospital, Green Bay, Wis., where he was operated upon for appendicitis.

Very Rev. T. Wade Smith, O. M. I., provincial of the Oblate Order for this district, yesterday received a telegram announcing the sad news of Rev. Fr. Audibert's illness. The message also states that owing to the long ride on the train after the clergyman was stricken, his chances for recovery have been diminished considerably.

PURE WATER FOR ICE MAKING

The rapid gain in popular favor which artificial ice has made in this country in recent years is shown by the reports of the United States census.

In the manufacture of ice for household purposes and for cooling beverages it is important that the water used should meet all the requirements of potable water in respect to cleanliness and freedom from organic matter and disease germs. Most American manufacturers use distilled water in making ice, in order to get a pure, transparent product.

In the plate system, however, which is becoming more and more popular in this country, it is not necessary to use distilled water in order to obtain clear ice if suitable appliances are installed to prevent the occasion of air and solid particles. Though it is true that the greater part of the bacteria and mineral matters in the raw water are excluded from the frozen plate, there is insufficient ground for assuming that perfectly harmless ice can be made directly from dangerously polluted water; and while it may be conceded that water pure enough for drinking is pure enough for making ice, it is nevertheless true that too much dependence should not be placed upon the natural purifying powers of the freezing process.

G.O.P. IN SESSION

Meet in N. Y. to Name Candidates for Chief and Associate Judges

NEW YORK, Sept. 23.—The nomination of candidates for chief judge and associate judge of the court of appeals was the formal task before the republican state convention that assembled here today but the party leaders planned to make the gathering one of wider importance than this duty signified. It was the first republican rally since the last state election and several new questions confronted the delegates. The answer to these will be embodied in the platform which will be adopted at the session of the convention tonight.

It became known that republicans opposed to the leadership of William Barnes, Jr., had held an overnight meeting to oppose the selection of Harold J. Hinman, minority leader of the assembly, as either permanent chairman of the resolutions committee. It was said that a compromise had been reached whereby United States Senator Elihu Root was to be made permanent chairman and Job E. Hedges chairman of the resolutions committee.

The delegates, 810 in number, met at Carnegie hall this morning to organize and hear the address of Dr. Jacob G. Schurman, president of Cornell university, as temporary chairman and adjourn until eight o'clock tonight to give the committee on resolutions time to prepare the platform.

A large volume of army regulations, containing a list of regular officers in 1900 was also given and in the back part of this book are printed copies of orders sent out by General Reade during his active service in the army. months this year was $8171.03, as against $4507.95 the year before.

The order to borrow $12,000 for contagious diseases was adopted, unanimously.

A communication from the county commissioners notifying voters of Lowell of a vacancy existing in the office of register of deeds, southern Middlesex, by reason of the death of the late Edwin O. Childs, was read, and referred to the commissioner of finance.

Abolish Grade Crossings

The mayor then read the resolution, recently published, for the abolition of the Middlesex street, Western avenue and Fletcher street crossings.

Com. Cummings whaled the representative of the Boston & Maine who said that there was no demand for the abolition of these crossings. "He had no way of knowing that there wasn't any demand and he had an awful gall to make that statement," said Mr. Cummings.

Com. Barrett said that the Merrimack street crossing should have been included in the plan for the abolition of grade crossings in this city. He said if it was possible he would like to include that crossing, but the mayor said the matter was now before the courts and it would be necessary to make the Merrimack street crossing a separate matter and Ald. Barrett moved that the city solicitor take up the matter of the abolition of the Merrimack street crossing and it was so voted.

The resolution as read by the mayor was passed.

Appleton Street Sewer

The council voted to extend a sewer in Appleton street at an expense of $980.

The Council Opposed

Com. Barrett moved that the city clerk be instructed to communicate with the interstate commerce commission protesting against the increase in freight rates as proposed by the Boston & Maine, and it was so voted.

Highland Avenue Sewer

An order to lay a sewer in Highland avenue from the end of the present sewer, near Parker street, northerly about 170 feet, at an expense of $303, was adopted.

Illuminated Clock

The council voted to allow the D. L. Page Co. to erect an illuminated clock in front of its premises in Merrimack square.

Board of City Plans Commission

The mayor then read the following ordinance creating a board of city plans commission, according to an act passed by the legislature for 1913:

An ordinance relative to the creation of a planning board for the city of Lowell.

Be it ordained by the municipal council of Lowell as follows:

Section 1. The municipal council shall immediately upon the passage of this ordinance appoint a board of city plans commission to consist of five persons who shall serve without compensation. One person to serve until Oct. 1, 1914, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1915, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1916, one to serve until Oct. 1, 1917, and one to serve until Oct. 1, 1918; and thereafter annually the municipal council shall appoint, prior to the first day of October, one member of the board of city plans commissioners who shall hold office for the term of five years from the first day of October in the year in which he is appointed. In addition to the said five persons to be appointed by the municipal council, the mayor, and the commissioner of public property and licenses shall be members ex-officio of said board of city plans commission, and the mayor shall serve as chairman.

Section 2. Vacancies occurring in the board of city plans commissioners shall be filled by appointment by the municipal council to fill the unexpired term.

Section 3. It shall be the duty of said boards to make a careful study of the entire city, and cause to be made a city plan or plans, which in their judgment will be best adapted to the present conditions and future needs of Lowell; and as soon as may be, report in writing to the municipal council the result of their study and investigation, together with all necessary plans, maps, diagrams or models which shall be considered a part of their report.

Commissioner Barrett inquired as to the expenditure of money by the board. "You might get a planning board that would tie up the city of Lowell," he said.

"What if they should? The council might not think the board's judgment was any better than its own," said the mayor.

The mayor called Mr. Barrett's attention to the fact that the council had no choice in the matter. "It is mandatory," he said.

The mayor moved that the ordinance be passed to be enrolled and it was so voted.

It was then passed to be ordained and becomes active at once.

The duty of the board will be to make investigations and recommendations relative to the development of the city, paying particular attention to housing conditions.

Mr. Cummings moved that the council ballot for a member of the planning board to serve for five years, beginning Oct. 1, 1913, and it was so voted.

Charles E. Anderson, secretary of the trades and labor council was elected on the first ballot. He received the votes of Commissioners Cummings, Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

John H. Murphy was elected a member of the board for a term of four years, receiving all votes with the exception of Mr. Brown, who voted for Dr. G. Forrest Martin.

Commissioner Brown admonished the council not to be hasty in the matter of electing members of the board inasmuch as the matter had not been discussed. He thought the election of the other three members should go over to the next meeting.

The council, however, proceeded to ballot for a three year man and Joseph A. Legare was unanimously elected.

The council's choice for a two year man was George P. Green. He received the votes of Messrs. Cummings and Donnelly and Mayor O'Donnell.

Contagious Hospital Again

Mayor O'Donnell made another attempt to spur up his brother members on the selection of a site for an isolation hospital. Com. Brown was in favor of the Dr. Pillsbury estate.

Com. Barrett wanted to know what was the objection to the site in the rear of the Chelmsford street hospital. "Personally, I think it's a horrible place," said the mayor.

Commissioner Donnelly said he was willing to vote for the site recommended by the contagious hospital commission at the Chelmsford street hospital but he understood it would not be permitted by the state board of health.

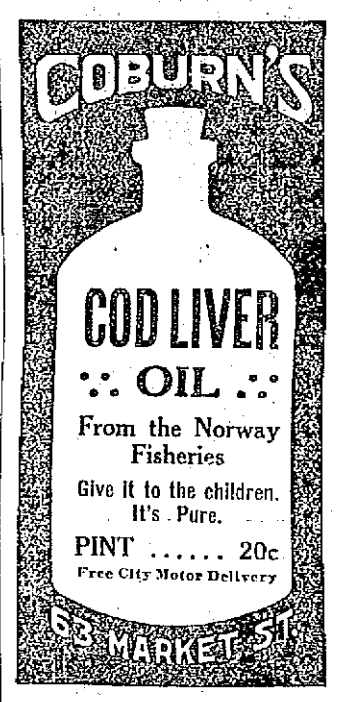

Commissioner Cummings thought a combination hospital in connection with the state hospital at Tewksbury would be a good scheme and he suggested that the mayor confer with the state board of health relative to such a plan.

The mayor said the state board of health couldn't do anything about a combination of that kind.

Mayor O'Donnell called attention to the fact that there was still another site at the Chelmsford street hospital described as the "lone tree" site, or "the trail of the lonesome pine." Part of this site is in Chelmsford and part in Lowell, but mostly in Lowell.

Ald. Barrett objected to the Pillsbury estate because the buildings thereon are of frame construction and he allowed that would be very dangerous in case of fire. He said he thought the site was ideal, but he believed that the hospital should be of fireproof construction.

Nothing doing and at 1.45 the meeting, on motion of Com. Cummings, adjourned to Tuesday at 11 a. m.

CRIMINAL COURT

guilty and his case went to trial. Inspector William H. Connors of the board of health was the first witness called. He said Clancy is a truckman and keeps his horse in a stable in Floyd street. He said he visited the aforesaid stable on May 3 and 22, and saw a horse there. He said the stable is about 12 by 15 with one stall. Witness said on both occasions he visited the stable at night and he did not see any feed there.

Agent Frederick A. Bates said he has no record of Clancy having a license to keep a stable in Floyd street. He does not know of any application from the defendant for a license.

On cross-examination Mr. Bates said there is nothing on his records which show that Mr. Clancy is conducting a stable in Floyd street. He said the board issues licenses for the keeping of stables, and they apply to stables that are being built or enlarged. He said he knows Clancy has no license and has never made application for such license.

John B. Clancy was then called. He said for four or five years he has been the agent of the blind workshop in Lowell. He said he has kept his horse in the stable in Floyd street about 27 years at intervals. Prior to 1905 he had the stable which has been remodeled since, and kept his horse there. "I never had a license to keep the stable and did not know I was supposed to have one. I am still using the stable and it is as good as any one in Lowell."

On cross-examination he said: "I never was bothered before by the board of health until some time ago when politicians wanted to have my land. The neighbors are also opposed because they don't like me. I would like to have the jury see the place. It is a fine stable, a good cellar, clean and bright, and is built on a large tract of land.

"Were you at the hearing at city hall?" asked Mr. Wier.

"There was no hearing, it was a political meeting, attended by all the neighbors, who are here today at my expense."

"When did you build the stable?"

"I never built it, it isn't built, yet, although there is a building there. It was started 30 years ago. The horse was not there all the time, only at intervals. I will complete it some day if they leave me alone.

"What do you mean by intervals?"

"I mean when the district attorney gave you my record and through political influence you tried to put my horse out of the stable and me out of business, I will tell you right here I will keep my horse there even though you put me in jail, with all due respect to the court."

"How much of a building was your stable 27 years ago?"

"Oh, the cellar and a roof, but I have improved it wonderfully since, and I would like to have the jury see it."

During his testimony John B. supplied considerable amusement for the jurymen and other attendants.

Mrs. Bridget Donnelly was next called to the stand and she said the building has been in construction for a number of years and is not yet finished.

On cross-examination she admitted having a little feeling against Mr. Clancy on account of political conditions between Clancy and her son, Commissioner Donnelly. She said 15 or 16 years ago Clancy purchased a small shed, which he removed to Floyd street. She said he attempted to keep a horse there, but he found it a difficult proposition for there were no sides to the shed.

Owen McCann, of Lyons street, next testified. He said Clancy's stable is near his place. He said about 15 or 16 years ago John B. put up a small shack on his land. "The same," he said, "was burned out some five or six years ago, and then John B. endeavored to erect a club building for the boys of the district, which later he turned into a stable."

On cross examination witness said he does not want a stable near his place. He said he has no feeling against Mr. Clancy, although the latter has told lies about him to the board of health. Witness said he is over 70 years of age and has lived in the Floyd street vicinity for 33 years.

Mr. Clancy was recalled to the stand and said he has had horses in other stables. During cold weather he said he kept his house in the Keene street stable. He said he did not keep his kicking horse with the valuable horses.

John B. Fined $10

At the conclusion of the last case the court suspended for a few minutes, and John B. Clancy took occasion to go for a short walk, but it is believed John B. met a few friends on his way, for it was fully a half hour before he returned. The jury returned to the court room and the lawyers were getting ready for their evidence, but John B. was absent. A couple of court officers were detailed to find John B., but they were unable to locate him. The court was about to default him, when in comes John B. with a happy smile on.

At the request of his counsel, but not before considerable coaxing, John B. changed his plea to guilty and the jury was dismissed. The court then imposed the sentence which John B. received in the lower court, that is a fine of $10. By pleading guilty John B. evaded a fine of about $450, for according to the district attorney, John B. was liable to a fine of $5 a day for each day he conducted his stable after being notified by the board of health to secure a license.

This case was the last brought to the attention of the court. The jurors were then dismissed and the court adjourned to Cambridge tomorrow morning.

Pres. Elliott Confers With the Inter-State Commerce Board

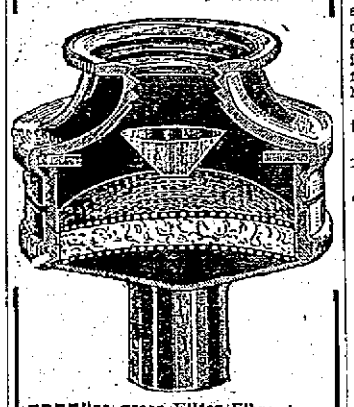

WASHINGTON, Sept. 23.—Howard Elliott, president of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, conferred here today with the interstate commerce commission about conditions on his lines. He was particularly concerned about the forthcoming report of the committee on the Wallingford rear end collision which is to be made public late tomorrow.

President Elliott was given no inkling of the character of the report prepared by Commissioner McChord after an exhaustive personal investigation. He was assured, however, that published forecasts of the findings of the commission were unauthorized, misleading and essentially inaccurate.

Both Commissioner McChord and Inspector Belknap have not only analyzed thoroughly the evidence they adduced themselves but have carefully considered the testimony at the coroner's inquest. Their conclusions, therefore, are based on a thorough knowledge of the conditions surrounding the disaster and of the operatives who were the human factors in it.

ADMINISTRATORS' SALE OF THE LYNCH PROPERTY, CONSISTING OF A 2 1-2 STORY HOUSE OF 7 TENEMENTS, SHED IN THE REAR AND ABOUT 2893 SQUARE FEET OF LAND AT NO. 231 GORHAM STREET, 2, 4 AND 6 EAGAN'S COURT

The above property is located on Gorham street just on the rise of the hill and about opposite the new St. Peter's school and its location is considered one of the best in the city for renting of small tenements. The block, which has seven tenements averaging three, four and five rooms each, has a total rental of about $40 a month and with a little more care and attention, much more rent could be obtained. This is an excellent opportunity for the speculator, as this parcel is located on one of the principal business streets of the city. The sale will be absolute, regardless of any condition of the weather, as the time has come for a settlement of the estate.

Terms: $400 to be paid the auctioneer as soon as struck off.

Per Order, WM. A. HOGAN and DENIS J. MURPHY, Administrators.

NEXT SATURDAY, SEPT. 27, AT 3.45 O'CLOCK

A 2 1-2-story brick building and about 4337 square feet of land at the corner of Tyler and George streets. The house, which is of brick construction, 2 1-2 stories with ell, contains 16 rooms, bath, pantry, wash room, furnace heat, cemented cellar, lighted throughout by gas, and is in good shape. It is occupied by a first class tenant at $35 a month, or a yearly rental of $420! The lot has a frontage of about 48 feet on Tyler street, 90 feet on George and about 48 feet on the passageway in the rear, that must be forever kept open. This lot has an area of about 4337 square feet. Now, then, here is a first class investment for someone. The fact that it has three frontages is certainly a great advantage to this parcel, and when you take into consideration the location, less than 100 yards from Central street, within five minutes' walk of the postoffice and within 10 minutes of many large industries. Speculators should look this property up, as it will be offered for absolute sale, regardless of any condition of the weather, on the day and hour advertised.

Terms: $400 to be paid the auctioneer as soon as struck off. Make all inquiries of the auctioneer who has full charge.
